NIXON TO GET ENVOY'S VIEWS

WASHINGTON (AP)—President, Nixon is expected to seek from Ellsworth Bunker in consultations starting this weekend the ambassador's views on how soon South Vietnam may be politically and militarily strong enough to permit the withdrawal of some United States troops.

Nixon already has the views on U.S. troop reduction of his defence secretary, Melvin R. Laird, who made a war-zone inspection last week. Laird said that he saw no prospect for early withdrawals.

Administration officials say that no decisions on policy changes are due to come out of these talks. They also picture the process of ending or reducing the war in Vietnam as a long one. Nevertheless, some further development of Nixon's Vietnam policies seems likely soon.

Heavy Damage To U.S. Bases

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese smashed at United States bases with renewed fury today, hitting them with rockets, mortars and infantry assaults that caused serious casualties and losses of aircraft, vehicles and fuel.

In one of the heaviest series of blows since the opening of the spring offensive 27 nights ago, rockets and mortars hit 65 military bases and towns, and infantry assaults ripped into three of the bases.

It was the largest number of attacks since last Friday, when 70 bases and towns were hit.

All of the infantry attacks were on American bases along the northwest approaches to Saigon, between 31 and 51 miles from the capital. Twelve Americans were killed and 47 wounded, while known Viet Cong losses were 38 dead, U.S. spokesmen said.

Meanwhile, no major contact was reported today in the big U.S. counteroffensive, known as Operation Atlas Wedge. Military spokesmen said that the American troops have killed more than 200 Viet Cong since the operation was launched Tuesday. Fewer than half a dozen Americans have been killed and a little more than 40 wounded, they said.

NEWS BRIEFS

Russians Beaten

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Czechoslovakia scored a stunning 2-0 upset victory over the defending champion Russians today and threw the world hockey tournament wide open. After a scoreless first period, the Czechs scored in each of the second and third periods.

Northcott in Finals

PERTH, Scotland (CP) — Ron Northcott led his Calgary rink to a 9-8 victory over Scotland today to earn a berth in the finals Saturday of the world curling championship.

Swedes Beat Canada

STOCKHOLM (CP)—Sweden turned back Canada 5-1 today to move into a tie with Russia for first place in the world hockey championship.

Israeli Jet Bombers Hammer Jordan Again

By United Press International

Jordan reported new attacks by Israeli jet fighter-bombers today and said anti-aircraft fire shot down one plane half a mile east of the Allenby Bridge across the Jordan River, killing the pilot.

It was the fourth time this week Israeli jets have been reported in action against Jordan. There was no immediate Israeli confirmation of today's raid but earlier Israeli attacks were directed against Al Fatah commando bases in Jordan, Israeli military spokesmen reported in Jerusalem.

Jordan said the planes attacked after Israel and Jordan exchanged artillery fire near the bridge.

COAST PARK HAILED BY CONSERVATIONISTS

The government's decision to include the West Coast trail in the national marine park was hailed by conservationists today as a major acquisition for the people of British Columbia. (See story Page 8.)

"It's the first natural marine parkway set aside as a park in the province," said Elton Anderson, 3905 Benson, an official of the B.C. Nature Council. "Such a park is long over-due."

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan in the legislature Thursday said the west coast national park would not only include Long Beach but the Effingham Islands at the entrance of Barkley Sound and 65-miles of coastline from Port Renfrew to Bamfield.

The coastline park, half a mile in depth, was the route of the old telegraph trail.

Anderson said there were small marine parkways situated along highways, but the west coast fringe was the first large natural coastline park.

"It's a major public acquisition," he said, "but I feel more of Vancouver Island's coastline should be preserved. The northern part of the Island should have a large marine park."

He was also pleased that the government had included the Effingham Islands before they all fall into private hands.

Bruce Scott, 1173 Hewlett Place, who has campaigned for years to preserve the West Coast trail, said it would attract outdoorsmen throughout Canada and the United States.

"That is as long as it is kept in its wilderness state," he said. "The beauty of the coast is its wilderness aspects. Keep it that way. If people want to see it, let them walk."

More Services to Come Under Regional Control

New War Plan Ready—U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Melvin R, Laird pledged today that if the Paris peace talks fail to end the conflict in Vietnam, "we will have an alternative as far as the war is concerned other than the present conduct."

He did not say what that alternative would be.

Laird made that statement after Senator J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.) shifted the course of a United States Senate hearing from the newly-proposed anti-ballistic missile system with a critique of Nixon administration handling of the Vietnam war.

Fulbright said the question of armaments and their control is linked with that of the Southeast Asian conflict.

"Isn't it possible, Mr. Secretary, to realize that we are not now and never have been winning this war?" he asked Laird.

"I would just like to say that this administration is committed to end the war in Vietnam," Laird said.

Then he declared:

"I want you to know that we are hopeful that we will be successful in the Paris peace talks . . . but if we are not successful, and we pray for success, I can assure you that we will have an alternative as far as the war is concerned other than the present conduct of that war."

He said peace efforts are being made privately, as well as formally and publicly.

Laird and Fulbright then disagreed on whether the U.S. effort in Vietnam has escalated under the Nixon administration.

Laird said: "Since this administration took office on Jan. 20 there has been no escalation of the war as far as the United States and South Vietnamese forces are concerned."

Earlier, Laird denied the administration dropped the old Sentinel missile defence project because of public protests, insisting that the change came "because we have a better system."

Laird said discussion of a shift from city defences under the Sentinel system to President Nixon's plan to defend U.S. offensive nuclear bases with anti-ballistic missiles was under way even before public protests against deployment near Boston, Chicago and Seattle.

On Thursday, Laird said the Canadian government had been completely briefed on the original United States decision to start a missile defence system.

But he did not reply to a question from New Hampshire Senator Thomas McIntyre, who asked whether the U.S. has asked Canada's permission to explode missiles over Canadian territory.

A state department official told a reporter the United States has not asked Canada for permission to fire missiles over Canadian territory.

U.S. Needs More Just to Be Equal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union could kill 55 per cent of the U.S. population by hitting American population centres with as few as 200 nuclear-armed missiles, Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today.

He said the Soviet missile stockpile represented a "first strike" force while the U.S. missiles were conceived of as retaliatory power.

In making public a Pentagon appraisal of America's vulnerability to missile attack and its ability to hit back, Laird said it would take 1,200 U.S. missiles of the same power to kill 45 per cent of the Russian population.

Laird read to a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee an assessment he said was given to committees of Congress in classified form in February, 1965, by then defence secretary Robert S. McNamara.

"The studies showed that U.S. population and industry are far more concentrated than are the population and industry of the Soviet Union," Laird said.

"With only 200 delivered one-megaton warheads (equal to 1 million tons of TNT each) the Soviets could destroy a greater percentage of the population of the United States than our country, with 1,200 delivered one-megaton warheads, could destroy of the Soviet population."

NOT PARITY

Laird's point was that the present stituation, in which the United States and Russia have approximately 1,000 land-based intercontinental missiles each, does not represent "parity."

"In terms of retaliatory ICBM capability alone, parity falls in the vicinity of 1,200 deliverable warheads for the United States versus 200 deliverable warheads for the Soviet Union," he said.

Health Now—Planning Next

By JOHN MIKA and JIM HUME

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell has told Greater Victoria municipalities to amalgamate two more regional services.

In a double-barrelled announcement in the legislature Thursday the minister authorized the transfer of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health to regional jurisdiction and cleared the way for the take-over of the Capital Regional Planning Board.

Mayor Hugh Stephen, chairman of the Regional District this year, welcomed both moves, although neither came as a surprise.

For almost 18 months regional district authorities have been preparing the way for the health services take-over. Thursday's decision by Campbell would indicate that the government has finally accepted the 80-20 cost sharing formula proposed by the municipalites.

The province picks up the 80 per cent tab and the 20 per cent is spread over all members of the Regional District Board.

On the planning move Stephen said "the minister has virtually said 'we are going to give you one more year to get planning into the broader concept.'"

Campbell didn't say he was forcing planning into the regional district organization. But he did state that after March, 1970, provincial funds would be cut off from capital region planners.

'Assume Decision Made on Costs'

"I think we all anticipated this move," Stephen said. "With the new amendments to the act, based virtually on Victoria's suggested changes, the city is no longer reluctant to take in planning.

"My own personal feeling is that (capital region) planning should come under the regional district board. I think the minister has opened the door as wide as he can and I'm very hopeful that Regional District Board members will take another look and not wait until next March to make a decision."

When regional planning was first suggested as a regional district function, Victoria balked at the possibility of being deprived of its own zoning and planning rights.

Amendments were made to retain the city's rights to plan its own development.

In the meantime Saanich has become the chief hold-out with both Mayor Hugh Curtis and regional district director Ald. Leslie Passmore urging a go-slow policy and further study.

Campbell's decision to eliminate $20,000 in provincial grants to the planning board is expected to force a Regional District Board decision before year-end.

Everyone Anticipated Move

Although Campbell made no mention of cost-sharing formula for the health board transfer Stephen said he "assumed that in fact a decision has been made on the 80-20 basis we suggested."

All discussions with the provincial government have been on that basis.

At present time the provincial government picks up most of cost for public health services in Saanich and other rural areas while Esquimalt, Victoria and Oak Bay are forced to meet a much heavier bill for the same service.

Last year the three municipalities paid $153,000 for public health services. Saanich budgeted $23,000 for its public health services for the same period.

The new formula would see all members of the regional district paying for the same service on an assessment and population basis.

With two new functions under its wing there is little doubt that the regional district will also be faced with an expansion of staff.

At present only two staff members are on full payroll, executive director William Long and one secretary typist.

It is expected that in the near future the district will be forced to hire an accountant and at least one more secretary-typist.

With the addition of Metro Health and planning the Regional District Board now controls regional park development, sewer trunk design and construction, garbage disposal, firecracker sales, and under a slightly different name, hospital development and construction.

Mao Returns Nuclear Warning

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Mao Tse-tung, Chinese Communist party chairman, is quoted as warning Russia that China would retaliate in kind to a Soviet nuclear attack. "If the Russians dare use nuclear missiles, we'll do the same," the Hong Kong Star quotes him as telling an emergency party meeting following the first Sino-Soviet border clash March 2 on the Ussuri River.

Canada Poised to Arrest Norwegian Seal Hunters

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today Norwegian seal-hunt vessels have been causing "difficulties" off Labrador and an icebreaking protection ship has been sent to arrest any Norwegians inside territorial waters.

Mr. Davis, giving the Commons a review of the seal hunt to date, said there were 14 Norwegian and six Canadian ships off the Labrador Front to take seal pups.

There had been "some difficulty" with the Norwegians and one was definitely seen taking seals inside Canadian territorial waters near the Hamilton Inlet area last Saturday.

The small fisheries protection vessel in the general area had been unable to get to the spot because of heavy ice, but radio messages warned off the Norwegians.

The icebreaker Sir Humphrey Gilbert, with a helicopter aboard, was dispatched to the Hamilton Inlet area from St. John's, Nfld., with orders to arrest the Norwegian vessel if it were found inside territorial waters.

Low visibility and high winds have hampered fisheries protection operations.

Mr. Davis said the earlier hunt in the Gulf of St. Lawrence was called off after 35,000 seal pups were taken instead of the usual annual quota of 50,000 because the seal population is down this year.

Mr. Davis said the adult female population in the gulf was estimated this year at 250,000 instead of the usual 750,000 to 1,000,000.

In addition, ice breakups caused many drownings of pups at birth or shortly afterwards.

Authorities expressed concern about conservation and there were fears any bigger hunt in the gulf would have wiped out an entire year's new population, Mr. Davis said.

James A. McGrath (PC—St. John's East) said the difficulty in reaching the Norwegian vessel indicates the inadequacy of fisheries protection vessels to enforce Canadian jurisdiction. There was obviously a need to increase the number of such vessels.

He said the depleted herds this year are "a real cause for concern." Steps to protect seals in the Gulf of St. Lawrence were not effective unless there was protection for the main herd off the Labrador coast.

Soldiers Snap Anguillan Protesters

ANGUILLA (CP) — Units of a British occupation force moved into the eastern part of tiny Anguilla today where dissident islanders are believed to be concentrated.

At the same time another 140 paratroops took up position on the island after being ferried over from neighboring Antigua by RAF planes Thursday.

Grinning police and soldiers Thursday lined the road in the village called The Valley, taking photographs of a procession of Anguillan demonstrators.

The demonstrators rallied in a nearby park later to hear Ronald Webster, self-styled president deposed by the British, say he called for a referendum to determine the future of the scrub-covered Caribbean isle.

Earlier, Webster told a news conference his three-point referendum — Anguillan independence, association with Britain or association with St. Kitts—was turned down by Tony Lee, newly-installed British commissioner of the island.

Webster, who led Anguilla's breakaway from the British-created island federation of St. Kitts-Nevis-Anguilla, proposed the referendum in a letter he handed to Lee.

The letter was signed "chief executive and president-elect" a title which the commissioner has refused to recognize. The letter followed a cable Webster sent to Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart calling for the withdrawal of British troops.

Webster told reporters he wants a cabinet minister to come to the island to gather the views of its 6,000 people.

The British government, which sent paratroops, Royal Marine commandos and police in before dawn Wednesday to restore legal authority, promised the islanders they will not be forced "to return to an administration you do not want."

Lee said he would not rule out the possibility of a referendum sometime in the future but that he planned to appoint an advisory board of Anguillans to govern the island until its status is clarified. He has said earlier the British occupation of Anguilla might last several years.

Meanwhile, the British government resolved to pursue what it calls its "rescue operation" by heaping development and technical help on the rebel islanders.

There are plans to provide power, water, sewers, roads, bridges, schools and hospitals on the impoverished island. The Anguillans say it was the neglect of such services which led them to break away from Britain after more than 300 years of colonization.

Anyway, th' Anguilla occupation solves th' summer vacation problem fer a few hundred troops.

Canada Blame Called Fantasy

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau Thursday dismissed some of the charges by the organizers of a Vietnam peace rally as fantasy.

His Commons comment followed the quoting by former prime minister Diefenbaker of some of the claims contained in an advertisement of the event.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the advertisement claimed there is "shocking new evidence" of Canadian complicity in the Vietnam war.

Canadian troops were being trained in guerrilla warfare. And Canada had a standing offer to send troops to Vietnam.

Mr. Diefenbaker asked for the prime minister's comment.

Mr. Trudeau replied that if the propaganda was no more serious than that, he had no intentions of changing his plans to be away from Ottawa on April 6, Easter Sunday, the day of the rally.

The rally, Mr. Diefenbaker said, was in Vancouver.

In any event, Mr. Trudeau said the charges read by Mr. Diefenbaker were "pure fantasy," something like the New Democratic Party itself.

Mr. Diefenbaker had said some of the listed sponsors of the international protest rally were connected with the NDP.

After the laughter died down following Mr. Trudeau's comment on the NDP, Ed Schreyer (NDP—Selkirk) rose and asked "whether it was entirely fantasy" when Mr. Trudeau once referred to Liberals as idiots.

Mr. Trudeau did not reply to the rejoinder.

Mr. Diefenbaker said outside the House he was "amazed at the sponsors" of the march. Holding an advertisement of sponsors he pointed to the names of NDP Leader T. C. Douglas and Mrs. Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver - Kingsway).

"It's not very often I have to defend the government," said Mr. Diefenbaker, "but this paper represents a collection of falsehoods from end to end.

"It's inexcusable."

Lumber Prices Protested by MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal MP Pat Mahoney lodged a parliamentary protest Thursday night against a "disastrous" rise in the price of lumber and called for urgent government action to stem the inflation.

Stanley Haidasz (L — Parkdale) replied on the government's behalf that the concern of the member from Calgary South is shared by the government and "all action that can be taken will be taken."

Mr. Mahoney said the spiralling cost of lumber is "little short of disastrous for the housing industry."

He said the price of fir has risen by 48.4 per cent in a year to $175 for 1,000 board feet from $118.

Wood sheathing had gone up by more than 20 per cent since last August, and grade two shingles by 135 per cent in a year.

At the same time, Mr. Mahoney said, reports show profits of Pacific Coast lumbermen went up by an average of 61 per cent in three months.

He estimated the upsurge in lumber prices has added between $800 and $1,000 to the cost of a $20,000 house in the last year.

Mr. Haidasz, parliamentary secretary to Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford, said he was replying on behalf of Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, minister responsible for housing policy.

He said it should be noted there has been a great upsurge in housing and other construction, increasing demand for lumber. Lumber prices had been depressed in relation to other housing costs during the past decade.

Linguistic Lack In Bill Criticized

Bill 30, the proposed provincial bill of human rights, was criticized Thursday for not covering the rights of all groups in B.C.

Larry Ryan, chairman of the human rights committee of the Victoria United Nations Association, said he found it "most regrettable" the bill did not concern itself with the area of linguistic rights.

Domestic labor, a group he feels urgently needs protection, is not mentioned in the bill.

One of the main pitfalls of a provincial bill of human rights is that, like all provincial bills, it is subject to amendment.

Bill 30 is officially called an act "for the promotion and protection of the fundamental rights of the people of British Columbia." It will be debated in the legislature when it comes up for second reading soon.

The only safeguard would be a national charter of human rights, Ryan said.

"In this way it would be a permanent guarantor of rights for Canadians as a whole; in this sense I object to the title of the B.C. bill.

As secretary-treasure of the Victoria Labor Council Ryan said labor sees the bill as a consolidation of legislation which now is separately under various acts.

One pleasing feature of the bill, according to unionists, is that the bill will set up a commission designed to go into the field to investigate any complaints of discrimination.

Gold Rush Days Revived

Costumes reminiscent of the Klondike Gold Rush period will be worn Monday when the Rotary Club of Victoria holds its Ladies' Night at the Red Lion Motor Inn.

Entertainment in the Klondike theme will begin at 8:30 p.m.

It will be preceded by a cocktail hour from 6:10 to 7 p.m., and a smorgasbord, to be served from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

8 Islanders Hold Tickets On Irish

Eight Vancouver Islanders, including six Victorians, have drawn horses in the first Irish Hospitals Sweepstake of the year.

Winners will be based on the running of the Lincolnshire Handicap at Doncaster, England, Wednesday.

Island ticket-holders (with horse's name and ticket number) are:

Redeye, Victoria (Morgan's Pride—DZH 64182).

Betty Bishop, Victoria (Private Side—CLB 65937).

R. V. Clark, Victoria (Starboard Watch—DQP 79902).

Caribbee, Victoria (Saratoga Skiddy—CJA 59868).

Gold Stripe, Victoria (Welsh Warrior—CKD 45059).

Filthy Rich, Victoria (Stardao—DNL 79682).

Mark Waldron, Duncan (Travelling Fair—CKP 90708).

Patient, Nanaimo (Come April—DSD 45785).

59 ELIGIBLE

One ticket, listed as Corveger 13659, on Sovereign's Charm—CDD 61861, was from British Columbia but no city was given.

Tickets were drawn on all 59 horses eligible for the race, Canadians were drawn on 58.

Holders of tickets drawn on eligible horses will win prizes amounting to about $1,000, but only those with tickets on the first three finishers will receive the big prizes.

Ticket holders on Wednesday's winner will each receive $130,000. Bettors on the second horse will get $52,000 each. Those with tickets on the third finishing horse will win $26,000 each.

The international sweepstake is held three times a year in aid of hospitals in the Republic of Ireland. The second is the Irish Derby at Curragh racetrack, Dublin, in June. The third is the Cambridgeshire Handicap at England's Newmarket track in October.

Quakes Keep Coming

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — More than 40 small earthquakes rocked the Gulf of California Thursday night.

A team of scientists was dispatched from the California Institute of Technology here to investigate possible undersea volcanic activity.

A spokesman for the seismological laboratory at Caltech said early today the temblors were still continuing five hours after they began in the northern part of the gulf off San Felipe, Baja, California.

Earth quake swarms are long series of large and small shocks with no one outstanding tremor. Swarms are common in volcanic regions and they often occur before and during volcanic eruptions.

There actually were two series of swarms recorded Thursday. The first lasted for several hours shortly after midnight. The most severe temblor had a magnitude of 5.5 on the Richter scale.

It was considered unlikely the quakes would affect any land areas.

Three-Hour Protest

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 150 Simon Fraser University students left the campus administration building Thursday after holding a three-hour demonstration.

The students, who sought a meeting with Dr. Kenneth Strand, acting SFU president, were protesting the $250 fines handed out in magistrate's court Wednesday to 98 students charged with creating a disturbance on the campus last November.

Role of Doctors To Be Probed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two investigations were set up Thursday after complaints were levelled at two doctors in Vernon, and Vernon's coroner said he's going to make a report on another incident.

The complaints involve the death of Mathilda Chamings of Vernon of a heart attack last Boxing Day and were produced in the legislature Wednesday by Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East).

He read a report from Vernon coroner R. S. Primrose which said one doctor failed to act on calls to attend Mrs. Chamings and a second doctor would not come to certify the woman's death.

Mr. Primrose, in an interview with the Vancouver Sun, Thursday identified the first doctor as Dr. Allan McRoberts, who said of the complaints "that picture is not quite right," and the second as Dr. Alex Boggie.

—The British Columbia College of Physicians and Surgeons said it first heard about the Primrose complaints Wednesday and will investigate them.

Dr. W. G. McCloure, college registrar, said the request for investigation was passed on Thursday with the word that delay had been caused by illness of health department officials.

Kennedy Wants Red China in UN

ROBERT H. ESTABROOK

NEW YORK (WP) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy (D—Mass.) called Thursday night for the expulsion of Nationalist China from the United Nations security council with the seat going to Communist China.

Kennedy also called for a broad American initiative to improve relations with Peking in a speech here to the national committee on United States-China relations.

In urging that the security council seat be given to Peking, Kennedy was staking out a new position. He said that since the seat was given to the nation of China, it should be filled by the government that runs it.

"The security council seat was granted to China in 1945," said Kennedy, "in recognition of a great people who had borne a major share of the burden of the Second World War, thereby making the United Nations possible. It was not a reward for the particular political group that happened to be running the country at the time."

Kennedy said the United States should work within the United Nations to assure representation for the people of Taiwan. It might be admitted as a new state, he said, or perhaps as an autonomous unit of China as was done for two units of the Soviet Union.

SHOULD BE PROTECTED

For the present, Kennedy said, the United Nations should continue diplomatic relations with Chiang Kai-shek's nationalist Chinese regime on Taiwan and the island should be protected against invasion from mainland China.

Kennedy proposed these other actions by the U.S.:

- Proclaim a willingness to adopt a new policy of peace toward Communist China and make clear that it is considered a legitimate power entitled to its own security and full participation in the world community.
- Try to reconvene the Warsaw talks, proposed and then cancelled by Peking, for talks between the two nations.
- Unilateraly end restrictions on travel and non-strategic trade between the two nations and promote exchanges of people and ideas.
- Announce a willingness to re-establish consular offices in China and welcome Peking consulates here to facilitate trade and other contracts.
- Try to involve China in arms control talks and other international conferences.
- Seek discussions with China on establishing full diplomatic relations.

Kennedy said he expected establishing formal relations would be difficult because Peking probably would demand that the U.S. first withdraw its recognition of Taiwan.

Peking may refuse at first to talk about anything, said Kennedy, but the U.S. should make a start, and this moment when Chinese and Soviet troops are fighting along their common Asian border may be the best time to try, he said.

Easier To Appeal Convictions

OTTAWA (CP) — It is easier to appeal a capital murder conviction than a traffic ticket, Douglas Hogarth (L — New Westminster) said Thursday.

The comment came as the Commons justice committee approved Criminal Code amendments that will make it easier but not much, to appeal summary convictions.

Mr. Hogarth said the whole summary appeal system should be overhauled so a person doesn't have to hire a lawyer to get justice.

The West Coast prosecutor said that most lawyers have difficulty launching a successful appeal in minor cases because of the intricacies of the system.

Even where there was a sound case, it was often defeated by the technicalities of procedure.

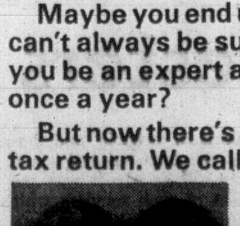
Announcing: A good way to put some money back in your pocket.

Every year you sit down and battle a tax return that gets tougher to do. Write this, write that. Add this, subtract that. Take a percentage of this, total that.

Maybe you end up with the right answer, but you can't always be sure. After all, how can you be an expert at something you do only once a year?

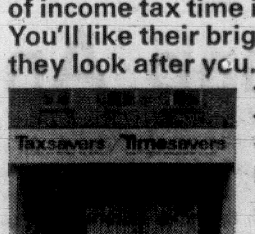
But now there's a new service to do your income tax return. We call it Taxsavers. It will cost you only a few dollars. And we can make sure that you get every tax penny back you're owed this year.



We can do this because, like the government, we use a computer. Trained Taxsavers data collectors assemble your tax information, then it's fed to the computer. It digests the information and selects the tax options which mean the least amount of tax for you. Finally it prints out your return in bold, clear type.

All you do is date and sign one copy and mail it to Ottawa on or before April 30th.

Taxsavers offices are being opened all across Canada. They're going to take the pain out of income tax time in more ways than one. You'll like their bright look and the bright way they look after you. Maybe you've got a special tax question. Well then, think how good you'll feel with someone pleasant to answer it.



Income tax doesn't have to be a dull subject, does it? Especially if you can put some money back in your pocket.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

Man in 1969 is no longer close to nature, so he has lost most of the primitive knowledge that helped his ancient ancestors overcome the effects of weather that could kill. When easterners drive out to the southwest deserts, they sometimes feel like exploring and turn off onto a little-travelled side road. That kind of exploring, especially if the explorers are unprepared, can be dangerous.

In the great heat of the desert you may die in two or three days if you are marooned in a disabled auto away from travelled areas.

Stay with the car if possible. You can rest in its shade. Drink all the water you can. Try to fashion a large SOS sign of cloth on the ground that may be seen from a searching airplane. Remove the hub caps and set them out to catch the morning dew. Spread lipstick and rouge over your face to help prevent sunburn. Suck moisture from a limb torn from a desert tree, such as a cedar.

Most important—don't panic.

Alberta Makes Plans For Joining Medicare

EDMONTON (CP)—Premier Harry Strom announced Thursday that Alberta will enter the federal medical care plan. However, he did not set a date.

The announcement came after the premier returned from talks in Ottawa with Prime Minister Trudeau on several subjects, including medical care.

Mr. Strom told the legislature the federal government has indicated it was not prepared to make any changes in the federal plan.

"As a result, the government of Alberta has decided that the province will enter the federal plan at the earliest possible date."

The Alberta government "was disappointed" the federal government would not accept the Alberta health plan for cost-sharing.

WILL MEET SOON

"We are arranging immediately for meetings with the medical profession, Medical Services Incorporated and Blue Cross to discuss administrative details necessary for the participation of Alberta in the federal plan," Mr. Strom said.

Outside the house, Mr. Strom said the discussions may start next week.

British Columbia and Saskatchewan joined the federal plan when it became effective in July, 1968. Since then, Manitoba, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland have announced their intention to join April 1.

Government officials here have declined comment, but speculation is Alberta will aim at a July 1 date for entry in the federal plan.

Opposition Leader Peter Lougheed said he is disturbed at the government's abrupt change in policy with no full public explanation. The government had indicated in the throne speech last month the province would not participate in the plan this year.

WANT PLAN TESTED

The Conservatives have, since the legislature opened Feb. 13, criticized the government for not joining the federal scheme but have also maintained the constitutionality of the federal plan should be tested in the courts.

In the house, Mr. Lougheed called for a full explanation from Mr. Strom, but the premier replied the legislature will have "ample time later" to discuss the question.

Bill Dickie, the Liberal house leader, said the announcement Thursday indicated a "wise decision" by the government.

Meanwhile, Dr. Robert Woolstoncroft, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Alberta, said in an interview that while the profession was "naturally sorry" about the government announcement it would "make the best of the matter."

"We're happy that the premier said he will be consulting us," he said.

Health Minister J. Donovan Ross had said earlier in the session there would be a "substantial reduction" in premiums now paid by Albertans compared with those paid for medical care under the provincial plan.

Israelis Distrust Big-4 Pact

By MURREY MARDER

WASHINGTON (WP) — Israeli foreigh minister Abba Eban returned to Washington Thursday to record that his nation's new government is as distrustful of a Big Four solution to the Middle East crisis as the former leadership.

Eban met for 35 minutes with secretary of state William P. Rogers and other officials. The Isreali envoy called it "a summary conversation," at his request, before returning to Israel on Sunday.

"I brought the latest impressions of our government," now headed by Premier Golda Meir who presented her cabinet to parliament on Monday, said Eban. "It's in accored with what I said here last week," said Eban. He held a major round of talks at that time with President Nixon, with Rogers and with other policy-makers.

Although no American official would say so aloud, the Nixon adminstration is disappointed with what it regards as the rigidity displayed by Mrs. Meir in her initial statements Monday and Tuesday, informed sources said. At the same time, these sources added, it is recognized here that a new Israeli government needs time to organize its own strategy.

SIX-DAY WAR

Mrs. Meir told parliament on Monday that "we are as resolutley determined as the previous government that there shall never again be a return to the borders and conditions which existed on June 4, 1967," prior to the six-day, Arab-Israeli war which Israel won.

In Jerusalem the next day, Mrs. Meir in a press conference acknowledged that between the United States and Israel, "there are differences in our views and approach . . ." But she said it is "far too early" to reach conclusions on the "extent" of these differences.

The Nixon administration is intensely interested in bargaining out behind the scenes, with the Soviet Union, a formula for a Middle East settlement that can be presented in the name of the big four — the United States, Soviet Union, Britain and France.

WELFARE HOTLINE

A new welfare hotline has been established by the Community Action Group with the support of the Council of Churches.

Community advocates will be available at St. John's rectory, Quadra and Mason, Saturday, March 29 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Residents wishing information on welfare services, training or re-training programs, or other social problems are invited to consult the advocates.

Judge Delays Decision On Student

MONTREAL (CP) — The preliminary hearing of Kennedy J. Frederick, first of 87 persons to face charges in the $2,000,000 damage spree at Sir George Williams University last month, ended Thursday.

Frederick, 29, of Grenada, West Indies, was granted $10,000 bail after the prosecution announced it had completed its evidence.

He was unable to raise the bail, however, and was ordered held in custody.

Frederick is charged with conspiracy to commit arson and damage property after a two-week student occupation of the university's computer centre erupted into violence Feb. 11.

Judge Emmett J. McManamy said it would take about two weeks to decide whether to send Frederick to trial.

More than 50 witnesses were heard in the five weeks of almost uninterrupted testimony.

Earlier in the day, two others charged in the destructive rampage and released on bail, pleaded guilty to charges of soliciting names on a petition demanding that Frederick be granted bail.

Philippie Filsailme, 20, a free-lance photographer, and Maurice Barrow, 25, a student, were arrested Wednesday night in a subway station, where such activities are forbidden by a city bylaw.

Filsailme was fined $100 with an option of 30 days in jail. Barrow was fined $75 or 30 days in jail.

No charges were laid against Filsailme for presenting prosecutor Claude-Armand Sheppard with a Haitian voodoo doll after he apologized for his actions.

Change in Command For Queens Own

Lt.-Col. H. C. (Herb) Pitts, commanding officer of the 1st. Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada at Esquimalt, has been appointed senior liaison officer at the United States Army Command and Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

He will assume his new duties early in April.

Formerly of Nelson, Col. Pitts has commanded the battalion since January 1967. He will be succeeded by Major Thorold M. C. Marsaw, London., Ont., who will be promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

An officer of the Queen's Own Rifles since 1952, he is being posted to Esquimalt from headquarters, First British Corps, in Germany.

The official changeover will take place at Work Point Barracks, March 28 at 9:15 a.m.

Col. Pitts, a graduate of Royal Roads and the Royal Military College, served with the 1st and 3rd Battalions of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in Korea.

In 1954 he joined the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada at Calgary. In 1957 he was appointed a liaison officer with Canada's NATO Brigade in Europe.

In 1962, Col. Pitts joined the 2nd Battalion of the regiment as company commander, and in 1964 was posted to Canada's 4th Brigade in Germany as brigade major.

All Parties Applaud Selective Help Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs on both sides of the Commons welcomed Thursday government plans to concentrate future development aid on areas with a chance of achieving prosperity.

NDP spokesman Edward Broadbent (Oshawa-Whitby) said he is glad the government is moving away from the outmoded approach of helping an area simply because of a high unemployment level.

Liberal Rud Whiting (Halton) said that in the past, millions have been spent on well-meaning but ineffective plans.

In future, he said, projects that show signs of success should be encouraged, while those that do not should be scrapped.

But Conservative John Lundrigan (Gander-Twillingate) urged that the human factor not be overlooked.

The comments came in debate on establishment of the new department of regional economic expansion, to be headed by Rural Development Minister Jean Marchand.

MAY FINISH TODAY

It was the eighth day of debate on the government reorganization bill, setting up several new departments, and had been expected to be the last. But government efforts to complete it were blocked by the opposition. Debate now is expected to be completed today.

Mr. Marchand repeated that first emphasis of the new department will be on industrial development of "growth centres." But rural redevelopment would continue to receive attention.

The most important instrument for industrial expansion would continue to be the Industrial Incentives Act, and major amendments would be made in it after consultation with the provinces.

Mr. Marchand said the task of the new department will be to get to the roots of problems that have produced disparities among Canadian regions.

GAVE FEW DETAILS

Past programs, operating independently and with too little co-ordination, had obviously not worked.

Mr. Marchand gave little indication of how the department will work.

"The first thing we have to do is establish the department before we indicate exactly what we intend to do," he said.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield listed three things that bothered him:

—The "wide discretion" of the minister and government in defining "special areas" that will qualify for aid.

—Similar wide discretion on the type of industry that could be aided and on the form of the aid.

—The "unnecessary degree of centralization" in administration of the program.

MUST PROVIDE SERVICES

Mr. Stanfield said there will be little chance of reducing economic disparity unless the provinces are able to provide an adequate standard of "growth-related" services such as education, transportation and health services.

He cited two instances in which he said Ottawa has ignored provincial problems:

—While Finance Minister Edgar Benson had been boasting about the size of transfer payments to the provinces, New Brunswick had been forced to raise taxes sharply just to make ends meet.

—The government had cancelled the Northumberland Strait crossing between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island without the slightest effort to explain why it was necessary.

Liberal MPs Rake French Gov't On Policies in Talks at Paris

PARIS (CP) — A meeting between Canadian MPs and a high French government official turned into a verbal slugfest Thursday as the Canadians raked the Gaullist government for its policies toward Quebec and Ottawa.

The assault was led by Gilles Marceau, the Liberal member for Lapointe, who bluntly told Jean-Noel Lipkowski, French secretary of state for foreign affairs, that France is aggravating the problem of Canadian unity.

Lipkowski was reported to have been taken by surprise by the assault on his government, which came as members of the Canadian House of Commons external affairs committee wound up a one-day round of meetings here with prominent Frenchmen.

Some reports said Lipkowski was noticeably displeased.

Only a small portion of the 1¼-hour meeting was occupied with international affairs and defence policy, questions which the committee came to Europe to study. The rest was taken up with France's attitude towards Canada.

Participants in the closed meeting reported that Lipkowski told the MPs the French government regards Canadian unity as an internal Canadian problem, and that if Canada tries, it will find a solution to the problem.

Asked to describe the atmosphere of the meeting, one participant said: "It was not very friendly."

BACKS POSITION

Marcel Prud'homme, the Liberal member for Montreal Saint-Denis, who acted as chairman, endorsed the position taken by the other MPs when he closed off the discussion.

He pointedly told Lipkowski that "there are some patriots in Ottawa" — an apparent reference to French-speaking members of the federal Parliament. Since President de Gaulle's abortive Canadian visit in 1967, Paris has been playing down its relations with Ottawa and building up its relations with Quebec.

Carl Legault, the Liberal member for Nipissing, complained to Lipkowski that France uses its cultural agreements with Canada to serve only Quebec. French-speaking Canadians were "all alone" outside Quebec. Legault said he spoke as a French-speaking Canadian living in Ontario.

To charges that Paris is aggravating the problem of Canadian unity, Lipowski replied that he had met Quebecers who told him just the opposite.

The late premier Daniel Johnson and Quebec Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal had gone to France and said Quebec was happy with the de Gaulle government's policies.

Marceau said they were only two people.

Marceau said the way the French government is using the cultural agreements might give the impression that it favors a separate state in Quebec.

Lipkowski replied that France will not change its position unless Quebec changes its position. France had not asked for the cultural agreement with Quebec.

How High Is Up?

MR. TRUDEAU HAS ANNOUNCED that Canada's policy in regard to the United States $7-billion anti-ballistic missile program will depend on whether the program is essentially a strengthening of the nuclear deterrent, or whether it will in fact be an escalation of the nuclear armaments race. He will discuss the situation with President Nixon next week when he visits Washington. But it seems clear that the real answer to the question will lie in Moscow rather than Washington. If the Russians interpret Mr. Nixon's action as an escalation, and act accordingly, then that is what it will be, regardless of what Mr. Nixon may say are his intentions.

Protection for an offensive weapon which is acting as a deterrent to attack may be justifiable, given agreement that effective offensive power will itself keep a potential attacker from launching a blitzkreig. If the deterrent capability is open to sudden destruction, then the possibility of attack may be considered as that much more likely. The point at issue, however, is whether the anti-ballistic missile deployment can in fact prevent destruction of the weapon bases by nuclear attack, and the arguments are mounting on either side. It might be a matter which can be decided only by trial and error—that is, by a nuclear war.

Many aspects are being argued: that loss of United States land-based nuclear weapons would still leave a massive ability to attack Russia or China with submarine-based missiles sufficient to wipe out most of the enemy's industry and a large portion of its population. Against this it is said that Russia is rapidly developing speedy submarines which could dog every American nuclear submarine endlessly and conceivably put them out of commission in the event of sudden war.

It is argued that United States land-based missiles could be so fortified that they would not need anti-missile protection—and on the other hand that such fortification is impossible against Russia's large new weapons, also that new space launchings and decoy devices can neutralize defences. It is asserted that Mr. Nixon's move will result in further Soviet production of nuclear arms and additional anti-missile measures in that country. But it is argued equally that Russia is already producing new nuclear weapons at a rapid pace, has begun an anti-missile defence similar to Mr. Nixon's, and will not be affected either way by the latest American development. Both countries already have enough nuclear weapons to wipe each other out many times over.

One possible fallacy in all this verbal conflict is the apparent assumption that the Soviet Union would use any superiority in armaments as an opportunity to launch a totally destructive attack on the United States. It is difficult to give that idea high credibility, any more than that the United States would do likewise. The two giant powers surely have been forced to recognize the responsibilities and inevitabilities of life in the nuclear age and should not be considered as being on a constant alert to destroy a large portion of the earth even if it could be done without immediate retaliation. That does not seem to be a logical summation of the present state of the globe.

Canada itself lies on the missile path of the two giant nuclear nations and willy-nilly would be a part of any exchange between them. Our voice, above all others, should be raised in support of any feasible move to preserve world peace. The paradox of our times is that in a world which can marshal force of cataclysmic power, force can no longer guarantee survival.

These are the questions which Mr. Trudeau will discuss in Washington. We should not expect him to return with hard and fast answers to them. He spoke truly when he said that once the world situation has reached the point where flights of attack missiles are on their way it will be too late to worry about specific cities or regions. The whole world will be in mortal danger. The key obviously is to prevent the deterioration of international relations to a point where the mad attack is launched.

As the Twig Is Bent . . .

THE TRADITIONAL CONFLICT between fathers and sons, or the generation gap as it is labelled in the sixties, is much on everyone's mind these days. And one of the more interesting examples of the phenomenon is occuring on the island of Formosa, where a son is going about shattering the illusions of an aged father.

Since he was driven from mainland China by the Communists in 1949, Chiang Kai-shek has pursued the phantom of launching an invasion to regain power. To practically everyone else the idea has been absurd for years, but Chiang has been allowed to dream his impossible dream and confuse the course of world affairs.

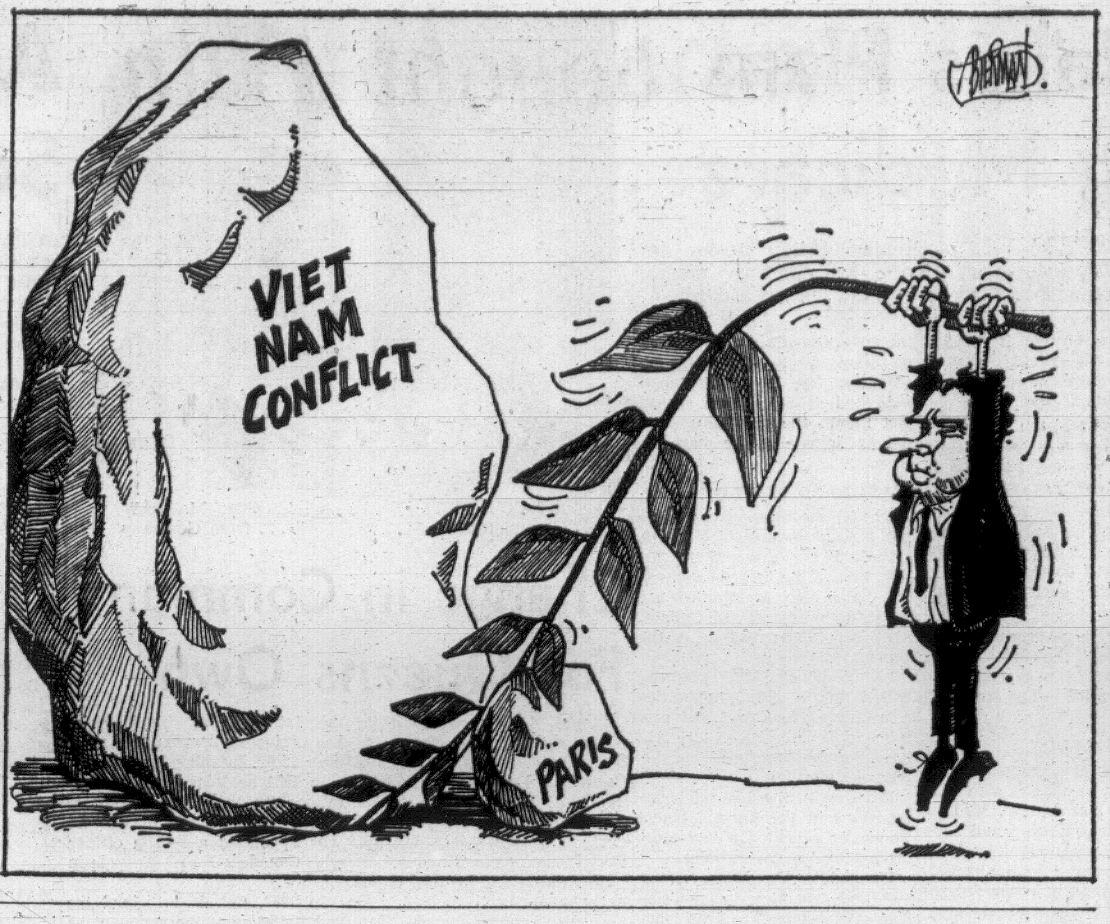
But now his son and heir apparent, Defence Minister Chiang Ching-kuo, has admitted the obvious. "Viewed strictly from the mathematical point of view, comparing the population, the terrain, the size of the military forces, then it is a dream," he declared in a recent interview. If this attitude portends a change in the policies of the Taipei government, as it seems to do, the consequences could be far-reaching.

Chiang's pretensions as the leader of a Chinese government in exile have been a big factor in blocking negotiations between the rulers of the real China and the western world. Now, if Ching-kuo can accept his forthcoming position as simply the ruler of the prosperous separate nation of Formosa, he will make things a lot easier for the leaders of a few other nations.

'Our Pomp of Yesterday'

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS notes the passing of another reminder of Britain's imperial days in India—the razing for new construction of the Lahore, Pakistan, building formerly housing the English-language Civil and Military Gazette. There, as editor in the 1890s, says the item, Rudyard Kipling collected material for some of his famous books. Three years ago the Gazette wound up publication. Now the building is being torn down and with it goes such memorabilia as the Kipling editorial desk. There was little left of the desk. An employee had been selling bits of it to tourists as souvenirs for years.

Thus passes a small landmark of a great age in British history and letters. There was little reason to retain it in the atmosphere of the new subcontinent where the days of the British Raj had long since ended and reminders of it had little appeal for the present-day inhabitants.



FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Calculations Behind the ABM Decision

THE unspoken but primary reason for the President's ABM decision was chillingly simple. The review-group led by Deputy Secretary of Defence David Packard was driven to conclude that a nuclear "first strike capability" is the real Soviet strategic aim. In the Pentagon jargon, a "first strike capability" is the power to wreak such complete destruction that the other side is unable to deliver an effective counter-strike. Former Secretary of Defence Robert A. McNamara always used to contend that a true first strike capability could never be achieved by either of the giant powers because a fearful counter-strike could never be averted.

Alsop

But Deputy Secretary Packard does not share the brilliant McNamara's highly questionable conviction that Soviet marshals must use computers and measure acceptable damages exactly as he does. Hence Packard judged the Soviet aim, not by theoretical calculations, but by the harder evidence of Soviet actions to date.

The troubling feature of Soviet actions to date is the very heavy, very costly emphasis that is being placed on "counter-force" weapons. These are, quite simply, weapons mainly or exclusively designed to destroy the several components of the U.S. strategic striking force. If you have enough counter-force weapons, and they work, you then have a first strike capability — for there is then no need to fear a counterstrike.

Counter-Force Weapons

Three main counter-force weapons, each carefully tailored to one of our three types of offensive weapons, are being intensively produced by the Soviets. The first, aimed at United States Polaris submarines, is the nuclear powered and extremely speedy SSN attack submarine. These are being added to the big existing Soviet submarine fleet, number above 200, at the rate of at least one a month.

The American Polaris fleet numbers only 41, of which no more than 30 can be continuously at sea. In a few years, a situation can too easily arise in which each of our Polaris submarines will be continuously shadowed by one or more Soviet SSN submarines. If this happens, of course, the Polaris fleet will be largely neutralized.

Oddly enough, the second of the Soviets' counter-force weapons appears to be their equivalent of the Polaris — the submarines of the Yankee type, also nuclear-powered and carrying a nuclear ballistic missile with a range of about 1500 miles. The evidence indicates that these submarines of the Yankee type, which are also coming off the ways at a high rate, are mainly designed to frustrate the FOBS early warning system that now protects our B-52 bases.

They could do this by throwing their missiles from fairly close inshore — say 500 miles. A sudden, simultaneous attack of this sort, aimed at the B-52 bases, would knock out all B-52s not on airborn alert. Thus FOBS would become near-useless.

Finally, the very large and continuously growing Soviet panoply of inter-continental ballistic missiles, all nowadays in hardened silos, also has a strong and growing counter-force component: this comprises SS9 missiles. There are already 200 of these outsize ICBMs, carrying triple warheads with a total power of around 25 megatons.

Designed for Minutemen

The SS9s are quite clearly designed to destroy our Minutemen missiles, which they are strong enough to do. At the present rate of deployment, the Soviets will have one SS9 warhead per Minutemen in two or three years time. Over-all, by 1975, they will have an array of all three of their counter-force weapons quite powerful enough to give them some exceedingly worrying ideas.

Nor is that the end of the story. No counter-force weapon can ever be 100 per cent effective. B-52s on airborne alert will always escape. A few Polarises and Minutemen will always escape, too, however complete the surprise. But a defensive system, ineffective against a heavy and multiple attack, can be made highly effective by greatly lightening the weight of the attack.

The counter-force weapons, in short, are clearly designed to work in conjunction with the Soviet defensive weapons. These are the vast anti-air defence system known as Talinn, plus the new ABM system that the Soviets are now deploying.

Chilling Computations

As to Soviet measurements of acceptable damage after a first strike, it is well to remember Robert Conquest's unchallenged computations. According to Conquest, in peacetime, in the purges of the 30s, Stalin directly or indirectly murdered 20 million people, or rather more than one tenth of the population of the U.S.S.R.

It can be seen, then, why Packard finally recommended some Sentinel protection for our Minutemen, in order to neutralize at least a part of the counter-force weapons the Soviets are building.

FROM CALGARY

By JAMES H. GRAY

Slow on Pollution Control

SAVE only for chain letters and sex, no human activity has caught on quicker in Alberta than public alarm over air and water pollution. Two years ago nobody cared. Today ad hoc committees are springing up all over. The Fish and Gamers are setting up vigilante groups; there are "concerned" groups about clean air and clean water; Edmontonians have added deodorizing to their crusade; and the farmers groups around gas plants are becoming increasingly aggressive.

Gray

As the interest in pollution has burgeoned, so has the frustration of the new crusaders. Everybody is rushing around demanding that somebody do something. But finding something practical to do about pollution is another matter.

Calgary, its experts say, is burdened with the same kind of a pollution problem as Los Angeles. That city has wrestled with its problem for 20 years, and succeeded only in slowing down the growth of the menace.

Calgary and Los Angeles both blame their air pollution on the automobile. U.S. manufacturers were supposed to be inventing gadgets to remove the pollutants. The so-called after-burners have not solved that problem for which, local automobile men say, there is no solution in sight.

Mid-Afternoon Smudge

It is only a small exaggeration to say that Calgary is an example of air pollution as Lake Erie is a sample of water pollution. Calgary air is in no immediate danger of becoming dead air as Lake Erie water is of becoming dead water. The high night winds of Alberta take care of that. Even so, Calgary air by mid-afternoon becomes so heavy with pollution that the centre of the city becomes completely obscured from the hills of its western outskirts.

But is the car in fact the real villain in the piece? There is reason for doubt. Calgary is blessed with scores of small industrial plants on its south east fringe. These rock crushers, refineries, fertilizer plants, steel works and packing plants can all be seen fogging up the atmosphere.

The upflow from the industries hits the bottom of an inverted air strata at a distance of about 400 feet. For the rest of the day the industrial waste just drifts around in the natural trap, mixing with car exhaust and other smoke. By mid-afternoon, the whole valley is permeated.

And what is being done? Almost nothing. The Calgary council took one pass at it and got burned. It passed a law banning the burning of trash in back yard burners. That set the city on its ear when it discovered the law also applied to outdoor barbecues.

Calgary, like all other cities, is most reluctant to act against industrial air polluters. Attracting industry is the name of the game in the west. No city seeking to attract industry will risk adopting a get tough pose. Instead, they try to nudge the provincial government into action.

Cattle Dying

Alberta, for its part, has made a career out of foot-dragging. For years the farmers and ranchers have been complaining about cattle being poisoned by fumes from gas plants. Nonsense, the government has replied, waving sheafs of inspectors' reports. Yet while denying the problem, it did make a move or two.

One step, after a couple of fatalities, was to force the gas plants to double the height of their smoke stacks. The government also spotted some poison detectors on fence posts around plants. Lately the worth of these gadgets has been questioned and researchers are back trying to invent detectors that will work.

Meanwhile the cattle and pigs go on dying and the public becomes more insistent that something be done. Around Edmonton complaints about nauseous odors from the local chemical and processing plants have been multiplying. The Alberta government has had power, since 1961, to shut down plants which make a nuisance of themselves. But the grace period extended to industry has now passed seven years, and still the health department shows great reluctance to act.

In this of course it is following the long established practice of the American states to which Alberta so often looks for guidance. The steel mills of Utah still send monstrous black plumes from their chimneys unimpeded into the atmosphere. Smoke from the chemical plants of Nevada coats whole mountain ranges in smog. Nothing much is being done down there either, despite the chorus of protests that have been heard for so long in those parts.

Letters

Killing for Sport

Much has been written about the seal slaughter and the cruelty of men who pursue these unfortunate creatures.

It is gratifying to know that some humanity still exists, but why concentrate on seals, when so many other creatures are hunted just as cruelly, and no one seems to care.

How many deer, elk and moose are wounded every fall by hunters who care little one way or another?

What about the thousands of ducks and geese wounded by buckshot? Is their death any less painful? Let's take a look at fishing also. I understand that fish have a nervous system comparable to people and feel pain the same as humans.

Yet people who scream murder at seal hunters will gleefully play a fish at the end of a line.

My thinking may be all wrong, but it seems to me that anyone who derives pleasure from killing or causing pain has to be a little sick mentally or too dumb to think about what they are doing.—Edward M. Doyle, 2670 Shelbourne.

Saving the Rings

I have read with interest Mr. James K. Nesbitt's letter dealing with the mooring rings on the old historical site of Fort Victoria on Wharf St., and the effect the development of the Reid Centre might have.

With the permission of Mr. Nesbitt, with whom I have discussed this, and having been involved originally with the real estate aspect of this development, I would like to reassure your readers that it is the firm intention of the developers to preserve every historical aspect connected with the development.

In the very first paragraph of the official presentation to city council, the following sentence appears, "In fact, the original mooring rings are still in the site on the waterfront and will be incorporated into the complex."

I hope that this will reassure those of your readers who are interested in and concerned about these important matters.—Gilbert W. Calvert, Block Bros. Realty Ltd.

Dog Nuisance

No reasonable person objects to dogs. But when these animals are allowed to run loose and brought into the grounds of public buildings, they create a potential hazard, and their natural activities should be confined to the dog owner's property.

In Saanich there exists a By-Law No. 2893, Section 4.4 Clause 3, clearly stipulating that dogs shall be led or confined to leashes in public grounds. It would show consideration and generate more respect for dogs if this by-law was complied with.—Denis H. Besley, 4360 Gordon Head.

Caribbean Monte Carlo

Reports on the occupation of little Anguilla indicate that authorities in Britain are worried that the tiny island might be taken over by American gangsters as headquarters for organized crime and gambling.

Can't have organized crime, of course. But if the native population ekes out a meagre living from the export of salt and lobsters, would it be so frightful to permit nice, respectable evening clothes' gambling, as in Monaco, to strengthen the island's economic base?—The Man Who Broke the Bank.

No Cause for Pride

Vancouver Province

It should be a matter of concern to Mr. Dan Campbell, rather than pride, that his government is under-investing in its universities in comparison with other wealthy provinces. This year, for example, provincial grants to B.C. universities amounted to $32.50 for each resident in the province. Comparable figures for Alberta and Ontario were $62 and $48 per capita.

Mr. Campbell should be wondering whether this under-investment isn't threatening the quality of our universities. He should be asking whether it wouldn't make sense to spend enough to improve higher education in B.C., rather than just enough to enable it to get along.

And if Mr. Campbell really feels B.C.'s universities are being mismanaged, then he should be telling the legislature what the government—the government that controls the university framework and pays most of their bills—is planning to do about it.

Looking Back

From the Times, March 21, 1909.

Steamer Amur, which arrived from the west coast today, brought news that a big potlatch was in progress at Fort Rupert. The main feature of this potlatch was the eagle dance. This was performed by a girl, the belle of the tribe, who was attired in feathers and with the mask of an eagle on her head.

Security Can't Be Bought With Rockets

By NORMAN COUSINS Editor, Saturday Review

There is an obvious and inevitable consequence of the ABM. This is the development of an expensive decoy missile system and the packaging of greater destructive megatonnage in the missile warheads.

An aggressor nation can readily afford to saturate a target with ten or more decoys to one armed missile, activating the defence and causing it to expend most of its explosive payloads on unarmed attackers.

Radar devices have no way of discriminating between decoys and destroyers.

Moreover, it takes only one penetrating armed missile to destroy a city, creating a hurricane of fire that can rage over hundreds of miles.

One thing is certain: once an ABM system is installed, its advocates will be no less energetic in pressing for funds for a full decoy system and for more powerful warheads.

Go Underground

And, once the decoy phase of the nuclear arms race is in full development, it will be claimed that the Soviet Union intends to disadvantage the United States by going underground with its major industrial and defence facilities, its utilities, and its key government bureaus.

We have no choice, it will be said, except to go underground ourselves with even more of our establishment because of our greater concentration of industry and population. Cost: anywhere from $300 billion to $500 billion.

The resultant atmosphere of tension and terror and its concomitants of political extremism are not difficult to imagine.

The prodigious inflationary pressures and the squandering of national resources and wealth on measures that do not add to but actually subtract from the nation's security will create a stage for internal upheaval and explosion.

The next step urged on government will be the need for preventive attack.

It will be argued that there is no point in living with the mounting fear of surprise attack, and that the only thing that makes sense is to destroy the enemy before he destroys us.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union will be (as they are now) in the same boat. Yet it will be argued that we have to knock a hole in their end of the boat before they open one in ours.

It would be dangerous to dismiss any of the foregoing as fanciful or exaggerated.

What is happening already is a form of accelerating madness. The major nations are now capable of expunging life from this planet.

Force is extolled and endlessly multiplied despite the fact that security no longer depends on the pursuit of force but on the control of force.

EISENHOWER

President Eisenhower's warning about the inevitable tendency of installed power to magnify itself has not been taken seriously.

Nor are the implications fully understood of President Kennedy's statement that there was scarcely a serious problem confronting the United States abroad in which the Pentagon did not advise him to use military force.

Is military power becoming an end in itself and a law unto itself? This may well be one of the most serious questions in American history.

LAIRD

It is no answer to declare that the men at the head of the American defence agencies are balanced, intelligent, sober, responsible. This is not the issue.

The issue is whether a context of power is now being created beyond the ability of even the best men to change.

At the Philadelphia Constitutional Convention of 1787-89, no principle of history and political science was more thoroughly understood and applied than that good men cannot be expected to produce good works in a bad setting.

Accordingly, it was decided to create good government through good laws and good structure. This meant preventing runaway power situations.

Today, the system of checks and balances has become seriously impaired through both the massive spending power of the military and its ability to take actions and to create situations in the field that force the hand of the President.

Forced by Others?

Is it claimed that the president's hand is forced only by the actions of other nations?

Secretary of Defence Melvin Laird said as much when he justified his position by pointing to what he described as initial steps taken by the Soviet Union in building its own ABM system.

It is the action of the Soviet Union, he insisted, that creates the need for an American system of anti-ballistic installations.

Yet the hollowness of this argument was demonstrated when he was asked by U.S. senators whether the best way to resolve this problem would not be to seek enforceable agreements with the Soviet Union under which both countries would forego ABM development.

Willing to Talk

It was pointed out to the secretary that the Soviet Union had called for agreement to head off an ABM race and that, at the very least, its stated willingness to talk should be tested.

The secretary replied that he was inclined to go ahead nevertheless. What, therefore, are we to conclude?

If the stated reason for proceeding with the ABM lacks validity, is the real reason to be found in the determination of the military to press for massive appropriations whenever an opening presents itself?

The absence of logic in Secretary Laird's reasoning is not confined to the argument over the Soviet position.

The discussion over Chinese missile capability is equally distinguished by its absence of rational examination.

The question is being debated whether the United States ought to devise a system to defend against Chinese missiles or against Russian missiles.

What the discussion overlooks is that if an attack should occur, there would be no way of determining whether the missiles come from China or the Soviet Union or any other nation.

This monstrous danger is now producing precisely the wrong response.

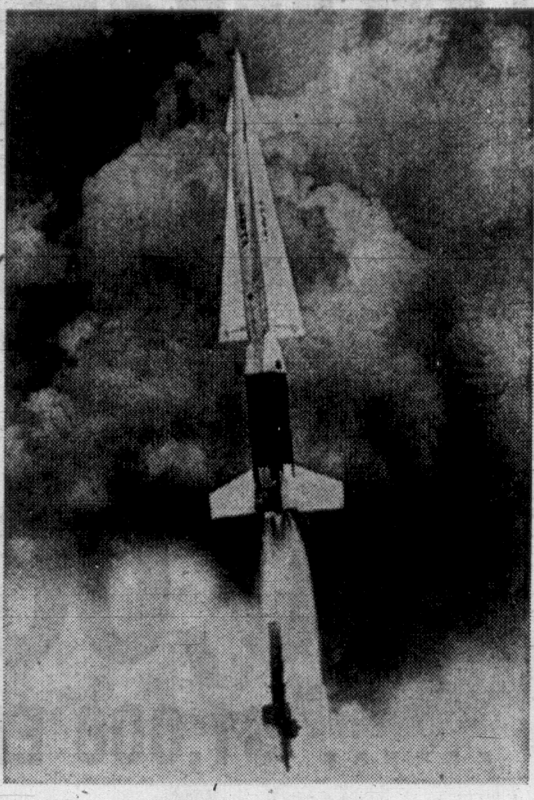
We seek to confront the danger by enlarging it and igniting it instead of recognizing that there is now a totally new emphasis on world controls and world approaches.

The old reflexes of absolute national sovereignty are inconsistent with either peace or progress.

The extent to which the United Nations can be transformed into an effective source of world law will be the measure of security and sanity for the United States—and everyone else.

Nixon's Vietnam?

President Nixon has declared that the main objective of his administration is peace. The ABM road on which his secretary of defence is embarked, however, cannot lead to peace but only to increased tension, a tragic deferral of programs for meeting internal needs, relentless pressure on the American economy, and a world of no return. The ABM could be President Nixon's Vietnam.



What's the target?

Spend More, Get Less

By ROBERT HOTZ
Editor, Aviation Week

The U.S. and the USSR are facing a dilemma in defense expenditures. Both are spending more and getting less in the way of protection and relative stability of position in relation to each other.

In both countries, the defence dilemma has reached such proportions that it is forcing major policy changes on the two governments.

The U.S. appears to be heading for a point of diminishing return in the amount of money it can prudently pour into its defence establishment and toward a dead end in the mainstream of technological development that once gave it a significant superiority over the Soviet Union.

A decade of furious technical development has given the Soviet Union the opportunity to draw close enough to the U.S. in land- and sea-based nuclear missile power to erode the margin of measurable military significance.

* * *

The same decade of inflationary spiral has also drastically reduced the genuine military value bought by the U.S. defence budgets that have risen about $40 billion in that interval.

During the last half of this decade, the U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia has drained nearly half of the defence budget into the rat hole of Asian combat . . .

The Pentagon is from $20 to $80 billion short in financing its current requirements. This is a pretty sizable deficit even for the biggest business in the world.

It is pretty grim news for the taxpayers whose tattered shirts must be wrung further to plug the gap.

This is one of the reasons so many misgivings are now crystalizing around the Sentinel anti-ballistic missile system. It is becoming apparent that deployment of this system will add an enormous new increment — from $15 to $20 billion — to the defence budget without offering any real possibility of making the nation more secure . . .

* * *

The tremendous progress of the Soviet Union in modern military technologies has been achieved at an even higher relative cost than that in the U.S.

And, like the U.S., the Soviets have found no real military security in the mighty array of supersonic aircraft, nuclear missiles and submarine fleets.

They have been hard-pressed to keep within hailing distance of U.S. military technology. They have been unable to exert any real leverage with their military power except along the geographic borders of the Soviet Union.

These then are the internal pressures that are driving the leaders of both countries to seek some sort of accommodation to level off or limit the portions of their national budgets they must devote to military forces.

For with both countries already operating at an oppressively high level of defence expenditures, any new technological race or even a drastic expansion of present force levels could ignite economic and political explosions . . .

Rembrandt: Honesty of a Mirror

By PAUL RICHARD

Rembrandt was not a handsome man, his own brushwork attests. His nose was red and globular, his hair was frizzy, and folds of flesh hung beneath his chin.

He was capable of painting the glint of flickering candlelight on golden armor, hovering angels, trees in summer, but the subject he returned to always was his own bulbnosed fleshy face.

As a young man he practiced expressions like an actor, modelling looks of anger, horror, and surprise. Later he stopped making faces. He'd sit before his mirror, deep in concentration, recording with undeviating honesty and detachment the aging features that he saw.

* * *

Sixty of his painted likenesses survived and all of them are different. Their eyes peer into ours. Together they comprise a spiritual and psychological autobiography that has no parallel in the history of art.

Rembrandt Harmensz van Rijn was 63 when he died in Amsterdam, alone and bankrupt, in 1669. In commemoration of the 300th anniversary of his death, a special exhibition of his paintings, drawings and prints opens to the public at the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. All 23 Rembrandt oils the gallery owns will be on view through May 11.

Most are portraits. They do not seize the eye. They are dark pictures, glazed with varnish, filled with shadow and they hang in their ornate frames looking brown and sombre against the gallery's brown wood-paneled walls.

It's easy to walk by Rembrandt's works. He might have hooked the viewer with flashes of dramtatic color, but he did not bother. He was content to let the viewer discover the focal point at which his paintings work.

REMBRANDT

Seen from far away they're merely shiny rectangles of dark on dark. Seen too closely, they fall apart into incomprehensible complexities of thick, once gooey, paint. But there's a point between extremes where they click into extraordinary life.

Suddenly they read not as paintings but as persons. Seen correctly they take on the presences of the people they portray, people evoked in shadow, conjured up in darkness as in the mind's eye.

* * *

The viewer who wonders how it's done, who looks too closely, finds the illusion he's inspecting has splintered and dissolved.

Rembrandt's work does not rely on close examination. He succeeds not because he has somehow mastered secret subtleties of technique, but because his insight into humanity is accessible to everyone.

The details are unique and marvellous, but somehow they do not really matter. It's possible, of course, to examine the greenness of his shadows, the luminosity of his underpainting, the freedom of his brushstrokes or the bumpy texture of his paint, but the viewer who insists on such close study may discover his discoveries mean little. It is likely they will not bring him closer to the centre of the beauty of the work.

Rembrandt discouraged tight examination. He did not want his visitors to peer too closely at his paintings. The "smell of the colors," he cautioned them, was not good for their health.

The exhibition at the National Gallery is large. In addition to its 23 oils, it includes 14 drawings and 77 etchings and the opportunity it gives for cross-checks and comparisons is rare.

As one wanders through the exhibition, works in one medium seem to complement works executed in another. The looseness of his drawing seems, at times, to parallel the freedom of his brushwork.

The light grey underpainting, which illuminates to many of his oils by peeping through the darker pigments applied above, recalls the manner in which the whiteness of the paper illuminates the heavily inked etchings on display.

* * *

Such parallels and comparisons rise and fall, but they do not control the show. Rembrandt was a modest man. He did not follow systems. He responded always to the spirit of the face of scene or landscape that his work portrayed.

No rules, no preconceptions, not even wishful thinking distort the spontaneous honesty of his selfportraits. His gift is not explicable.

"The humility of Rembrandt's colossal genius," wrote Sir Kenneth Clark, "warns the art historian to shut up."

Take Heart, Life Is Chaos

By RICHARD NEEDHAM
The Globe and Mail

I suppose there must be people whose lives are tidy and respectable, who have savings tucked away for a rainy day, who move in a straight and careful path toward their next promotion.

Needham

There must be such people, but I don't know any of them, still less am I one myself. My life is lived in wild disorder; I'm always going broke; I have no ambitions, but drift from day to day.

That's me and that's all the people I know. They're on the side of chaos, and so they're on the side of life, because life is chaos.

These people are also on the side of humanity because humanity itself is chaos — four billion people, all of them different, all of them wanting different things, all of them holding different views, all (well, nearly all) moved far more by whims and passions than by logic or mathematics.

That's why the world is in a muddle right now, always has been and always will be.

That's why there will be more wars, more depressions, more Hitlers and Stalins, more famines and all such. The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse ride again!

A lot of people (a lot of them being Americans) refuse to believe this.

They believe in progress; they think the world can and will be made over into the image of Momsville, Ohio — by laws and treaties and schoolmarms preferably, but failing that by napalm bombs.

They believe in the good side of human nature (as one should, as one must), but their type of belief in it blinds them to the bad side.

When these people hear of students smashing the computers or Negroes looting, they are puzzled and want to know why. (Because the students and Negroes are humans, that's why, and humans have a penchant, not too far from the surface, for smashing and looting.)

●

George Santayana said during the First World War that it had one advantage; it would destroy men's belief in progress.

"This war has given you your first glimpse of the ancient, fundamental, normal state of the world, your first taste of reality. It should teach you to dismiss all your philosophies of progress or of a governing reason as the babble of dreamers who walk through one world mentally beholding another."

Perhaps the First World War did teach that generation a lesson about progress and reason being in command. Ha!

But other generations have come along since, they had to learn the lesson all over again; today's generation will have to learn it, too, and they won't get much help in learning it from those nice, clean classrooms with the nice, clean teacher up front reading the nice, clean civics textbook. Ha!

To the students, I would and do say, "You are going to see piled upon horror—bloodshed, destruction, revolution, global warfare, the works."

They tell me then that I'm a pessimist, but I say no, I am neither a pessimist nor an optimist, I simply believe that history will repeat itself, that human weakness and wickedness will repeat themselves, to the end of time.

But while these horrors are going on, in large measure because they are going on, men and women will fall in love, great discoveries will be made, great books and poems and music will be written, the human spirit will survive and so, in some fashion, will humans.

With all the odds against him (and if you think modern warfare is brutal, you should read about the wars of ancient history), man has always come through.

In the middle of the Second World War, a great American, Thornton Wilder, wrote a play along this theme, called The Skin of Our Teeth.

The hero is George Antrobus (anthropos, man) and he and his family survive all kinds of disasters with the help of the sexy, grumbling maid, Sabina — a plum part for any young actress.

At the beginning and very end of the play, Sabina makes the same speech, "The whole world's at sixes and sevens, and why the house hasn't fallen down about our ears long ago is a miracle to me."

●

When the Ice Age comes, Mrs. Antrobus says to her husband, "George, remember all the other times. When the volcanoes came right up in the front yard. And the time the grasshoppers ate every single leaf and blade of grass, and all the grain and spinach you'd grown with your own hands. And the summer there were earthquakes every night."

And Mr. Antrobus tells his wife as the play winds up, "I've never forgotten for long at a time that living is a struggle. I know that every good and excellent thing in the world stands moment by moment on the razor-edge of danger and must be fought for — whether it's a field, or a home, or a country. All I ask is the chance to build new worlds, and God has always given us that." What can I say to this but "Amen"?

Propaganda Like Commercials In Cuban Documentary Films

By RENATA ADLER
New York Times

HAVANA — From the early days of the Cuban Revolution, the priority of films, and particularly documentaries, has been so high that the government's first law dealing with cultural matters established a National Film Institute, in March, 1959.

Film crews began to move, on 25-day trips to the remotest villages.

Documentary film-makers were instructed to overcome the influence of Western "films of a commercial nature which are ethically disgusting and artistically dull," to "serve as a narrator and protagonist of the revolution" and to bind city and countryside together in a revolutionary consciousness.

Cuban Television has never been of much importance, partly because the campesinos, or peasants, do not have sets and partly because it is not suited to public places, where people gather and discussion takes place.

Televison is still steeped in propaganda of the crudest sort.

A recent program reported that the reason Israeli forces were so strong in the Middle East was that they were led by Nazi generals.

Since television, which existed before Fidel Castro's revolution, is ideologically single-minded and technically archaic, it is films that are taken with the greatest seriousness as national sources of information and of art.

The quantity of propaganda in Cuban newsreels and documentaries is roughly comparable to the amount of advertising in U.S. television — with the difference being that Cuban films advertise only one product, Socialist Revolution, and that propaganda is now intergrated in what has become a distinctively Cuban style.

Films characteristically cut, with great suddenness, from the pure study of a subject with great respect for the quality of the subject's life, to an extremely blunt and remote political point.

There is also a wider surreal and sometimes consciously comic conception of the relation between life and revolution.

Cubans say that Cuba was the only Socialist country to show Morgan, the irreverent British treatment of insanity and Marxism.

There is a kind of man who tries.

Falling off a horse is one thing. Falling with a horse is quite another. A steeplechase rider knows the hazards well, and still pushes his mount and himself to the utmost. The full shot. There is a whisky like that. A whisky that gives the full shot in taste and remarkably full flavour. Gold Stripe.
It will put 100% full, laughing taste in your mouth with every sip. And quietly leave. Without biting. If you want a little honest taste, maybe you should try Gold Stripe.
And get the full shot.

Universities Accused of Doing 'Lousy Job'

LILLOOET, (CP) — A federal government official Thursday said British Columbia's four universities are doing a "lousy job" of turning out teachers who can understand Indian children.

"We need special training for teachers who will be teaching Indians," Ray Hall, education superintendent for the Indian Affairs branch, told the North American Indian Brotherhood of B.C.

●

"We have tried to teach the teachers but this is not sufficient. The universities have let us down. . . . Not a single kindergarten teacher is being turned out. . . . This is appalling."

Hall said the Indian Affairs branch approached the B.C. Federation of Teachers "but they told us Indians represent only two per cent of the population and they do not have the time to give attention to minority groups."

●

However, he said, time is the factor in the integration of Indian children into non-Indian schools and "we would do better if we overlooked some of the breakdowns."

He added: "Our main concern is the total education of all Indian people. Our system is working and it will not be too long before the Indians take it over."

Fisheries director W. R. Hourston said regulations are needed so that sockeye can get to spawning grounds.

He quoted Indian figures as showing Indians took 115,000 sockeye from the Fraser last year and more than 45,000 in the Chilliwack area alone.

"There are not that many people in Chilliwack to catch that many fish," retorted Chief Richard Malloway of Chilliwack. "Your figures are not right. It is my business as chief to know how many fish were caught."

Chief Albert Douglas of the Rosedale Band and a Fraser River fisherman, charged that the federal fisheries department is harassing Indians and discriminating against them.

●

"An Indian fisherman who caught two salmon before the season opened last year was fined $500 and had $1,300 worth of equipment confiscated," Chief Douglas told 350 delegates.

"But the Japanese captain caught off Prince Rupert was fined only $2,500 and had all his gear and $45,000 worth of cod returned. I would fish every day of the week if I was treated like that."

Student Loads For Dayliner?

NANAIMO—The E and N Dayliner service might be given a new lease on life as a commuter train for college students here.

The Malaspina College council has asked the rail company to consider the idea and E and N management is doing so.

The regional college, first on Vancouver Island, is scheduled to open in temporary quarters here in September.

College council chairman Jack Whitlam said the council realizes the existing Dayliner schedule does not coincide with the college's proposed hours of instruction.

"But, as an example, if a Dayliner came north to arrive at Nanaimo at 8:30 a.m., carrying mostly students, it might make it economically feasible for the service to continue."

The Canadian Pacific Railway, parent company of the E and N, has petitioned the Canadian Transport Board to discontinue the Vancouver Island service.

This has been protested by several Island communities as well as the Island's associated chambers of commerce.

CHURCH GROUP GIVEN LOAN FOR HOUSING

DUNCAN — A $53,800 loan for a senior citizens' project here has been approved by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in Ottawa.

It will help build five semi-detached duplexes to accommodate 10 senior citizens in bachelor apartment units.

Tofino Man Acquitted

CALGARY (CP) — A charge of possession of LSD for the purpose of trafficking against John A. Stelling, 24 of Tofino, V.I., was dismissed Wednesday in magistrate's court.

Magistrate L. A. Justason told a preliminary hearing that possession of the drug had been proved, but he saw no evidence that the man intended to sell the drug.

Police told the hearing they found 61 tablets of LSD in the upholstery of Stelling's car.

A second preliminary hearing into a charge against Stelling of possession of marijuana was adjourned to March 25.

Action Finally On Rebuilding Problem Street

DUNCAN — The city will start immediately to reconstruct part of Government Street between Boundary Road and Centennial subdivision.

Chairman of the public works committee, Tom Kilpatrick, said today the provincial government finally approved the reconstruction, at an unspecified cost, with the city putting up $10,500 for sidwalks and curbs.

"We've been after them for four years. Government Street is a traffic hazard to school children the way it is now.

"We'll go ahead with the work immediately even if it means cutbacks somewhere else," Kilpatrick said.

'HAD VISION'

Birth And Growth Of Clinic

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

During my visit to the Handicapped Children's Clinic Margaret McClung, secretary to the board of management, took time out to tell me about the birth and growth of the program.

It started back in 1952 when a small group of parents were desperately seeking help for their children.

They went to the Pythian Cerebral Palsy Committee with their story. The result was organization of the Cerebral Palsy Clinic.

Work started with seven children, a part-time physiotherapist, speech therapist and occupational therapist, all housed in two small rooms in the Royal Jubilee Hospital annex.

★ ★ ★

The children were assessed by volunteer medical specialists and transported by volunteer firemen. And "like Topsy" the clinic grew.

Mrs. McClung says too much praise cannot be given to that original group. "They realized the need and had the vision, courage and determination to establish the program."

Today, although growth and expansion have brought some reorganization and the name has been changed to Handicapped Children's Clinic, the basic purpose remains.

The program is still geared to the education and rehabilitation of physically handicapped and mentally retarded young people from pre-school to the age of 16.

Two years after the clinic was formed so many parents were asking for help it became necessary to obtain more space in the hospital annex. As there was no provision for education of handicapped children in the regular education system, a part-time school program was started.

★ ★ ★

A women's auxiliary and a volunteer service was also organized.

It was at this time that Margaret McClung came in as a volunteer worker. She had been active with the Solarium Junior League and she was well aware of the need to help and encourage those enrolled in the clinic program.

By the end of another year the therapy staff was working full time. The school board took over responsibility for a full and a part-time teacher. The clinic spread out into more rooms in the Jubilee annex. A social worker was added to keep parents informed about programs, to counsel both parents and the handicapped and to maintain a liaison with community groups and interested individuals wishing to assist in any way.

The Greater Victoria School Board eventually took full charge of the school program. A nursery school and kindergarten were added and today there are five full-time teachers and a teacher's aide.

★ ★ ★

Six occupational, speech and physio-therapists now work at the clinic with over 100 volunteers. There is a medical advisor and a physical medicine and rehabilitation specialist on staff also a highly skilled professional advisory committee standing by in a volunteer capacity.

Easter Seal buses and the clinic's recently acquired "Sunshine Coach" manned by volunteer Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and navy firemen, transport the handicapped boys and girls. Enrolment stands at 108.

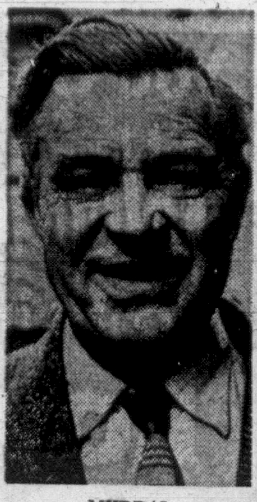
The clinic receives through the Cerebral Palsy Association of British Columbia a federal-provincial grant that covers about a third of its operative costs, exclusive of the school program. Further help now comes from the United Red Feather Appeal which it joined in 1967.

★ ★ ★

Generosity of individuals and groups, plus its own and its auxiliary's fund-raising projects add the many things not covered by the above funds "and yet are so necessary in our work," Mrs. McClung says.

In a short time now a move will be made from the army hut on the Uvic Lansdowne Campus, where the clinic has been housed for nearly three years, to a brand new building on Haro and Arbutus roads. And again the name will be changed this time to the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children.

"It's a new chapter in our story," Margaret McClung told me, "one that will see increased enrolment and the inauguration of many new and imaginative programs."



MYRDAL
. . . world authority

World Expert On Economics Here in May

One of the world's greatest authorities in economics and the social sciences will lecture in Victoria May 20.

Professor Gunnar Myrdal, a member of the faculty of the University of Stockholm since 1927, will be in the city as a guest of the University of Victoria and the Institute of Public Administrators of Canada.

City manager Dennis Young is national president of the institute.

The lecture will be the fifth in the W. Clifford Clark Memorial Lecture series. The lectures are given annually.

Myrdal won international acclaim during the 10-year period between 1947-57 when he was executive secretary of the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe.

But he became a world-known figure before that when, in 1943, his massive study "An American Dilemma: The Negro Problem and Modern Democracy" was published.

Prophetic in content the work accurately forecast the white-Negro relations now existing in the United States.

The book has often been compared to Tocqueville's classic "Democracy in America."

Last year Myrdal published his latest three-volume epic "Asian Drama" which is already being hailed as the most exhaustive study of social and economic development undertaken in modern times.

It underlines the growing crisis between Western and Far East people.

Car Wash

The Fourth Cedar Hill Boy Scout Troop will hold a car wash Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the McKenzie Esso station, corner of Quadra and McKenzie.

Coast Trail In Park Plan

The legislature Thursday gave first reading to a bill empowering the provincial cabinet to help the federal government create the first national marine park in B.C. on a bigger scale than expected at Long Beach.

The bill itself forecast in the throne speech and introduced by Recreational Minister Kiernan, allows the provincial cabinet to deed its Wickaninish Park and other lands to Ottawa and share the cost of buying private property to fill out the park.

Kiernan, in an interview, revealed the ultimate development will not only include the Long Beach area around Tofino but also the 35-mile stretch of the old West Coast Trail running from Port Renfrew to Bamfield and the dozen islands of the Effingham group in Barkley Sound.

The islands and surrounding 14,000 acres of water would be created as the second stage and the old lifesaving trail for wrecked mariners would be the final stage of the project.

First stage, which should be ready by the 1971 centennial celebration, will cost about $4 million in new property purchases split 50-50 between the federal and provincial governments.

The first stage will include Long Beach itself stretching inland to Kennedy Lake, largest on Vancouver Island, to provide visitors with a choice of freshwater and saltwater sports.

The federal government authority to participate on this basis and negotiations for completing an agreement on the proposal, urged by the B.C. government for the past four years, is expected to begin immediately after the session.

Student Teachers Meet Future Employers

Student teachers in their graduating year at the University of Victoria and school trustees from 78 of the province's 81 school districts mingled in the Uvic gymnasium Thursday.

The annual Orientation Day meeting is designed to give education students a chance to learn something of the job opportunities across the province. Trustees seek to interest graduates in coming to teach in their school districts next September.

A similar day for graduating teachers at UBC is being held today. Trustee rules prohibit hiring of teachers during Orientation Days.

Submarine Towed Home

A fuel pump failure and engine trouble caused the navy's newly acquired submarine HMCS Rainbow to be towed back to Esquimalt harbor Thursday.

The navy said the fuel pump stopped operating late Wednesday night and a few hours later there was a minor malfunction in the submarine's second engine.

Rather than risk further damage to the engine, Rainbow requested tow from the destroyer escort HMCS St. Croix at about 6:45 a.m. and was brought 38 miles back to the harbor.

Gorge Society Meets

Gorge Road Hospital Society will hold its annual meeting Wednesday, March 26 at 8 p.m. at the hospital. The meeting is open to the public.

Small Gain at Toronto

In light trading the Toronto Stock Exchange posted a small advance today.

The market opened mixed, dipped after two hours but picked up in later dealings.

The New York market closed lower today. Trading was moderate near the close.

AT TORONTO in industrials, Investors Overseas was up 2½ to 121, Carrier Shoe 1½ to 16½ and Great Lakes Paper 1½ to 28. Neon was down 1⅜ to 29½.

Dynasty gained ¾ to 15⅝ and Endako ¾ to 12½. Hollinger was off ¾ to 31¾.

Asamera rose 1½ to 35½ and Great Plains ⅞ to 31. Charter Oil dropped 2 to 10½.

AT NEW YORK prices near the close included: Great Western Financial, off ⅛ at 26½; General American Oil, off ¼ at 64¼; Roan Selection Trust, up 1 at 13; Occidental Petroleum, off 1⅜ at 42⅜; Natomas, up ¼ at 59⅜.

AT MONTREAL prices were mixed during moderately active trading today.

Banks, unable to hold the lead gained Thursday, following an increase in prime lending rates, slipped slightly.

Highlighting gains were Consolidated Textiles, up 1¼ to 15½; MacKinnon, 2 to 16, and Industrial Acceptance ⅞ to 26⅞.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Editor: G. S. Kent

Royal Trust

The Royal Trust Co. has increased to 6 per cent from 5½ per cent interest paid to depositors on the minimum monthly balances in savings accounts, effective May 1.

Free chequing privileges in chequing accounts will be continued but interest on the minimum half-yearly balances in these accounts will be discontinued.

Chartered banks — Toronto-Dominion, Montreal, Nova Scotia and Royal — are putting their savings account interest up ¼ of 1 per cent to 5½ per cent, following an increase in the prime lending rate.

Contract

A $79,745 contract for site development at the West Vancouver Fisheries Research Station has been awarded to Jensen and Johnsen Landscape Contractors, Burnaby.

Boeing Co.

The sales total of Boeing Co.'s 747 airliner, now in its second stage of tests, grew to 175 Wednesday with an order by Continental Airlines for its fourth super jet.

The plane will be delivered in 1971. The previously ordered aircraft are due for delivery next year.

A Boeing spokesman said 28 airlines have ordered 747s.

Oil Strike

A major oil strike has been made 33 miles off the New Zealand coast in a record ocean depth of 360 feet.

Oil is reported to be flowing freely from a 11,500-foot hole drilled by an offshore rig owned by Shell-British Petroleum-Todd Oil Services Limited.

The managing director of the consortium, David Tudhope, described the strike as "very encouraging."

Thomson Papers

Thomson Newspapers Ltd. had consolidated net profit of $9.1 million or 50 cents a share in 1968 compared with $5.7 million or 37 cents a share the previous year.

The figures represented earnings from the company's Canadian and United States' operations, principally the 61 daily and 24 weekly newspapers it owns.

A main reason for the increase was the acquisition in December, 1967, of the Brush-Moore group of papers in the U.S.

Polymer Corp.

Polymer Corporation Ltd., of Sarnia, a synthetic rubber producer owned by the Canadian government, Friday signed a technical co-operation agreement with the Soviet Committee for Science and Technology.

Details of the agreement were not known but the Soviets may be interested in buying a coplete synthetic rubber plant from Polymer.

Polymer did a $2 million business with the Russians last year.

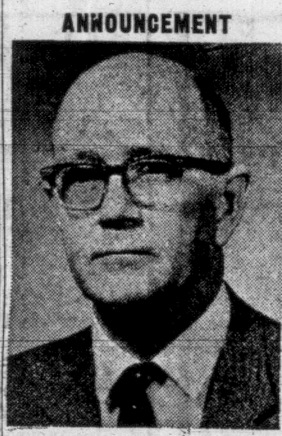
OCEAN CEMENT
ANNOUNCEMENT



R. C. MUIRHEAD

Mr. Haskins, Vice-President Engineering and Production, is pleased to announce the appointment of Mr. R. C. Muirhead as Manager, Special Projects.

Mr. Muirhead has been Works Manager of the Bamberton cement plant for 6 years. In his new position, he will take charge of a major expansion programme which has recently started at the Bamberton plant.

Container Obsolescence May Be Here

MONTREAL (CP) — Guy Beaudet, Montreal port director, warned Thursday that the federal government should stop building "white elephants" in its harbors.

He suggested that containerization in cargo shipping may already be obsolete.

Mr. Beaudet told a joint symposium of the Montreal Port Council and the McGill University Industrial Relations Centre that a grain elevator built in Montreal harbor at a cost of $16,000,000 was only used at one-quarter capacity.

●

"That ultra-modern elevator illustrates the danger of building costly harbor installations without prior consultation with private entreprises by the port authority," he said.

However, Mr. Beaudet then announced that two new piers designed to handle oil tankers would be built in the harbor at a cost of $6,000,000. Details of the project would be released at a later date.

He added that the port management was negotiating for the construction of container terminals with two shipping companies which would rent them on a long-term lease basis.

●

Mr. Beaudet said that even though container ships—carrying easily-handled containers instead of loose cargo—would possibly increase in numbers and total 60 per cent of all ships within the next 10 years, the new method may already be obsolete.

In the long run he had more faith in "roll-on, roll-off" ships which permit the entrance of trucks directly into the holds for loading and unloading.

Both containerization and "roll-on, roll-off" ships require costly harbor installations, he said.

●

W. J. Stenason, vice-president of CP Rails, told the symposium that stiff competition for ports would come from aircraft.

Ian Watson, Liberal member of Parliament for Chateaugai-Huntingdon-Laprairie, said Montreal harbor should concentrate on "general cargo" since future giant ships would not be able to get up the St. Lawrence River as far as Montreal.

"It would be illusory to think Montreal will be visited by the giant oil and bulk carriers of tomorrow," he said.

"There isn't enough water in the upper St. Lawrence channel or in Montreal harbor to handle these sea-going monsters."

Bell Meet A Clanger

MONTREAL (CP) — Shareholder complaints of meagre dividends and a lagging market price of the stock turned Bell Canada's annual meeting Thursday into the noisiest ever.

"Traditionally, most of our shareholders have been interested in cash dividends, but there is evidence that such views are changing in today's financial climate," said Marcel Vincent, board chairman.

The meeting lasted 2½ hours.

The company now pays common dividends at the rate of $2.50 a year and the last increase was in July, 1966.

In reply to shareholder critics, Mr. Vincent said:

"A higher level of earnings and an appropriately designed capital structure should permit improved dividend payments and at the same time allow a greater measure of retained earnings to produce growth for the common shareholders.

"Dividends can only be raised as earnings increase. In the long run, the proportion of earnings retained for reinvestment will tend to increase."

Indian Copper Claim Closer to Settlement

VANCOUVER (CP) — A lawyer for an Indian mining company said Thursday night that "agreement in principle" has been reached in a dispute between Bethlehem Copper Corp. Ltd. and the Indian company.

William Worrall's statement came after Chief Forrest Walkem of the Cook's Ferry Indian band said the band "has not made any agreement with anyone and certainly not with Bethlehem Copper."

Conflicting stories arose after Patrick Reynolds, Bethlehem President, said in Bethlehem's quarterly report Wednesday that a mutually satisfactory agreement had been reached with the band.

At issue is Bethlehem's attempt to have its claims registered on a square-mile reserve owned by the Cook's Ferry band in an area where copper ore has been found, 120 miles northeast of Vancouver.

Bethlehem claims in the Highland Valley area abut the reserve on three sides and the company is trying in court to force provincial officials to register its claims on the reserve.

BAND PROTEST

Leaders of the band at Spence's Bridge protested last week that giving rights to outside companies would frustrate Indian efforts to set up their own company, Dark Hawk Mines.

Then, on Wednesday, Reynolds said in his report: "Recent" discussions with representatives of the Indian band have resolved the problem to their satisfaction and ours."

Next, Chief Walkem, who did not attend the meeting at which the agreement was said to have been reached, protested in an interview that the band had reached agreement with nobody.

Finally, Worrall, lawyer for Dark Hawk Mines, said: "We met as Reynolds said but, as I understand it, the deal was not complete. I was to draft an agreement . . . for further discussion.

"I would say we made an agreement in principle on behalf of Dark Hawk. We are not at all averse to discussing the situation with Bethlehem."

DRAFT DEAL

Reynolds said he had understood a deal had been made and that Worrall was to draw up an agreement for formalizing things. "So I reported that we had reached an agreement."

No details of the so-called agreement were given.

In B.C. Supreme Court chambers Wednesday, Bethlehem sought a writ to force provincial officials to register its claims. The case was adjourned to next Thursday.

Tax Tips

By P. J. KELLY
Victoria Taxation Office

If your question is not answered here or in the department's tax guide, telephone 382-2173 or write National Revenue, Taxation, Victoria.

Q. I file on a T1 Short return. Is there any change in this year's form I should watch out for?

A. No, not really. Except for the color change, this year's T1 Short form is almost identical to last year's. If, however, you have to use the Detailed Calculation Sheet in completing your return, you will find one small extra section to be completed in calculating the 3 per cent tax surcharge implemented last spring.

Q. My father depends on me for support and I have claimed an exemption for him for years. Last year he started receiving the Guaranteed Income Supplement and my claim was disallowed. Why is that, and will it be the same this year?

A. A person may not be claimed as a dependant if he has an income of more than $950.00. While it was possible for your father to receive the Old Age Pension and still qualify as your dependant if he had virtually no other income, receipt of the Guranteed Income Supplement would raise his income to an amount well in excess of the $950.00 maximum and he would, therefore, no longer qualify. It will be the same this year if he continued to receive the Guaranteed Income Supplement.

GINTER TESTING ALBERTA

CALGARY (CP) — Tartan Brewing Ltd. of Prince George will make a formal application to the Alberta government next week for a licence to construct a $4 million brewery in the province, president Ben Ginter said Thursday.

But before building the brewery, Ginter said in an interview, Tartan wants to sell some of its brands in Alberta for a short period to test market reaction. The B.C. firm also wants to determine provincial policy in regard to location of new industries.

Ginter said Tartan also plans to build breweries in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

He said the Metropolitan Corporation of Greater Winnipeg has rejected an application to rezone city land for a brewery, and Tartan is considering a move to Brandon.

Ginter said that other factors that have to be considered before a plant is built in Alberta are domestic production of canned beer, provincial policy on non-returnable bottles and the sharing of markets with established producers.

Socialite Denies Phoney Kidnapping Claim

VANCOUVER (CP) — Socialite Dallis Boultbee denied in court Thursday that her kidnapping last year was a fake, arranged by herself, as claimed Wednesday by her accused abductor.

"I was terrorized all day," she told prosecutor William Craig after being recalled by the crown to answer Wilfred Redlac's claim that the kidnapping last May 28 was a phoney.

Redlac testified Wednesday in B.C. Supreme Court that he assisted John Wasylenchuk in the kidnapping. He said Wasylenchuk, now dead, told him Mrs. Boultbee arranged for the kidnapping and paid $5,000 for it.

Redlac, who said he'd met Wasylenchuk in jail, quoted Wasylenchuk as saying Mrs. Boultbee ordered the kidnapping to get a property settlement from her estranged husband.

When Mrs. Boultbee, bound and blindfolded, was taken from her home, a note was left demanding $1,000,000 ransom from her husband, wealthy realtor E. Leonard Boultbee.

Mrs. Boultbee testified Thursday that, after she was taken to a bush area in Vancouver, she talked with a man she called Joe, who later was identified as Redlac.

"I asked him whether this was his first offence and he said yes. I told him that he was a very foolish boy and that he was up against a very serious charge.

"I told him that if he gave himself up to police I would tell them that I persuaded him as a first offender to do so and that I would do all I could for him."

HIGHWAY PICKETED BY ANGRY MOTHERS

THRUMS (CP)—Mothers at this community 18 miles west of Nelson began picketing along Highway 3A Thursday in an attempt to get the speed limit lowered to 45 miles an hour.

The group, which said it is concerned about safety of schoolchildren, said it will block traffic on the highway if no action is taken. Current speed limit is 50 miles an hour. It was reduced from 60 miles an hour last week.

MPs Attempt to Keep Newfoundland's Only Train on Tracks

OTTAWA (CP) — Friends of the "Newfie Bullet" switched tracks in the Commons transport committee Thursday in their attempt to keep Newfoundland's only passenger train out of the last roundhouse.

Canadian National Railways obtained permission from the Canadian transport commission last September to abandon rail passenger service in the province this April and replace it with buses.

The Bullet—properly known as the Caribou—is Newfoundland's only passenger train.

Since it served most of the province's long-distance and lesser transportation needs during the years when roads were scarce and unfriendly, it is regarded with emotion.

Its parliamentary defenders, mainly Conservative MPs from Newfoundland, have disclaimed sentiment and concentrated on the folly of discontinuing a service that, they contend, the islanders want and need.

But CNR officials produced figures Thursday to show Newfoundlanders have been flocking to the new buses and deserting the Bullet.

The focus of the attack immediately switched to accusations that the CNR has neglected the Bullet in order to make it less popular.

R. T. Vaughan, CNR vice-president and executive secretary, tabled figures to show the buses were outdrawing the train by more than a four-to-one margin as of last month.

James A. McGrath (PC—St. John's East) counter-attacked with a statement that the ratio means nothing unless one knows how many passenger seats were offered.

Mr. Vaughan said that about 70 per cent of the available bus seats were occupied during February, compared to approximately 30 per cent on the train.

Ambrose H. Peddle (PC—Grand Falls-White Bay-Labrador) said passengers get only one little pat of butter on the Bullet dining car, in contrast to the ample supply given on CNR trains elsewhere.

Paper placemats had replaced linen in the dining cars, there were threadbare sheets in the berths, and the flowers and games provided on other CNR trains were noticeably absent.

Mr. Vaughan tabled a letter sent to the transport commission last week, indicating rail passenger service will be continued past the April 15 deadline until it is certain that the replacement bus service is adequate. The CNR had no intention of continuing it for an indefinite period, however.

The letter said it is not expected the Bullet will operate past June 15.

The company says abandonment of the passenger service will save it $1,000,000 a year.

Before the Magistrate

A truck driver who stumbled across a bag of marijuana in the bush led to a police stakeout and an arrest, central court was told Thursday.

Allan Roy Flynn, 18, of 5187 Pat Bay Highway, was charged with possession of the drug for the purpose of trafficking. He elected trial by county court judge at an earlier appearance.

During a preliminary hearing Howie Hilton said he was working on Piedmont Avenue Feb. 13 hauling dirt for Saanich municipality.

When he stopped his truck to take a break he noticed footprints in the snow leading to the side of the road. Following them, he came across a large green garbage bag in a clearing.

"I kicked it, I thought it was one of the guys' lunches," he said.

Inside he found a clear plastic bag which held 20 smaller bags, all of which he turned over to police.

Det. Murray MacArthur said he and Const. John G. O'Neil received the bag from Hilton, and O'Neil returned it to the green bag which had been left under the tree. A green dye was put on the outside bag.

MacArthur said he waited alone behind a tree and about half an hour later Flynn got out of a car and approached the clearing.

He said he bent down several times as if looking for something. On a third occasion Flynn's foot hit the bag and MacArthur told him to stop where he was.

Brian Prittle, driver of the car Flynn was in, said he had no idea the marijuana was there. He said he never smoked the drug.

On cross-examination by defence counsel Cal Becker, he admitted telling the lawyer in his office earlier he had used marijuana, hashish and LSD. He said the true story was the one he told in court, that he never had.

He also disclaimed ownership of the marijuana and denied he intended to sell it to Flynn.

Flynn was committed for trial in a higher court. Bail was set at $1,000.

Patricia Wyman, 19, of 1749 Rockland, was given probation and ordered to post a $250 one-year good behavior bond.

She pleaded guilty a week ago to shoplifting several sweaters and a purse from The Bay. She said she did it because her friends said "why pay when you could steal."

"You haven't advanced yourself the slightest and you have a criminal record," Magistrate William Ostler told the girl.

He said it was a pity she marred her record because people passed the word around it was an easy thing to do.

William Porter, 3800 Palo Alto, was fined $150 for driving while his licence was suspended.

Paul Williams and Abel Joe, both of Duncan, were fined $350 and $300 for impaired driving. Donald Gillis, 1056 Foul Bay, was jailed for 14 days on the same charge. He had a previous conviction, court heard.

Field Trip

The younger section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Douglas and Hillside for a field trip to Taylor Road, Metchosin.

Experts Disagree On Fallout Danger to Canada

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — The possibility of hydrogen bomb burst over Canada has been reduced by President Nixon's revamping of the Sentinel defensive missile system against nuclear warheads from China or the Soviet Union.

Just what damage would be inflicted on North Americans and property is a controversial subject.

As described by Nixon and defence department officials, the revised defence system will be on guard south, east, west and north rather than being concentrated solely on anticipation of a trans-polar route via Canada.

But the first two defensive missile installations are scheduled for Montana and North Dakota by 1973, looking across Western Canada.

In a system estimated to cost $6,000,000,000 or $7,000,000,000, missiles with a range of about 40 miles, called Spartans, will be the first line of protection for two Minutemen offensive rocket systems buried in deep concrete silos.

Speedier missiles called Sprints, with a range of about 35 miles, would play a backup role.

Nuclear fallout and damage from use of the Sprints would be heavy, officials freely concede.

NO FALLOUT DANGER?

But it is the official view that Spartan warheads would engage attacking warheads at heights of 75 miles with minimal blast, burn or fallout. Some prominent scientists say that simply isn't true.

One Sentinel system is planned for Grand Forks, N.D., 9 miles south of the Manitoba border and about 155 miles due south of Winnipeg. The other will be at Malmstrom Air Force Base in the Great Falls area of Montana, 115 miles south of Alberta and about 165 miles southeast of Lethbridge.

David Packard, deputy U.S. defence secretary, explained that the two bases will be used to work bugs out of the system and that it was desirable to do such testing in isolated country.

There are some who think that Nixon's revision of the Sentinel system was largely political and that there is a good chance a settlement with the Soviet Union on an arms freeze, or technological change, will make the Sentinel system obsolete before it is fully developed.

Twelve other missiles bases were scheduled.

In the original plan announced in September, 1967, defence department testimony before a congressional committee showed the range of the Spartan missiles covering Canadian territory in five of 10 planned installations.

REPORT WAS DENIED

At that time, published reports by The Associated Press and the Washington Post quoted defence officials as saying it would be desirable to have a Canadian base and also that Canada had been asked for such a base.

The state department quickly denied that and the Canadian government views the American plan as a unilateral project outside the continental defence commitments under NORAD.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday that Canada has not received any request from Washington to place the anti-ballistic missiles in Canada.

He also told the Commons that he would discuss the ABM system in his talks with Nixon in Washington next week, but said he doubted whether Canada would be ready a week from now to take a final position on the U.S. announcement.

The longer-range Spartan is the only missile that can engage enemy warheads over Canada.

Its range of about 400 miles is calculated on the "slant"—the distance from launch to enemy warhead. Long-range radar would pick up that enemy warhead soon after it emerged over the far-distant horizon and other radar would beam the Spartan to its target.

The Spartan's two-megaton warhead is designed to explode at close quarters, in theory defusing the target—so that there would not be a second explosion—by "cooking" the attacking warhead with x-rays, heat and blast despite protective shielding.

'The Notion Of an Absolute'

An authority on the European tradition in philosophy will deliver a public lecture at the University of Victoria, Monday.

Prof. J. N. Findlay, formerly of King's College, London, and now on the Yale faculty, will speak on "The Notion of an Absolute."

His lecture appearance has been arranged by Uvic's department of philosophy and will be in Room 167 of the Elliot Building at 8 p.m.

PRISONERS GRADUATE

MONTREAL (CP) — Officials of the federal training centre for young offenders in nearby Laval announced Thursday that a year-long computer training course for prisoners has been a success and will probably spread across Canada.

The course at Laval has so far produced four graduates who have found jobs "on the outside," a news conference was told. Allen J. MacLeod, commissioner of penitentiary services, said the computer program was initiated by Canadair Ltd.

'$100,000 a Year More in Ontario'

Premier Bennett told the legislature Thursday he could make $100,000 more a year if he went to work in Ontario.

NDP MLAs immediately chorused they'd pass the hat and chip in to send him there.

The exchange came as Dr. Ray Parkinson (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) charged the government was unable to recruit psychiatrists for its mental health program because its salary scale was $6,000 lower than in Ontario.

"I'd make $100,000 more a year if I went to Ontario," Premier Bennett burst out, leaping from his seat.

(He gets $41,000 in salary, travelling expenses and MLA allowances, according to this year's estimates.)

"We'll pass the hat," retorted Opposition Leader Robert Strachan. "It would be a good investment for the province to send you."

Parkinson added: "I'll contribute the first $1,000 myself."

Bennett leaped to his feet with a reply but it was drowned out as the opposition MLAs roared at him to let Parkinson finish his speech.

How Many Lawnmowers Have You Bought in the Last 30 Years?

From Popular Gardening Magazine — England

FINE OLD ATCO MOWERS STILL IN USE

Mr. Charles H. Sykes, Kent, who sent us a photograph of his 1927 Atco 14 in. petrol-engined machine, which his father acquired and which he is still using regularly with full satisfaction.

But there was an even older Atco, still to be revealed. It came to light in a letter from Mrs. D. Spencer-Phillips, Great Baddow, Essex. "My son uses today a 1921 Atco motor mower which, except for the three years of the war when we could not get petrol, has worked wonderfully and regularly all those years, mowing a good expanse of lawn each week," she writes. "He says it cuts better than any newer machine he has tried."

Right here in Victoria there are many Atco mowers that have been in use for over 25 years.

Clinic Destroyed by Neglect

By JOHN SLINGER

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark was bombarded for 2½ hours Thursday with demands for revitalization of the provincial forensic clinic in Burnaby for sexual psychopaths.

He shrugged off the arguments of a psychiatrist, lawyer and two social workers among NDP MLAs and explained the government is decentralizing all its mental health services.

"I don't think we can have it both ways," said Loffmark.

"We can't try to develop a community-based mental health program and at the same time develop another centralized provincial institution."

He said the developing regional mental health units should be able to provide forensic services throughout the province.

PAY FOR TREATMENT

Loffmark added that the provincial medicare plan will pay for treatment of disturbed persons by private psychiatrists.

Norman Levi (NDP — Vancouver South) a social worker and representing the same riding as Loffmark, accused the minister of "Giving us the biggest load of poppycock I've heard yet.

"We've had a succession of killings in this province by sex offenders" because there is no treatment centre.

"I warn you Mr. Minister, it could be a year from now but there will be on your head the lives of children because people are walking aroung with seriously disturbed minds."

Tom Berger (NDP — Vancouver-Burrard) said the forensic clinic was started by concerned psychiatrists and then taken over by the government "which now has destroyed it with neglect."

He said the staff positions of director, psychiatrists and psychologists have been vacant for a year without government action, leaving a single social worker and a clerk in the building.

NOWHERE TO GO

Both he and David Barrett (NDP — Coquitlam) said sex offenders are sent to jail by the court because there is nowhere to send them for treatment.

They said the offenders serve their time and are released into the community "sicker than they were before."

Dr. Ray Parkinson (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said the government's failure to staff the clinic is an example of its total failure to coming to grips with mental health problems.

Loffmark replied that there could be a sincere division of opinion on the best way to meet the situation.

But he said a fair test of the argument that the Social Credit government was to blame for sex offences was to examine the experiences of other administrations, such as the socialist governments of Britain and Sweden.

"We get a whole series of lurid sex offences over there and I wonder if the members opposite would like to lay the blame for that on the doorstep of the socialist governments over there."

'CRISIS CENTRES'

Levi, saying "it's clear the minister doesn't know what we're talking about," added that a "fantastic" number of disturbed people are coming into agencies in need of help.

He said the numbers of people who phone radio "hot-line" shows is indicative of the number of people who want nothing more than someone to talk to.

He said there is need in the province for "crisis centres," and he suggested even storefront operations would be helpful. These could be staffed with people who could help.

Levi said the majority of people working in the field now realize there are no adequate services available.

He was talking about services for the people who have day to day jobs but have problems.

He was not talking about the criminal, "but the person who has a problem and the only way he can get some kind of attention — and I'm not talking about treatment — is to get arrested. He then turns into a criminal."

WHAT'S A 'YANKEE?'

VANCOUVER (UPI) — To avoid any embarrassment for those Canadians visiting the United States this year, the B.C. Automobile Association Thursday issued a statement defining the word "Yankee."

"The word 'Yankee' implies different things to different people," the BCAA explained.

"To foreigners a Yankee is an American. To an American a Yankee is a northerner. To a northerner a Yankee is a New Englander a Yankee is a Vermonter. To a Vermonter a Yankee is a person who eats pie for breakfast.

'Showcase Challenge' With Pros

Door Unlocks to Professionals For World Hockey Participation

STOCKHOLM (CP)—A Canadian proposal allowing professionals to play in the 1970 world hockey tournament has cleared a major hurdle on its way to probable adoption this summer.

A majority of members on the executive council of the International Ice Hockey Federation affirmed in secret ballot here support for the Canadian plan that would allow each country in the championship pool "up to six" non-amateurs.

The IHF is the governing body of world amateur hockey. A source close to the IIHF said the vote was 5 to 2 in favor. The next step will be for the IIHF Congress, meeting next July in Switzerland, to approve it.

The Swedish member, strongly opposed to the Canadian move, said in a newspaper article that the limited number of reinstated professionals would be a goalie, two defencemen and three forwards.

Canada wants a showcase team to challenge for the title when next year's championship is played on home grounds—in Winnipeg and Montreal. The title left Canada in 1961, and hasn't returned. Russia has held it for six of the last seven years.

Without the pros, the futility of such a goal is obvious after watching Canada's national team perform here.

The Canadians were held to a 1-0 margin for two periods Thursday night by a United States squad that can't pass or shoot.

Canada won 5-0, but the team's ragged play and listlessness brought a flood of devastating criticism.

Writers Didn't Feel Like Bragging

Others on their way out snarled such comments as:

"This will set synchronized swimming back 20 years."

"The Canadians were not keeping time to the music."

And when a Canadian player was waved to the penalty box for slashing, one critic fumed:

"Slashing, my foot. It should be for loitering."

The Canadian team has broken even so far in the tournament with two wins and two losses. The Nationals lost to Russia 7-1 and Czechoslovakia 6-1 but found Finland an easy target, 5-1.

Today, the Canadians are up against the fired-up Swedes who are looking for second place in the double round-robin tournament that ends Sunday, March 30. Sweden upset Czechoslovakia 2-0 Wednesday.

All eyes, of course, will be on the main game of the day between Russia and Czechoslovakia, the first meeting between the two countries since the Soviet-led invasion of the Czech land last August.

It was the Czechs who snapped a 38-game Soviet unbeaten string in the Olympics last year with a 5-4 win. Russia took the title with the help of the Swedes, who tied the Czechs 2-2. That tie cost Czechoslovakia the gold and the country finished second for the silver.

Czechs Capable of Ignoring Form

The Russians defeated the Swedes here 4-2, and with the Swedish win over the Czechs, form should make the Soviets decided favorites today. But form often goes by the boards when the two Communist hockey powers clash.

Russia lays its perfect 4-0 won-lost record on the line against the Czechs in the battle for first place. Russia leads with eight points. Sweden and Czechoslovakia, 3-1, are tied for second with six, and Canada, 2-2, is fourth with four.

Finland and the United States, with four losses each, are at the bottom. One of the two will be relegated to the B group next year, meaning no championship challenge.

One bright spot in the Canadian picture has been the showing of the "kid line." Terry Caffery, Steve King and Richie Bayes, juniors last season with Toronto Marlboros, is the best line, at least offensively, at the moment.

Jack Bownass, veteran defenceman and playing coach of the team's eastern section based in Ottawa, said after Caffery, King and Bayes each scored against the United States:

"They're a real threat when they have that puck in the opponents' end. But when we're in our own end, they forget to check."

Fran Huck provided the first goal early in the first period. Caffery, King and Bayes scored during a four-goal flurry in the third period and Ted Hargreaves got another.

The shutout went to Wayne Stephenson, who has been one of the busiest goalies in the tournament. Stephenson turned aside 33 shots while his opposite, Mike Curran, totalled 30 saves.

Effort Against U.S. 'Worst Yet'

Jack handled the press and admitted the Nationals' showing against the U.S. "was the worst game we've played."

"The U.S. wanted to beat us. They always do. Our boys didn't take them for granted. We had a good third period against them, but everybody has.... It's hard to assess our club's ability—maybe we'll know better after the game with Sweden."

Johnny Mayasich, the U.S. coach who filled in at defence for one of his injured regulars, said Canada "is the weakest team we've played." And the Americans have played them all except Finland.

"It was a real sloppy game."

The Americans have yet to beat Canada in a world tournament, and the post-war record now stands at 14 straight wins for Canada. The U.S. defeated Canada twice in the Olympics, and Mayasich was a member of the 1956 U.S. Olympic team that upset Kitchener Waterloo Dutchmen 4-1. Mayasich got three goals.

FINAL TWO MAKE BOSTON BLUE

Holding two pucks which entered Boston Bruins' net and gave him National Hockey League record for most goals in season is Chicago Black Hawk ace Bobby Hull. Hull fired Hawks' final two goals to bring season total to 55 and fashion a 5-5 tie at Boston. Coach Billy Reay emphasizes the "fives" with fingers. (AP Wirephoto.

Fancy Touches Bob Up When Records Broken

By Canadian Press

Just about everybody in the National Hockey League this season, it seems, is setting records. So Bobby Hull and Bobby Orr decided to spice up their records with a little drama.

The two swapped record-breaking goals in the dying minutes as Chicago Black Hawks and Boston Bruins played to a 5-5 tie Thursday night.

Hull collected his 54th and 55th goals of the season for Chicago at 17:19 and 17:32 of the final period while the Bruins were shorthanded. The record for most goals in a season had been set by Hull in 1965-66 when he scored 54.

Orr scored his 21st goal of the season with one second left to shatter the record for most goals in a season by a defenceman. It had been 20 by Flash Hollett with Detroit Red Wing in 1944-45.

And Orr picked the ideal night—it was his 21st birthday.

In other NHL action, Montreal Canadiens downed Pittsburgh Penguins 5-3, Los Angeles Kings topped Detroit Red Wings 4-2 and Philadelphia Flyers defeated Minnesota North Stars 5-2.

SETS ROOKIE MARK

Danny Grant of Minnesota also joined the growing list of record-breakers by scoring one goal to bring his season's point-total to 63. That set a record for the most points in a seaeon by a rookie, surpassing the 62 compiled by Gus Bodnar with Toronto in 1943-44.

Scoring the other Boston goals were Ron Murphy, with two, John McKenzie and Derek Sanderson. Phil Esposito picked up an assist for the Bruins to bring his point total to 120, 23 more than any player in NHL history has ever accumulated in one season.

The tie left the Bruins four points back of first-place Montreal in the Eastern Division. Last-place Chicago is nine points away from a playoff berth, and has only five games left.

FELL FOUR POINTS

Grant's record-setting goal was the only bright spot for Minnesota, which fell four points back of Philadelphia in the struggle for the fourth and final playoff position in the Western Division.

A gathering of 16,827 at Montreal saw Canadien goals go to Mickey Redmond, Bobby Rousseau, Claude Provost, Jacques Lemaire and John Ferguson. Billy Dea scored two for Pittsburgh and Lou Angotti one.

The two points gained by the victory moved the Canadiens within two of the record 101 picked up by Detroit in 1950-51.

LETHBRIDGE DECLARES THREE REPLACEMENTS

GENE CARR

LETHBRIDGE — Lethbridge Sugar Kings, who open the best-of-seven Memorial Cup series against Victoria Cougars tonight, have picked up three players from other Alberta Junior Hockey League teams as reinforcements.

Named as replacements were forwards Darryl Goss of Calgary Cowboys, Wayne Zuk of Red Deer Rustlers and Larry Bignell of Edmonton Movers. Red Deer goaltender Bob Reid also was declared as the team's standby goalie.

Victoria has picked up right-winger Reg Cherenko and defenceman Dwayne Pentland of Penticton and centre Gene Carr of Kelowna.

Wakeham Trails Leader by Five

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Jerry Heard, 21, who quit college last fall and decided to join the $6,000,000 pro golf tour, popped up among the leaders after the first round of the $100,000 Greater Jacksonville Open Thursday.

He fired a 68, four under par, which placed him in a tie with six others, just one stroke back of pace-setting Lionel Hebert, the 41-year-old veteran from Lafayette, La.

Top Canadian was Al Balding of Toronto, at 70. He was followed by Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver, who had a 71.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg had an even-par 72 while Bill Wakeham of Victoria shot 73.

In the 68 bracket with Heard were Larry Mowry, Dave Stockton, Dewitt Weaver, Bob Smith, Ray Floyd and Gardner Dickenson.

In the first 11 tournaments this season, there have been 11 different winners. The last three victors have been Bob Shaw, Ken Still, Jim Colbert, none of whom had won a tour tournament before.

Oak Bay Faces Delbrook; Vics Meet MEI in Semis

(Special to the Times)

VANCOUVER—Some say the really big one comes tonight when Oak Bay tangles with Delbrook. But the Victoria Totems know better.

It is the sudden prominence of the Totems that makes the B.C. high school basketball tournament so interesting for Vancouver Island fans. They knew Oak Bay was still number one—or thereabouts—but they have probably entertained some doubts about Victoria.

There can be no doubt now. Victoria demolished John Oliver 47-33 here Thursday in the quarter-finals, putting toether a game so complete that JO was handcuffed throughout.

Meanwhile, the Bays were clipping the Queen Elizabeth Royals 46-39 in a gruelling dogfight that wasn't decided until the last two minutes.

It left a pair of brilliant match-ups for tonight's semi-finals. Victoria goes in at 7:45 with the Mennonite Educational Institute Eagles, who took a sensational 55-53 verdict from Prince Rupert in double overtime. Oak Bay squares off at 9:15 with the Hilltoppers of Delbrook, who continued to impress with an overwhelming 64-42 win over Windermere.

Oak Bay and Delbrook. The smart money says that one is for the title, that the final will be anti-climactic. But those who remember 1966—the year Vic High chopped down the favored Bays to become number one—expect a donnybrook if the Island clubs get together in the 15,000-seat Pacific Coliseum for Saturday night's wrap-up.

It is not an unlikely possibility. The Totems played a brilliant game against John Oliver—rebounding aggressively, scrapping on defence and running with far more eagerness than anyone here would have suspected from Porky Andrews' crew.

"We don't have the ball-handlers to play a control game," Porky says, grinning, and you have to figure he's putting you on. Ball-handlers? They were there Thursday by the truck-full.

Mulcahy's Performance Brilliant

The Totems rolled to an 11-5 first quarter lead against the Jokers and it was an ominous indication of what was still to come. Running their patterns, cutting off centre Dave Mulcahy, they kept picking each other loose for percentage 15-foot jumpers and Mike Chornoby, who finished with 12 points, and Gordon Hoshal, who had 10, just bombed away.

Mulcahy was in with Jim Kilpatrick, JO's 6-11 centre, and he came out far the best—despite the six-inch height disadvantage. Andrews described it as "fundamental defence," and it was an apt appraisal. Hanging tough, Mulcahy blocked Kilpatrick's shots, forced him off the boards and even added eight points along the way.

Mulcahy was not alone rebounding—getting considerable help from Jerry Vanderjagt and Barry Moen in particular—and the Totems simply dominated the inside. But run? Yes, sir, and the two-or-one breaks came easy against JO.

In frustration the Jokers eventually went to a 2-3 zone defence and the Totems merely played catch outside until the JO guards came to meet them, leaving gaps in the zone. Chornoby and Hoshal filled most of the gaps, and a nine-point surge in the third quarter wrapped it up.

Comebacks Lead to 'Discoveries'

The Bays had far more trouble with Queen Elizabeth than anyone expected, perhaps an indication that Gary Taylor's kids still haven't shaken that up-tight feeling that follows any odds-on favorite.

Royals used three different zone defences, paying special attention to Tommy Holmes at high post, and by the half the Royals led 21-20 and the smell of major upset began to be noticed. Taylor had gone to his 1-3-1 zone, something he has used sparingly this season, but the Royals—who have size—bothered the Bays immensely on the boards.

QE hung on to a two-point lead into the fourth quarter—but Oak Bay poured through 12 points while the Royals managed only two and that was the ball game.

"The kids came back," Taylor grinned. "That's when you find out who's a ball player."

He was particularly pleased with the performance of Holmes, who flipped in 22 points.

In the losers' round, Nanaimo's Ed Robertson pumped in 10 points in overtime as the Hubsters dropped Prince George 46-42; Salmon Arm eliminated North Surrey 51-41; Kitsilano dumped Sentinel 43-40, and Vancouver College edged Trail 53-45 in overtime.

OAK BAY (46) — Brent Mullins 10, Tom Holmes 22, Fergi Andison 8, Don Burrows 6.

QUEEN ELIZABETH (39) — Lyle Lowenberger 6, Barry Reid 8, Dennis Brown 11, Doug Hansford 7, Sid Sharp 7.

VICTORIA (47) — Dave Mulcahy 8, Gary Thurber 1, Mike Chornoby 12, Ian MacLean 2, Gordon Hoshal 10, Barry Moen 8, Jerry Vanderjagt 6.

JOHN OLIVER (33) — Henry Thiessen 3, Reg Dhaliwal 6, Jim Kilpatrick 10, Steve Gorday, Dave Klassen 4, Ron Peters 6, Rick Cuttell 2, Wayne Plenert 2.

NANAIMO (46) — Don Galloway 6, Ed Robertson 21, Bob Scott 1, Mark Pratt 8, Al Thompson 5, Craig Cooper 3, Rick Kazanowski 2.

PRINCE GEORGE (42) — Jim Miller 10, Dave Gourlie 3, Kerry Orchard 2, Dave Makarenko 14, Ken McIntosh 3, Willie Wagner 10.

WEEKEND SKI REPORT

Skiing conditions on Vancouver Island remain good despite the milder weather.

Green Mountain expects a new snowfall over the weekend accompanied by excellent conditions because of the area's altitude.

Forbidden Plateau reports a temperature of 40 degrees, a "slick" hill and a freshly graded access road.

Mainland points:

GROUSE MOUNTAIN—Clear and sunny, 45 degrees, no new snow.

MOUNT SEYMOUR—Clear and sunny, 30 degrees, no new snow.

GARIBALDI—Clear and sunny, average 35 degrees, no new snow, road now open.

GIBSON'S PASS—High overcast, 26 degrees, no new snow.

MOUNT BAKER—164 inches total.

MOUNT PILCHUK—Clear, 26 degrees, no new snow, 100 inches total.

MISSION RIDGE—Clear, 20 degrees, no new snow, 50 inches total.

Soccer Playoff

Gorge Football Club and North Shore Legion will highlight Saturday's minor soccer program in Victoria.

The two clubs will clash at 1 p.m. on the Rose Street pitch in a quarter-final Division IV battle of B.C. Cup playoffs.

Brewer's Comeback At Discussion Stage

DETROIT (AP) — Sid Abel, general manager of Detroit Red Wings, said Thursday Carl Brewer, former National Hockey League all-star defenceman, "has discussed the possibility of a comeback."

Abel said he talked with Brewer within the last few days but emphasized that the former Toronto Maple Leaf star said nothing definite about returning to the NHL to play with Detroit.

The Wings acquired the rights to negotiate with Brewer in March of last year in the trade that brought Frank Mahovlich, Garry Unger and Pete Stemkowski to Detroit in exchange for Norm Ullman, Paul Henderson and Floyd Smith.

Brewer played and coached in Finland this year but has retured to Muskegon where he played with the Mohawks of the amateur International Hockey League last year. He quit Toronto after the 1965 season to play with Canada's national team in time for the 1967 world amateur championships.

In Toronto, The Star quotes Abel as saying: "I suppose you could say there's a chance he might be with us Saturday but that's all that can be said."

The Red Wings are at Toronto Saturday for a game against the Leafs. Detroit is two points behind fourth-place Toronto in the Eastern Division, the last playoff spot. Only four games remain and the Wings defence, which has been faltering, could use Brewer's talents in the closing moments of the playoff drive.

ONLY TWAMLEY TO MISS ... ... SATURDAY GAME

O'Keefe Outlook Brightens

"Things look a little brighter now."

Victoria O'Keefes' coach Bill Abbott faced a sunnier outlook this morning when counting up players to face University of B.C. Thunderbirds in a crucial Pacific Coast Soccer League game in Macdonald Park on Saturday.

Abbott said that there has been no word from PCSL headquarters as to whether or not Brian Robinson has been handed a one-game suspension after last Saturday's row with a Firefighter player.

Ray Telford brings added cheer by not telephoning Abbott. Telford promised last Tuesday that he would call Abbott from his Nanaimo home on Thursday night if unable to make the UBC game.

However, Bruce Twamley, nursing an injured ankle, almost definitely will be out of Victoria's lineup.

Abbott now plans to use essentially the same lineup that carried Victoria to a fourth straight victory.

One interesting facet of the coming battle will bring the PCSL's leading scorer, Ike MacKay of O'Keefes, against the leading goalkeeper, Barry Sadler.

Game time will be 2 p.m.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

By STEWART LANG

"We aren't against development as such, just development that could destroy a natural resource."

With these words, Howard English summed up the feelings of conservationists in the Lower Vancouver Island area to application by a subdivision developer planning to dump treated sewage into Sooke's DeMamiel Creek.

English is a director of the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association and a member of the advisory council of sportsmen to the federal department of fisheries.

DeMamiel Creek, a tributary of the Sooke River entering just upstream from the Sooke Road Bridge, which has its source at Young Lake, was reported to have an annual escapement of over 3,000 coho salmon.

"More coho go up DeMamiel than the Sooke River," said English.

In addition, he claims, the creek becomes the habitat for a large number of steelhead each spring.

The new subdivision, located on Phillips Road, would dump 20,000 gallons of effluent into DeMamiel every 12 hours. Treatment would consist of an oxidation ditch where sewage is aerated by a paddle wheel to provide greater decomposition by bacteria.

The big question is whether the end product would have any detrimental effect on marine and aquatic life further downstream.

Coho fry are particularly noted for susceptibility to changes in their environment.

In addition to the menace of sewage, fry would face an additional hazard from detergents and cleansers which would not be affected by decomposition.

Signatures are now being gathered in the Sooke area which will be forwarded to Lands, Forests and Water Resources Minister Ray Williston with covering letters to health minister John Munro and federal fisheries minister Jack Davis.

Officials of Oakwood Homes, the property's developers, could not be reached for comment.

Pollution Control Board chairman Charles Keenan stated Thursday: "No application has been made to us, as I understand it."

First Vancouver Island Shooting League trap-breaking session of the season is set for the Port Alberni Gun Club grounds starting at 11 a.m. Sunday.

Leave It to Leo To Offer Solution

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Manager Leo Durocher of Chicago Cubs believes he should be allowed to argue with an umpire if one of his players is called out on strikes.

And Durocher thinks baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn may be on his side.

"Since they put in this rule a few years ago that you can't protest a ball or strike call, I think it has taken a lot of color out of the game," Durocher said Thursday. "And that's what Mr. Kuhn is looking for, suggestions to add more color and speed up the game.

"Last week I talked with Mr. Kuhn about this, and he agrees that it would be a good idea to let a manager protest a called ball or strike—not repeatedly, but maybe a couple or three times a game without getting thrown out."

Durocher's Cubs let their bats do their talking Thursday. Randy Hundley, Ernie Banks and Jim Dunegan homered in a 9-2 exhibition rout of Oakland Athletics.

Philadelphia Phillies edged St. Louis Cardinals 9-7 with six runs in the fourth inning in another exhibition game.

SOX EDGE TIGERS

Carl Yastrzemski had a triple, two singles and a walk in Boston Red Sox 5-4 triumph over Detroit Tigers. Dick McAuliffe and Norm Cash homered for the Tigers.

San Francisco Giants used home runs by Willie McCovey and Ron Hunt and four San Diego errors that let in five unearned runs to defeat the Padres 8-5.

New York Yankees won their sixth straight for a 10-3 exhibition record by downing Minnesota Twins 4-2 as Bob Cox drove in two runs and rookie Bill Burbach hurled five scoreless innings.

Houston Astros unloaded 11 hits and beat Montreal Expos 10-7.

Atlanta Braves broke a tie in the 10th inning on singles by Walt Hriniak and Mike Lum and a throwing error and pushed across another run to edge Kansas City Royals 5-3.

Tommie Sisk, Luke Walker and rookie Denny Riddleberger combined to pitch an eight-hitter as Pittsburgh Pirates blanked Cincinnati Reds 5-0.

Andy Messersmith, Hoyt Wilhelm and Pedro Borbon scattered six hits in California Angels' 4-1 triumph over Cleveland Indians.

Automatics Defeat Ingraham in Opener

From opening game appearances, it might seem that waiting for an opponent to emerge from the Stuffy McGinnis Hockey League semi-finals left league-champion Ingraham Buckaroos a trifle rusty.

Victoria Automatic Transmission pounded Bucks with 37 shots Thursday night for a 9-4 win in the opener of a best-of-five final in Memorial Arena.

Tommy Allen fired three goals to pace Transmissions while Jim Murdock added two. Single tallies were contributed by Chuck Kennedy, Pat Green, Doug Carter and Don Mahon.

Ben Webber answered back best for Bucks with two goals while Gordy Strongman and Greg Evans scored one each.

One of Allen's goals came on a penalty shot in the second period, and just after teammate Ken Hunt had fanned on another.

Each team was tagged with four minors but Ingraham's Bob Harris also drew a misconduct and game misconduct.

Second game of the series will be played Sunday at 4:30 p.m. in Memorial Arena.

MacMillan Lights Comeback Sparks

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—San Diego got a two-goal production from John MacMillan in a come-from-behind 6-3 Western Hockey League victory over Phoenix Roadrunners Thursday night.

Phoenix scored the game opener in the first period and it was 2-2 38 seconds into the second, but then San Diego pulled ahead to stay.

San Diego's Warren Hynes got a goal and two assists to run his point total to a team record 82. The Gulls also got goals from Jim Cardiff, Willie O'Ree and Jack Stanfield.

Jean Payette made his first appearance on Phoenix ice and got a pair of goals for the Runners. Bob Kabel scored the other Phoenix goal.

Calgary Rink Bounces Back

PERTH, Scotland (CP)—Ron Northcott of Calgary led his rink to a 9-4 victory over France this morning for a share of first place in the world curling championships.

Northcott's victory, coupled with a 12-10 loss Thursday night to Bud Somerville of the United States, left the Canadians with a 5-1, won-loss record.

Somerville and Bill Muirhead of Scotland also have 5-1 records after victories this morning.

Chris Wessel and his Swedish rink had a 3-3 record while rinks skipped by Heinz Beutler of Switzerland, Werner Fisher-Weppler of Germany and Pierre Boan of France were tied for fifth place with 2-4 marks.

Eric Gyllenhammar of Norway had six consecutive losses in the eight-country, round-robin tournament.

The Canadian rink with Dave Gerlach playing third, Bernie Sparkes second and Fred Storey lead, lost two stones on the opening end to France and was forced to take a single on the second end.

STOLE A SINGLE

France blanked the third and Canada tied the game with a single steal on the fourth. France took a 3-2 lead in the sixth, but the Canadians picked up their first two-ender on the seventh and took command by stealing a single on the eighth.

In other games this morning, the U.S. downed Switzerland 15-3, Scotland beat Norway 15-4 and Sweden trounced Germany 12-3.

The second and third-place rinks after the seventh and final round of the tournament tonight will meet in the semi-final Saturday afternoon with the winner advancing to the final against the first-place finisher that evening.

After posting its fourth straight easy victory—a 9-6 triumph over Switzerland in the fourth round Thursday—Canada never got going in the night match against the United States.

The Scotland-Sweden game was much the same. Down 4-0 after three ends, Scotland battled back to take a 7-6 lead on the 11th end of regular 12-end match.

Muirhead, facing three Swedish stones, hit his final shot perfectly behind a long guard. But Wessel came around for the takeout that gave him a four ender.

Rugby Union Ignores Risks

Don't be surprised if some Crimson Tide players are bruised and limping when Victoria goes after rugby's coveted McKechnie Cup Sunday at Vancouver.

Victorious over UBC Thunderbirds in the semi-final round last weekend, the Tide will tangle with Norwests at Brockton Point for the trophy, emblematic of inter-city rugby supremacy.

Norwests, comprised of players from North and West Vancouver clubs, ousted Vancouver in the other semi-final.

CITY PLAYOFFS

Risks of the Victoria side being hampered by injuries appear considerable because many Crimson Tide players will be involved in another trophy match the previous day.

They'll be in action at Centennial Stadium Saturday when University of Victoria Vikings and Oak Bay Wanderers clash at 2:30 in the Victoria Rugby Union's first-division final for the Barnard Cup.

Also at stake at Centennial Stadium Saturday will be the Times Cup, which goes annually to the city's second division champions. In that struggle, Oak Bay Wanderers and the Uvic Norsemen will go to the post at 1 p.m.

Small Boat Urgency

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Hewett

The forthcoming Elk Lake sailing regatta on March 30 emphasizes the growing need and desirability for organized recreational groups such as the proposed "ELSA" (Elk Lake Sailing Association).

Small boat sailing on the lake, which has been approved in principal by Saanich Parks Committee, is still at the proposal stage. The main objective would be to promote sailing on Elk Lake, both for recreation and for sport, with membership in the association open to all owners of sailing boats suitable for use on Elk Lake.

A secondary, but related object, is the promotion of dinghy racing at the national and international level. To this end, ELSA would apply for membership in the B.C. Yachting Association and PIYA.

The facilities for sailing would probably be developed in conjunction with the Victoria and University Rowing Clubs, occupying a proposed site on the foreshore just beyond the swimming area adjacent to the Black Swan Cafe, toward the connecting channel to Beaver Lake.

This proposal to organize recreational sailing on Elk Lake was, perhaps, inevitable, and reflects the growing interest for sailing in the Victoria area. (In England, for example, any body of water of similar size, be it reservoir, creek, or pond, would be ringed with dinghy and-or rowing clubs; at least a dozen different organizations.)

The suggested size for sailing boats suitable for use on Elk Lake is no more than 18 feet long, and weighing less than 350 pounds.

Some of the dinghies currently sailed and raced in the Victoria area are: El Toro and Sabot (8 foot pram); Enterprise (13 foot sloop); OK Dinghy (13 foot one-man boat designed as a trainer for the Olympic Finn Class); Fireball (16 foot sloop with a spinnaker and trapeze); and Unicorn (18 foot single-handed catamaran).

All of these boats, as well as the Uniqua 420's, Davidsons, and ANY AND ALL COMERS in the dinghy category, will be welcome to compete in the District of Saanich-sponsored regatta which starts at 12 noon on March 30.

Race Committee Headquarters will be set up at Hamsterly Park, and skippers must register either at Committee headquarters prior to 11 a.m. on the day of the race, or earlier by telephone to 386-2241, local 252. Fee is $1.00.

The committee may divide the El Toro fleet into men and women if numbers are excessive, and may sail El Toros and Sabots boat for boat. Several private schools, from as far afield as Shawnigan Lake, have expressed an interest in sending students to compete in the regatta.

All indications point to a large turnout, and spectators will in any case be treated to a colorful assortment of sails.

Brooks Captures Forces Tourney

HYDRO DENIES STORY OF ISLAND BLACKOUT

A B.C. Hydro and Power Authority spokesman denied today that Vancouver Island may suffer a three-day power blackout on Easter weekend. The spokesman was commenting on a report in a weekly newspaper.

Hydro plans cross-over work on Galiano Island on Easter Monday. This involved installing a new overhead transmission line above the existing one.

While this work is being done, transmission of electricity will be reduced but Vancouver Island will be served by its own power generation from such sites as Campbell River, Jordan River, Port Alberni, Courtenay and Chemainus.

The Hydro spokesman said if the current electrical workers strike continues at Easter, then it will be impossible to do the cross-over work on Easter Monday.

Gag-Filled Comedy Nice Change of Pace

THE ODD COUPLE
By Neil Simon

Vinnie	Ken Kienstad
Roy	Bud Abbot
Murray	Gary Cavers
Speed	Brian Hamilton
Oscar Madison	Jack Droy
Felix Ungar	Cornel Sawchuk
Cecily	Audrey Chalmers
Gwendolyn	Carol Mann

Director: Cornel Sawchuk
Presented by Cranbrook Community Theatre.

One of the most sure-fire laugh-a-minute comedies of the last five years failed to draw much of an audience to the McPherson Playhouse Thursday night.

Main reason probably was that The Odd Couple has been over-exposed for Victorians.

Two live-stage runs plus the movie have been seen here within little more than 12 months.

But considering the three plays seen since Monday in the Dominion Drama Festival B.C. Regional had serious motifs and in two instances a distinctly bitter flavor, this simple, gag-filled comedy was "a nice change of pace," adjudicator Dennis Sweeting said.

He commented on the interesting variety of plays seen during the festival and said he was pleased the final play tonight, Fantasy, Flight and Feathers, is an original by B.C. author John Kelly.

WELL WRITTEN

"I have read the script and think it is very well written," he observed.

In commenting on The Odd Couple he noted that "once again it was nice to hear all the words.

"It was lots of fun," he said. "There were nice directorial touches."

He found the main area of weakness to be a rather episodic treatment. The actors tended to play in a series of scenes without making use of transitions.

"The pace was lost at times," said Sweeting; "we suddenly found it dragging."

PLAYERS LIKED

He criticized the repetitive nature of gestures in the poker scene, but said he liked the four poker players and felt each had established a separate character.

He thought the actors generally well cast. He wondered if Jack Droy had consciously tried to pattern himself on the Walter Matthau characterization in the film and liked the way he had made the corny comic business work.

Cornel Sawchuk, the director, had taken over the role of Felix after the actor originally cast left the community. Sweeting was pleased with his over-all characterization but felt he had occasionally fallen out of it.

He found the two sisters delightful, particularly Gwendolyn.

The performance by Prince Rupert's North Pacific Players tonight ends the competitive part of the festival.

Awards will be announced and presented Saturday night at a dinner and dance at the Empress Hotel. The presentation will be made by Mayor Hugh Stephen.

This wind-up event will be preceded by a theatre conclave at Langham Court starting at 2:30 p.m. The subject will be the festival plays, an open discussion lead off by panelists Tom Kerr and Gil Bunch with Allan Purdy as moderator.

Film on Blackout Sparks Controversy

By ROBERT C. MAYNARD

WASHINGTON (WP) — John F. White, president of National Educational Television, has charged that private electrical power companies were told to launch a nationwide campaign against the Sunday night edition of Public Broadcast laboratory.

The 50-minute program, "The Built-in Blackout," charges that another great blackout—Nov. 9, 1965, in the northeast—is possible.

White charged that many of the 160 NET stations that carry PBL were pressured not to carry the show by representatives of the power company in their communities.

Edwin Vennard, managing director of Edison Electric Institute, denied that his association had attempted to pressure NET, PBL or any local station.

"If it's a balanced show," we have no objection," Vennard said adding that his organization wanted to know beforehand what PBL would say about the utilities.

But the story that NET and PBL officials tell is different. White and several of his aides in telephone interviews told of reports from local educational televisions that their managements were contacted by representatives of power companies expressing concern over the content of the program.

Although no one outside of PBL has been permitted to preview the program, the power companies are fearful that it supports a bill introduced recently by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy (D—Mass.), calling for a system aimed at preventing recurrences of the northeast blackout.

But the producer of the program, John Wichlein of the PBL Washington office, said the bill—National Electrical Reliability Act of 1969—"won't do the job, and the program says so."

Vennard, the electric institute official, stated the association's position in a letter to PBL demanding to see a screening print of the program. Copies of his letter were sent to Resel H. Hyde, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission and Frank Pace, chairman of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting.

"It is our belief," Vennerd's letter said, "based on attached news releases, that the program has been produced or edited in such form as to present only one side of what is a controversial public issue."

Vennard, in addition to asking for a copy of the program. requested "a list of the NET stations which are receiving prints of the program film for broadcast purposes . . . so that we may facilitate direct communication with these stations by those members of electric utility companies who may wish to request the opportunity to present an opposite or more balanced view."

Rites Saturday For Retired Pension Official

Funeral services will be held in St. John's Church Saturday at 2:30 p.m., for Dr. Wilberforce Bell, 74, retired pensions examiner for the department of veterans affairs, who died in Veterans' Hospital Thursday.

Born in Hamilton, Ont., he came to Victoria in 1938. He served overseas in the First World War and was in the Medical Corps in the Second World War.

He was a director of the B.C. Cancer Society, an officer with the St. John Ambulance Society and grand sword-bearer of the Masonic Order in British Columbia.

He is survived by his widow, Mildred, four sons, Aubrey of Squamish, Doug in the armed forces in East Africa, Ray of Vanderhoof, and Don of Nanaimo.

SOMETIMES WORDS ARE JUST A WASTE OF TIME

Let's be very blunt about this: we all have to read a lot to get ahead in this world. But in the course of our reading, we often have to wade through a lot of "garbage" to get to the point. And even though you know when you have finished reading that many of the words are a waste of time, you can't tell beforehand. So what's the answer? There's only one way to beat it: learn to read 3 times faster than you now read, so you master time, instead of being a slave to it. Impossible? Not at all!

IF YOU CAN READ, WE CAN HELP!
Reading Dynamics doesn't demand that you have a high IQ or a college education. All it asks is that you be a reasonably good reader now. Our student's backgrounds are as varied as the city directory! We've had housewives, professional men, farmers, businessmen, labourers, clerks, politicians, high school students, stenographers and pilots. We've had them as young as 12 . . . as old as 80. All they've had in common is a desire to learn to read at least 3 times faster, and to remember more of what they read. And they know the Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics course delivers everything it promises, with no ifs, ands or buts.

EDUCATIONAL BREAKTHROUGH
Reading Dynamics is a revolutionary new reading method, perfected by Evelyn Wood, a teacher. She found that some people are naturally fast readers, and, over a 14-year period, learned the basis of this skill and how to teach it to others. The first Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics Institute was established just 10 years ago. Since then over 110 Institutes have been opened throughout North America and Europe.

NO MACHINES. USE IT ANYWHERE!
Please don't confuse the Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics course with others using special equipment. There are absolutely no machines. You are taught to use your hand as a pacer. The material you are reading determines the speed. You never feel rushed or uncomfortable. And you will be able to use your new skill at home, at school on the bus . . . everywhere!

WIDELY ENDORSED
This is the same course the late President Kennedy recommended to his Joint Chiefs of Staff. Many Canadian MP's have taken the course in Ottawa. Marshall McLuhan says that Speed Reading helps comprehension. To date over half a million people have taken the course . . . over 3,500 in the Lower Mainland alone.

EMPLOYERS SHARE COST
Many organizations share the cost of Reading Dynamics courses with their employees. Cost of tuition for businesses or individuals is deductible for income tax purposes. Organizations listed below have provided Reading Dynamics courses to their executives:

Home Oil Company
I.B.M., New York, Ottawa and Vancouver
CBS, New York
General Electric
Boeing Aircraft
Evergreen Press
Export Credit Insurance, Ottawa
Economic Council of Canada
Geology Dept., McMaster University

ATTEND A FREE DEMONSTRATION
Actually most of our students do far better than that. So you have nothing to lose and everything to gain. So come to a free demonstration, and bring a friend. We'll show you how it's done, answer your questions, show you a film. You'll be under no pressure to enroll.

GUARANTEE Reading Dynamics guarantees to refund the entire tuition to any student who fails to at least triple their reading index (a multiple of rate and comprehension percentage score).

MEN GET EXCITED; WOMEN GET ANGRY

LONDON (UPI)—British teen-age schoolgirls who wear ultra-short miniskirts have been advised to lower their hemlines before going on vacation in the Mediterranean, the British India Company announced today.

The company, which takes pupils on trips to the Mediterranean, said the short skirts were "unsettling" people—men and women—especially in Greece, Italy and North Africa.

British India's general manager, John R. Sharp said: "Two things tend to happen. The local men see the girls and get a bit excited, and their women get angry as a sort of counterattack."

Mainland Forecast: Lots of Rain!

By PETER LAWSON

LEAD GUITARIST DICK MOORE
. . . hands' of Rain striking out

A local group calling itself Rain has made the decision to broaden their listening audience.

In mid-April the band is leaving for Vancouver and a hoped-for club date.

They have had success in their shows here, but want to write and perform their own music.

The band, consisting of Dick Moore, lead guitar; Martin Springett, rhythm and vocals; Bourke Findlay, bass and vocals, and Ron Mills, drums, believe they must leave the city to market their music.

The market here for original music is slight apparently because of lack of interest by dance patrons.

A recent guest spot on a local television show appears to have aided the group in at least one way. They have been asked to play a dance south of the border.

The Esquimalt organization POET is holding a dance at Esquimalt Senior High tonight beginning at 8.

Featured is Mother Tucker's Yellow Duck a rock group from Vancouver with a pounding sound.

Backing up the Duck is the Blue Rumm, a local group.

POET also plans a light show during the dance.

Admission is restricted to POET and SPOT members.

Another Vancouver group, the Northwest Comany is playing Saturday evening at Central Junior High in celebrations of the DeMolay's 50th anniversary.

Although relatively unknown to Island residents the Northwest Company is capable of producing good dance music.

Seven Miners Die

WELKOM (AFP)—Seven miners, six of them Africans, were killed and four other Africans seriously injured Thursday in an explosion at the President Brand mine near here. The mine, one of the main gold producers in South Africa, is operated by the Anglo American Corp.

Hollywood Golden Era Relived

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The public's fascination with Hollywood's Golden Era continues undiminished, and hence NBC is offering tonight a special called Hollywood: The Selznick Years.

The subject is David Oliver Selznick, famed for producing the greatest success of film history, Gone with the Wind, as well the lengthiest memos. His life and times 1902-1965 will be discussed on the special by such former employees as Ingrid Bergman, Katharine Hepburn, Rock Hudson, Janet Gaynor, Alfred Hitchcock, Joan Fontaine and Gregory Peck.

Henry Fonda, who never appeared in a Selznick picture, narrates.

Viewers will see glimpses of the notable Selznick movies: Rebecca, Intermezzo, which introduced Ingrid Bergman to American audiences; David Copperfield, W. C. Fields' only straight role; Little Women, the Hepburn version; A Star Is Born, (not the Judy Garland musical); Spellbound, Duel in the Sun and, of course, Gone with the Wind.

Also appearing on the show is Joseph Cotten, who occupied the unusual position of being close friend as well as contract player with Selznick. Recently he discussed his former boss:

"I had great respect for his taste, his sense of honor, his responsibility and his energy. And his achievement. Most of David's pictures were considered above par—or a lot above par."

During his nine years under contract to Selznick, Cotten made only four movies for the producer; all his other films during that period were loan-outs. Selznick earned big profits from such deals, as he did with hiring out Peck, Bergman, Dorothy McGuire (who never made a Selznick picture), Fontaine, etc.

Envoy Leaves Post

LONDON (Reuters) — United States Ambassador David Bruce, 71, ended Thursday a record eight years as his country's envoy to Britain. Bruce, who flew to Washington with his wife, Evangeline, served longer in the post than ayone else since it was created in 1785 with the appointment of John Adams.

Wilson Carrying Plan For Peace in Nigeria?

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson is adept at political horseback-riding Roman style, astride two horses.

If the horses seem to be going in different directions as in the case of two current overseas adventures — landing troops in Anguilla and carrying an olive branch to Nigeria — that does not necessarily discommode the agile Wilson.

Wilson-watchers figure he'll pick up a good political ride, one way or the other. If one project flops the other may pay off. Now that the Caribbean show of arms at Anguilla seems to have passed off without violence — chalking up one up for the prime minister — he is left with the prospect of at least breaking even if his visit next week to Nigeria fizzles.

There is a chance it may come out better than that. Though the British government is playing it cagily for public consumption, there are indications Wilson has considerably more up his sleeve than it seems.

REASON DISCOUNTED

For one thing, knowledgeable informants are not impressed with the official explanation that Wilson is going to Lagos because he was invited by Gen. Yakubu Gowon, the leader of the federal — and winning — side. Gowon, it is though, would like nothing more than for Britain to keep sending arms and stay out of the way.

On the other hand, weighing against a British policy change with the federals is the fact that Britain can not really afford to get tough, much as she deplores mass deaths of Biafran civilians from bombings and starvation.

Wilson's cabinet is concerned about the safety of 16,000 Britons in federal territory, besides the down-to-earth consideraton of about $1,000,000,000 in such investments as oil.

There is also the aspect that if Britain were to hold back arms from the Lagos government — apart from its claim that this would be taking sides — it would leave a vacuum the Russians might fill.

In spite of these factors, straws in the wind suggest that Wilson took the initiative and that, as one well-posted onlooker in London said Wednesday: "He's not going to Lagos to pass the time of day with Gowon."

Sane Man Confined In Hospital 22 Years

EDMONTON (CP) — A 59-year-old man who spent 22 years in a mental hospital after he was declared sane says he bears no grievance against anyone.

He was released last July after an investigation by provincial ombudsman George McClellan.

In an interview with the Edmonton Journal he says he feels no one deliberately harmed him.

The man's identity was not disclosed.

His case came up in the second annual report to the legislature, tabled last Friday by McClellan, who was appointed as Alberta's ombudsman in 1967.

The report said the man spent 30 years in the hospital after the 1938 slaying of an 18-months-old son and seven-year-old niece. In 1946 he was found not guilty by reason of insanity at the time of the slayings, but was adjudged sane at the time of the trial after eight years of treatment.

The report said the man had twice written the lieutenant-governor asking for a review of his case but that neither letter had been delivered. Both were filed by the attorney-general's department.

The man now shares an Edmonton apartment with another former mental hospital patient and is recovering from his third cancer operation. He receives a $385 monthly pension and a replenishable $500 emergency fund.

The man says he has lost touch with his family. He consented to his wife's divorce application while he was in hospital but does not know whether the divorce was granted.

"I didn't try to contact any members of my family or friends. I had heard from my mother. She would have looked after me if they had let me out. But what was the use?"

He told the Journal he helped serve the staff coffee and meals for 10 years, spent three working in the hospital snack bar.

Accompanied by staff, he made occasional trips outside the hospital to buy clothes.

He says treatment of patients was "rotten" when he first entered the hospital but is "getting better all the time." When he was first admitted, "attendants were pretty rough."

Union Denies Blame In Rate Hike

A spokesman for the plumbers' union has denied again that labor costs are responsible for an $11-an-hour charge-out rate announced by plumbing contractors.

Tom Wheatley, business manager for Local 324 of the Plumbers' Union, said Thursday a statement by B. H. Johnson, Victoria-branch president of the Canadian Plumbing and Mechanical Contractors' Association, earlier this week was "a slap in the face to the good labor-management relations which currently exist."

Johnson said the suggested charge-out rate of $11 an hour, an increase of $2.50, was forced on contractors by increased labor costs.

Wheatley joined union organizer Russ St. Eloi who pointed out Wednesday that the charge-out rate had gone up $2.50 an hour when plumbers' wages and fringe benefits had risen by 40 cents an hour.

MLAs Enter the Home Stretch

By JOHN MIKA

The legislature passed the magic number Wednesday and MLAs thoughts inevitably begin turning towards prorogation.

As usual in recent years, the politicians are likely to start driving hard to beat the Easter weekend holiday and there are various signs they're entering the home stretch.

Chief of these was completion of 40 sitting days Wednesday since the throne speech which is the key number in collecting their sessional indemnities of $6,000.

The full indemnity is not earned, under the law, until MLAs have sat 40 days in the house.

And the other side of the coin is that from here on in, they do not earn a penny more no matter how much longer they sit.

Despite the harsh winter, nature has produced another traditional harbinger of prorogation—the Japanese cherry trees in the legislative precinct are beginning to blossom.

Politically, the session also began a steep downhill run this week with the climax of the main controversy apparently being reached in passage of the bill empowering Premier Bennett to lend up to $3 million to Commonwealth Trust Company under certain conditions.

The coming NDP leadership convention set for April 10-12 adds an extra urgency to the MLAs longing for an escape from the round-the-clock tensions produced by alternating bitterness and boredom of floor debate and caucus plotting for the past two months.

But the prospect of a couple of more vehement controversies and a still-huge pile of unfinished business makes it unlikely that the session will wind up before April 3, the eve of Good Friday this year.

There are about 25 government bills still to be debated in the house, including the controversial legislation to create controls on strip mining although much of the potential ammunition is being fired now in the mining committee's public hearings.

But another major battle has loomed as a possibility this week with completion of the special auto insurance committee's study and strong indications the government will bring in a bill on the subject in the dying days.

In addition, there are still the estimates of eight departments to process plus the money the government asks for its four ministers without portfolio.

Health Minister Loffmark's estimates are half-way through a careful scrutiny now but more explosive debates are expected on pollution when Resources Minister Williston is on the floor, social welfare policies when Dan Campbell asks for his appropriations and the Roberts Bank railway when Commercial Transport Minister Richter comes up to bat.

RETIRE A YEAR EARLY WITH HEALTHY SERVICE

Healthy long-service civil servants will be able to retire up to a year earlier by accumulating sick leave benefits under provincial cabinet order issued Wednesday.

The order doubles the maximum limit on sick leave accumulation—raising it from 125 to 250 working days.

The rate at which civil servants accumulate unused sick leave allowance remains the same at 1¼ days per month but the accumulation can begin from the date of employment from now on instead of from the end of the six-months probationary period.

Fight on Inflation Long One—Rasminsky

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is on the right road towards combatting inflation, but it must stay on it, Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, says in his 1968 annual report tabled in the Commons Thursday.

The report, covering economic conditions for the year as well as the bank's operations, also touches on business in the first two months of the new year.

Twice in as many pages, Rasminsky refers to the need for government determination in fighting inflation.

"Excessive price and cost increases . . . are threatening to undermine our prospects for durable growth in the future," the report says.

"Fortunately, in addition to the possibility of less pressure on price levels from external sources, there is evidence that some developments in the domestic economy are working with us. . . .

"Broadly speaking, our main public policies seem to be pointed in the right direction—but we shall need a consistency of approach and a deep determination to persevere until we are certain that we have dealt effectively with the problem.

"The stakes are too great to warrant anything else."

In another passage, Rasminsky writes that drastically different anti-inflation policies are not needed, "but rather the determination to persist with the present one—and if necessary, to reinforce it from time to time. . . ."

Rasminsky blames continuing inflation on two factors—demand pressures in the United States attributable to the Vietnam war, and a domestic psychology that believes inflation is here to stay and prices and wages must be raised.

Apart from inflation, he says Canada's economic performance last year was "satisfactory in many ways." Canadian prices rose by about four per cent, and the growth of unemployment to about 5⅛ per cent of the labor force from 4⅛ "is very disappointing."

"It seems clear that the attitudes of all groups in the community to price and income increases within their influence are affected not only by the levels of unemployment and idle plant capacity, but also by expectations about future price trends and by the degree of buoyancy in business conditions and in employment opportunities."

Rasminsky welcomes the government's move to set up a prices and income commission, calling it "a new and potentially constructive factor" in fighting inflation.

'Scapegoat' Says Fired Manager

PENTICTON (CP) — Richard Duncan, 51, manager of the Royal Bank of Canada branch here last September when teller Anne Kathleen Spiller was arrested for defrauding the bank of $492,000, is looking for a job now.

Mr. Duncan said Thursday he got five months' reduced salary and then he was out—after 33 years' service.

"It's pretty obvious I am a scapegoat," he said.

Miss Spiller is now serving a six-year term in Kingston Penitentiary for the theft.

Said Mr. Duncan: "They just phoned me one day and said they had lost faith. It's frightening."

He said during an interview that when he goes for a job, prospective employers are more interested in hearing about the Spiller case than they are in hiring him.

Finally, the employers "look at me and say, you're pretty old."

Fiction Tops List At Library

Sex literature is not so popular as many imagine, says chief librarian John Lort.

A North American survey shows that books on sociology are the most popular in public libraries, followed in order by fiction, children's literature, science, religion and poetry.

"In Victoria, fiction tops the list," Lort told a meeting of the Vancouver Island branch, Canadian Authors Association, Tuesday.

"Many of these, of course, are sex novels. If we consider a book of this type has literary merit, we buy it. We do not buy books that are smutty and nothing more."

Victoria public library used to have two copies of the famous 18th-century sex novel, Fanny Hill. Both have disappeared. A high court judge found that, while the book was obscene, it had high literary merit.

Lort said the location of a city or town has a great influence on its reading, so that Victoria readers are more interested in marine literature than, say, Kamloops or Kelowna.

Victorians also have a particular liking for books on botany and plant life.

Poet-Dramatist Guest Speaker At Workshop

Dr. James Reaney, on leave from the University of Western Ontario, will be guest speaker at a workshop Saturday at 2 p.m. sponsored by the Canadian Child-Youth Drama Association, Greater Victoria branch.

A well-known Canadian poet-dramatist, Dr. Reaney has three times received the Governor-General's Literary Award.

Among his best-known works are The Killdeer and Other Plays, a collection of Canadian plays in verse.

He was also the librettist for a highly successful chamber opera written by Victoria-born composer John Beckwith, entitled The Night-Blooming Cereus.

At the workshop to be held at Willows Elementary School, Dr. Reaney will demonstrate creative drama with a group of children.

The workshop is open to the public and adults may participate with the children. Slacks should be worn by women taking part.

Speaker Named Honorary Officer

William Murray, speaker of the legislature, has been named honorary lieutenant-colonel of the 115th Company, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps.

Maj. Ted Piete, the company's commanding officer, announced the appointment by the minister of national defence Thursday.

Murray was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, and came to Canada with his family as a child. He completed his education at Prince Rupert and served with the Canadian armed forces in the Atlantic and Mediterranean theatres and in the U.K. during the Second World War.

Captain Jailed

ERMOUPOLIS, Greece (Reuters)—The captain of the cruise liner Lakonia which sank in 1963 with the loss of 121 lives was sentenced Thursday to 14 months, five days' imprisonment. Capt. Matthew Zarbis, 58, was found guilty of negligence in fighting a fire which started on the 20,648-ton Greek liner 180 miles north of Madeira in December, 1963. The vessel sank later while under tow.

Plowing Matches

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Chilliwack Plowing Society's 47th annual matches will be held April 2, the society said Wednesday. Feature event will be the British Columbia Open, for plowmen using tractor plows with two or more mould-boards plowing furrows 12 inches or wider.

MINE TAX INCREASE

REGINA (CP)—The Saskatchewan legislature Thursday gave first reading to a bill that would increase the provincial mineral acreage tax to 10 cents an acre from three cents an acre. It is the only tax increase forecast in the 1969-70 budget.

Oak Bay Slashes Park Frills

By PAT DUFOUR

Frills for Oak Bay parks were the first casualties Thursday night when aldermen met to study this year's capital expenditure budget.

Casualties in "B" committee's cost-cutting included a new tennis court and an $8,000 sprinkler system for Windsor Park, an extension of the grandstand and resurfacing of the lacrosse box at Carnarvon Park, and playing fields at Henderson Park.

Ald. D. G. Watts said, "We must keep budget items down to what is vital. We have to be ruthless."

In spite of slashing, the budget which will be recommended to the estimates committee in April still stands at $476,240 compared to last year's $350,417.

The park's budget, after cuts totalling $30,000 for playing field work, still stands at $70,440, an almost 50 per cent increase on last year's figures.

Among items to escape the block were the relocation of the play area at Firemen's Park, $50,000 for work on the new Windsor Park Pavilion, $69,000 for installation of storm drains, $9,500 for widening of Foul Bay Road near Fort and building of sea walls.

Aldermen will inspect Foul Bay Road on March 30. Consideration is being given to widening the road between Central and NcNeill.

Ald. G. Scott Wallace said, "If we decide to widen the road to 24 feet instead of 32 feet we will save $20,000 on this item alone."

Village Looks To 'Built-In' Shoppers

Merchants in the "village" of Oak Bay are feeling the economic squeeze caused by the growth of new shopping centres.

This was emphasized by representatives of Mears, Whyte and Gower when they met Oak Bay council's "B" committee Thursday.

Don Whyte said, "We have vested interests in the village. The merchants wanted us to get up a petition but we didn't want to do things that way."

The firm's representatives asked permission to build a "30 to 32 family" apartment unit at 1542 Wilmot Place.

"Our business community is suffering. The village is finding it increasingly difficult to hold or entice people to the area. With such a unit stores would have an in-built nucleus of shoppers."

Ald. Alec Hendry, chairman of works, said his committee had no objection to the project because there are sufficient sanitary, water and storm drain facilities to cover the additional load.

Bureau To Explain Its Programs

Representatives of the Volunteer Bureau will be 'on location' until Saturday at the Hillside Shopping Plaza.

Located in the Rothman Special Events Caravan, members will explain the functions of the bureau and recruit volunteers for a wide variety of community services.

The caravan will also contain a display of arts and crafts material, made by clients of local health and welfare agencies in sheltered workshops. Information will be available on where the items can be purchased.

Agencies represented will include the Canadian Mental Health Association, Victoria Branch; Canadian National Institute for the Blind; Arbutus Crafts; Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded, and the Golden Key Auxiliary to the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Blenkinsop Valley Ratepayers to Meet

The Blenkinsop Valley Ratepayers' Association will meet next Thursday at 8 p.m. in Lochside Elementary School on Royal Oak Avenue.

One of the topics for discussion is expected to be the Saanich planning report on the valley, to be unveiled Tuesday night at a municipal lands and planning committee meeting.

Victoria Daily Times

Arthur Mayse

At precisely 1:52 p.m. on the first official day of spring, I was loafing with an eye on the blue sky as seen through this newsroom's venetians when my phone rang. The voice at the other end fairly lilted with happiness.

It belonged to a girl, and this is what she said: "I've been walking on Fort Street, and it's such a lovely day that I couldn't help smiling all over my face."

This conjured up a pleasant picture, but there had to be an angle.

"Pretty soon," the voice went on, "I realized that other people on the street were looking at me. You know, it dawned on me that they were somehow afraid.

"A few truck drivers smiled back at me, and they weren't dirty old man smiles, either. Just friendly.

"But mostly, people gave me "filthy hippy" looks, as if I'd been smoking pot or something, which I haven't been. But I don't care about that, I'm so happy."

(Yes, I realize that this account sounds squirrely, but I'm telling it just as I noted it while she talked.)

I said to my caller, "Tell me about yourself."

"Nothing much to tell," she replied. "I'm very ordinary-looking, I'm 23, I go to Uvic and I have a place of my own. But I'll tell you another reason why I'm happy. You know the song?

She sang it:

" 'I do not have a mansion, I haven't any land,

" 'Nor any paper dollar to crinkle in my hand,

" 'But I can give you music on a thousand hills

" 'And kiss you, and give you seven daffodils'."

★

By this time, I was wondering what the devil a well-married man was doing in a conversation of this sort.

"I think that's from a record by the Limelighters," she bubbled on, merry as a bird. "You see, my friend and I hadn't been getting along too well, but that's over, and he gave me seven daffodils. I had them in a basket on my walk."

At this point, I made a panicky clutch at the world in which people walking down Fort Street are careful not to smile.

"Would you like to tell me your name?"

But she wouldn't, and left me only with a paper of notes to consider.

The residue of winter in my soul makes me wonder whether some young juggins from our academy of higher learning was putting me on.

But I prefer to believe that the happy-talk call was on the up-and-up. In this I'm swayed by the memory of another spring day—raining like blazes—when I saw another girl came walking along Douglas Street below the Bay.

She was, as you might say, buxom, but she had blue-black Irish hair, she walked in her plastic raincoat with a jaunty little bounce, and she too was smiling all over her face.

In any case, I'd sooner get a call like that than some others I've had in a newsman's years.

Like, for instance, the anonymous whisper in the depths of a Vancouver night that said, 'I'm going to kill my wife.'

And he did.

★

But that was in winter, and now we find ourselves arrived, after several false starts, in the true Victoria springtime.

In our own garden, much that we feared lost is putting out leaf, sprout or bud. Also, in spite of their setback, Victoria parks horticulturalist Al Smith predicts that we'll have a good show of flowering-tree bloom for Easter.

Only about 10 per cent of the double pink plum will flower this year in city parks, and that's a pity. But white and light pink varieties are expected to carry about half their usual bloosom load. Also, though the Japanese cherry will bloom sparsely other varieties suffered no bud damage.

A late spring, but all the more welcome for that!

By PAT DUFOUR

Plans for a $1,000,000 shopping centre for Oak Bay were unveiled today by Mayor Fred Hawes.

The complex, to be built on Foul Bay Road between Marrion and Goldsmith, would be developed by Adirondack Properties Ltd. of Vancouver.

Executive director John L. Boultbee said construction would start as soon as possible after final municipal approval.

He forecast it would be completed early in 1970.

THREE READINGS

The zoning bylaw, paving the way for the new development received first, second and third readings at Monday's council meeting.

A public hearing has been called for April 10 with council expected to make the final decision that evening.

Mayor Hawes said: "It is completely in line with our progressive program which is geared to develop the municipality to keep pace with the times and yet retain the attractive, residential atmosphere which attracted our residents here in the first place."

LANDSCAPED

To be called the Heart of Oak Centre, the complex would include a 20,000-square-feet food store, drug store, bank and small shops. The approaches to each would be attractively landscaped and the stores connected with a covered mall.

Plans show that extensive landscaping will give a "green belt" aura to the centre, complemented with strategic placings of trees, shrubs and flower beds.

Mayor Hawes said the developers have worked closely with the municipality.

"The complex has been planned to co-ordinate with our proposed recreation centre which goes to the people for a referendum soon."

TWO-PURPOSE

"It will have parking space for at least 200 cars, and exits and entrances on Foul Bay, Marrion and Bee. The parking area will be available for use of the recreation centre's users during the non-business hours."

The recreation centre, to be located between the new complex and the Oak Bay Junior and Senior Secondary Schools, will contain a branch library, senior citizens' facilities, a swimming pool, ice rink "and possibly a curling rink at some future date."

The date of the referendum will be set after the April 10 hearing.

The hearing also will deal with a zoning bylaw permitting the erection of apartments on municipally-owned land on Cedar Hill Crossroad formerly owned by the Victoria Riding Academy.

If the zoning bylaw passes, money raised from land sales will provide two-thirds of the financing of the proposed recreation centre.

LIFE-RESTORING BATH is given this pelican at Santa Barbara, Calif., by Dave Hancock (left), and unidentified assistant. Hancock is operator of the Wildlife Conservation Centre at Island View Beach in Central Saanich. He spent several weeks at Santa Barbara recently helping save oil-soaked sea birds after an underwater well ran wild, pumping thousands of gallons of oil into coastal waters. Local biologist says many thousands of birds died but loss would have been in the millions if it had happened on B.C. coast where there are many more birds. Removing the oil from a bird's feathers also takes out natural waterproofing and bird could drown if it is not replaced. Hancock says preparing birds for return to freedom involves a lengthy process of cleaning, drying, wetting, drying and preening. Hancock went to California originally to show his nature film, Coast Safari, which will be presented at the MacPherson Theatre here on April 24 and 25.

'No Concessions on Sewers'

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark Thursday told the legislature his department will continue insisting on primary treatment for sewage and will refuse to bow to demands from real estate promoters for special concessions.

Loffmark was applauded as he replied to Ernie LeCours (SC—Richmond) who said the minister should insist on secondary treatment for municipal sewage going into rivers or salt water.

LeCours said removal of solids through primary treatment is not enough to prevent the "slimy and stinky" contamination of lower mainland beaches near the Iona treatment plant.

He said a two-mile outfall and secondary treatment to remove bacteria is needed.

"There is no point in secondary treatment in one area when other areas nearby dump sewage raw," said Loffmark.

60 INSTALLED

He said some 60 municipalities have installed primary treatment voluntarily to protect their citizens but many still are dumping raw sewage.

"Our first objective is to bring primary treatment to all areas and the answer is simple—there will be no certificates issued (for subdivisions in developing areas) unless the municipalities provide proper sewage disposal.

"There are a lot of people who think these requirements don't apply to them," said Loffmark.

"There is a steady parade of real estate promoters into my office who think they should be exempted but so far not one has been exempted and I can assure the members that there won't be.

"Many of these real estate developers think they can get their little plan through without sewage treatment so they can sit back and make a nice profit but I can assure you there will be not one allowed."

Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) said the government is dividing its anti-pollution program among departments and officials when it should be a single co-ordinated effort.

He urged legislation to ban sale of any cars in the province which are not equipped with anti-pollution devices on their exhaust pipes.

"There also should be a 'war chest' against pollution," said Gardom.

"Why not sink a portion of the gasoline tax into the anti-pollution program . . . and also pour all the (anti-pollution) fines into the fund."

Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said Loffmark has failed "utterly" to live up to the promises of pollution control he made at the end of the summer.

NEEDS AUTHORITY

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) told the minister the health department should be in charge of over-all pollution control.

"It is time the minister was given some of the power to do some of the things he talked about doing."

Dowding said the minister now cannot carry out or enforce what he knows should be miminum requirements.

Dowding said the public is no longer willing to believe the minister's many press releases.

•

'JEWEL' FACES TESTS

An intensive pollution testing program will be initiated this spring at Shawnigan Lake in order to determine what measures will be needed to protect it, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark told the Legislature Thursday.

"I agree Shawnigan Lake is a real jewel," he said. "And we must preserve these lakes now or bid goodbye to them forever."

Allan Cox (L — Oak Bay) raised the matter of pollution in the lake, saying sewage overflow from septic tanks at cottages along the shore is ruining the vacation spot.

Cox said he feels the health department has adequate power to stop the pollution but is failing to enforce it.

Saying he did not want to be "alarmist," Cox warned that the lake could become like some of the bad lakes in Eastern Canada if control is not exercised.

Loffmark said the testing program also will include several interior lakes.

He said remedial measures must be taken early because once a lake is overwhelmed by pollution it is almost impossible to reclaim.

"There has been a good point made here.

"As the population of this province builds up, the people of this province must be alive to the great threat and we must take great care of these lakes, particularly those close to built-up areas."

"I give the members the assurance that we will test these lakes and will continue testing them."

Loan Approved For Improving Colquitz Creek

The provincial government moved Thursday to allow Saanich municipality to borrow up to $1 million to implement efforts to preserve and improve the Colquitz Creek system.

A bill, given first reading in the legislature, would permit the municipality to borrow this money without having to go to a public referendum.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis welcomed the legislation but cautioned the public not to assume work will start immediately.

The legislation was purely permissive, stating that Saanich may do certain things if it implements the scheme.

"We are by no means complete in our studies," Curtis said, but receiving approval for certain steps is "part of putting it all together." He gave credit for encouragement to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston and Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan.

The Colquitz Creek runs from the south end of Beaver Lake to the east side of Portage Inlet. This is just over six miles and covers a drainage area of 12,500 acres, or nearly three times the size of the city of Victoria.

A Saanich report on this section of the Colquitz, made public in early 1968, put a price tag of $558,000 on purchase of land along the creek to preserve the stream.

Further studies, including Portage Inlet and the Gorge waterway, are being made.

A LECTURE ON "CHANGING AFRICA", by Dr. Edgar S. Efrat, assistant professor of political science at the University of Victoria, will bring to a close the current series of the University Extension Association of Victoria on Monday evening. The lecture, starting at 8:15, will be delivered in Room 168, Elliott Building, and will be open to the public.

Mayor Fears Bad Reaction On Hospitals

Mayor J. B. Cumming of North Saanich said today it isn't good business to ask people to approve a $30,000,000 hospital construction program without telling them how the money will be used.

Mayor Hugh Stephen, hospital district chairman, said Wednesday voters would be asked to approve the fall hospital referendum without a detailed plan of the program.

Taxpayers would be asked to trust the regional board to sort things out at a later date, he said.

FEARS FAILURE

Mayor Cumming feared if such a policy is carried through the referendum would fail.

"Do you lend a man $20 without asking him what he wants it for?" he asked.

"The hospital board's intentions are good and can be trusted, but what guarantee is there that its members will be around a year or six months from now," he added.

While he hoped the referendum passes, he said he didn't think ratepayers will approve such a large expenditure withoug first knowing the board's plans.

He also felt that the BCHIS would not approve a referendum without a detailed plan.

Point Roberts Leasing Plan To Be Aired

A 999-year lease of Point Roberts, Wash., to British Columbia might be the best solution for dealing with the tiny point of land cut off by the international border south of Ladner, the MLA for the border riding of Delta said today.

Robert Wenman, the 29-year-old Social Credit backbencher, has invited three Washington state legislators to Victoria on Tuesday to discuss the idea.

In an interview today, Wenman said the best deal in his opinion would be for the state to give Point Roberts to British Columbia.

COMPROMISE

This was unlikely, so a leasing arrangement might be a "reasonable compromise."

The MLA said the land is ideally suited for combined residential and recreational use. With the 999-year lease, the province would re-lease the land to current residents and developers.

Wenman hopes to introduce the Washington people to Attorney-General Leslie Peterson and other cabinet ministers. In about two weeks the MLA will make a return visit to the Washington assembly at Olympia.

He said the Tuesday meeting will be the first for discussion of the Point's problems since a state senator appealed to Congress for help for the people of Point Roberts.

UNWORKABLE

Wenman ruled out any idea of joint control over the area as being unworkable. The idea of turning the Point into a free port he also ruled out, saying the free port system is only valuable for an industry that can bring in raw materials without duty and ship its manufactured goods free.

He is convinced the area must be residential because of lower-mainland population pressure.

Brick Workers Fail To Reach Settlement

An 11th-hour meeting failed to resolve a dispute between the Laborers' Union and local contractors Thursday, leaving the possibility of a strike anytime in the next three months.

No further meetings are planned at the moment.

The dispute centres around bricklayers' helpers and while neither side has spelled out the differences, they have said retroactive pay is the main issue.

The union's 72-hour strike notice expired at 4 p.m. Thursday, meaning a strike could be called anytime within the next three months. Union officials say that while only bricklayers' helpers are directly involved, their picket lines could shut down a number of projects, including several school additions under way in the district.

Four Victoria bricklaying contractors are involved.

Meanwhile, both the building trades unions and contractors will meet with the Saanich Peninsula school board Monday morning to protest the board's new policy of choosing its own sub-contractors on school projects.

One fear the unions have is that such a policy could lead to selection of non-union sub-contractors, forcing union men to pull off the job.

ATHLETIC PARK . . . APRIL 9 . . . KEEP IT QUIET

By JIM HUME

Whisper it quietly: Royal Athletic Park is opening again in April.

Nobody is quite sure of the date but the first sports event in a year has been booked into the park for April 9.

It's a tentative date and will not be kept unless the grass put down last year has completely recovered from a shaky case of snow-mould.

The trouble-plagued park lost its major grandstand in October, 1964.

It was only the start of a series of misadventures.

City council decided to rebuild the old park from centre field out at a cost of $330,000.

A year later that total had risen to $500,000 and when the park was finally opened in June, 1967, a little more than $1 million tax dollars had been poured into Victoria's own Phoenix.

With bands, speeches, much flag-waving and a soccer game between Victoria O'Keefes and London's Chelsea, the park opening was greeted enthusiastically.

For part of a soccer season and for one full baseball season the greensward and the grandstands enjoyed full use.

But by November city officials were looking gloomily at a dying turf and a $20,000 bill to get things back in shape.

When the spring rains of 1968 came along the park, which had been seeing only limited activity, was closed.

The turf was removed along with topsoil and bad drainage areas. The old topsoil, banked at Topaz Park, was brought back, new drains went in, the sprinkling system was adjusted, and grass seed planted.

The field wasn't the only problem.

An $84,000 night-lighting system wasn't working as it should. In the baseball outfield players couldn't see a pop-fly coming over second base.

In the board room at the back of the baseball diamond grandstand, electric heating wasn't working properly. The bills were high, the rooms uncomfortable.

At the soccer grandstand drains weren't working and a chain - drain from roof to ground was a disaster area on a rainy day.

Add $350 to the bill to fix the heating and $800 to fix the grandstand drain.

But all that is history now, say city officials.

The new grass took a cold weather battering last winter but is recovering slowly. The lights have been adjusted, the heating system changed and the drains are working fine.

And, on April 9, if all goes well the captain of one of Victoria's senior soccer team leagues will boot a ball across the "gold-plated" turf to mark the start of a new sports era at Royal Athletic.

Says city manager Dennis Young a little ruefully: "I don't think there will be any official opening this time. We'll just wait for the grass to be right and quietly book games into the park."

But whisper it quietly. Royal Athletic has shown a nasty habit of failing to live up to its bright new reputation.

Powdered Lemon Serves in a Pinch

By PENNY SAVER

Gladys held up the little bottle in triumph. "I have found it, Penny. I heard about this stuff (or something like it) from friends who bought it wholesale for their rest home and have been looking for it in retail stores ever since. Do you realize," she went on, lowering her voice and leaning forward dramatically, "that this little bottle contains the equivalent of several fresh lemons?" I snorted," You should be on television, Gladys. Next you'll be telling me that your clothes are brighter than bright and that I should switch to your brand of coffee." Gladys began to bat her eyelashes and in a voice that was close to a giggle replied," Penny, I hate to do this but as your best friend I think you ought to know: You have a run in your stocking!"

To descend to a more serious level, Gladys' little bottle contains 3¼ ounces of powdered lemon. One teaspoon of this powder dissolved in three tablespoons of water is equivalent to the juice of one medium sized lemon according to the bottle. The label also gives a recipe for lemonade. This powder, which is easy to store, can be substituted in recipes calling for lemon juice. A 43 cent bottle in the cupboard would be dandy insurance against the day you discover your last lemon gone.

Lemon makes me think of its natural companion—fish. I found some frozen filleted perch for 55 cents and haddock for 79 cents. Each package contains four boneless pieces of fish, enought to give three or four servings. The fish is wrapped in a strip of plastic film and arranged in such a way that one piece of fish can be removed and the others left frozen. It was Mrs. Smith who told me about this brand of fish and she finds this form of packaging indispensible to her solitary meals.

Hints from Readers

Many of my readers have asked, "Just how do you use this new, transparent cooking film?" (Saturday, March 15.) Well, basically, you wrap it completely around the meat, making a secure little package, then bake. Still, there are tricks. One concerns how hot the oven should be. The box gives a table of cooking temperatures, but I think they are a bit higher than necessary. For instance, the manufacturers suggest cooking a beef roast at 400 degrees. The regular temperature for an unwrapped roast is 325 and I would suggest keeping to this temperature and experimenting with cooking time.

One of my callers has had her daughter sending her this film from England for almost a year and she passed along a hint about package making. She uses staples or paper-clips to hold it together. Working on this principle, one can make the 18-inch strips stretch over a large fowl by joining two pieces with a "flat-fell" fold (like blue-jeans seams) and stapling.

My melting problem, which has never bothered the reader who has been using the film for a year, has been traced to the broil element. A caller who knows all about how ovens work informed me that the broil element in most ovens goes on only in the pre-heat and broil settings. She also informed me that the broil element will hold it's heat for quite a while. To keep the film from melting then, make sure your oven is pre-heated before the meat is put in, and keep the meat on a low rack, well away from the broil element.

As for cooking vegetables with the meat or fish, my experienced caller tells me it really works. For example, fish fillets or chops can be laid on a quarter-inch thick bed of sliced potatoes. The meat is seasoned and the vegetable piled at the side of the meat. For pork chops one could put apple and onion slices on top of the meat. Then close the package and bake until the meat is done. Presto! One now has a complete meal with a minimum of dirty dishes.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Lover's Wife Is 'Just Like Sister'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: About three years ago my husband and I began a friendship with another young couple. Perhaps we saw too much of them, but talk of wife-swapping developed. Against my husband's strong veto, the other man and I began an affair which lasted almost a year.

About seven months ago, guilt-ridden and miserable, I told my husband all. He was wonderfully forgiving, but never wanted to see this other couple again. The other man's wife knew about us and she blamed herself, for she had pushed the idea in the first place. This woman and I were almost like sisters, and now the friendship has ended. We are all in our late twenties, and we did have a wonderful four-sided friendship. I can't seem to warm up to any other couple. It is definitely ALL over between this other man and me, but my husband says no, he doesn't want to see them again. Is he being fair? I think we've all grown up a lot. Am I wrong in wanting to resume our friendship? I give you my word, I am not interested in this man, but I do love his wife. Signed,

"BLUE GRASS"

DEAR "BLUE GRASS": Better find another couple. I can't blame your husband. If you "love" his wife, see her in the daytime.

DEAR ABBY: My husband rushed me to the hospital to have my baby as I started to get pains in the lower part of my back and since I never had a baby before I was told that is where the pains start.

Well, after I got to the hospital the pains tapered off and nothing happened so they finally sent me home saying it was "false labor."

I got a bill for $43.50. Since it was false labor and nothing happened, do I have to pay this bill?

NO BABY

DEAR NO: Yes. (And not in confederate money, either.)

DEAR ABBY: How does this grab you? The other day while visiting my mother-in-law, I noticed two hand-painted plates that were mine. I was shocked when I saw them and asked, "When did I give those plates to you?"

She replied, "You didn't. I saw them down in your cellar during those three weeks you and Tom were separated. I figured they'd just get broken, so I took them."

What would YOU have done?

MAD REDHEAD

DEAR MAD: I'd have told her that now that the danger of "breakage" had subsided, I'd like to have my plates.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FOR ST. JOSEPH'S

Bonnet-Bridge Raises $400

When the Ladies' Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital had to reschedule their annual Spring Bonnet luncheon and bridge because of snow, they decided on Wednesday, March 19, St. Joseph's Day, the day the swallows traditionally return to Capistrano.

The date proved propitious. A large crowd came to enjoy the cold plate luncheon, play a few rubbers of bridge and buy from the well-stocked bake table.

Almost $400 was raised and will be used to buy equipment for the maternity ward and the new-born nursery.

Mrs. A. D. Blair was general converner assisted by Mrs. L. Barraud.

The auditorium in the nurses' residence was decorated with monster paper daffodils and flowered hats that "grew" out of hatboxes. Mrs. C. A. Macgillivray and Mrs. I. Dougals were in charge of decoratons.

Mrs. G. R. Pearkes, honorary life member of the auxiliary was a special guest at the luncheon, which was convened by Mrs. G. B. McKenzie and Mrs. F. Sedgwick.

BARGAIN-PRICE DIAMONDS?

People are often lured by "bargain prices" for diamonds. But the amount you pay for a diamond is in no way a measurement of the value you are actually getting.

If you don't know diamonds, how are you to know if you are getting a fine diamond at a low price, or just a "cheap" diamond at a cheap price.

Your only protection lies in your selection of a jeweller whose integrity and knowledge you can trust . . . a jeweller like BIRKS, Canada's largest jewellers, diamond specialists for four generations. Boys Making Chicken Chow Mein Part of Changing Home Ec Scene

By SUSAN RILEY

Remember when sewing class meant assembling countless white aprons, and cooking was 17 girls making oatmeal cookies? You can forget all that.

Now you're just as likely to find 25 boys making chicken chow mein.

And home economics no longer means just cooking and sewing.

"The times they are a-changin'" — in all Victoria schools. Home economics classes are part of that change.

Home economics has been extended to include classes on textiles, consumer education, management of money, child care, home and industrial service (hotel management), with a number of changes within traditional cooking and sewing classes too.

A 1969 Victoria sewing class is a microcosmic example of the change. Instead of working on dull, unimaginative white aprons or pot holders, as countless home ec. students have done in the past, Grade 8 students are making bright beach-bags out of terrycloth, and decorating them as they choose.

"Another part of the big change is "community involvement," explained Miss Muriel Johnson, head of home economics for the Victoria school board.

Students aren't being kept in school because it keeps them off the streets. Rather they are being encouraged to get out of schools and into the streets—or into shopping centres, restaurants, and homes. They call these forays "field trips."

Babies in Class

Cooking classes visit restaurants, and nutrition classes visit supermarkets to see what food costs. Others look into caterers' operations or hotel restaurants.

Child care students visit kindergartens and take care of children. Mothers bring their babies to class.

Just as the scope of home economics classes has broadened so has the composition.

For example, 476 boys are enrolled in the Grade 8 basic nutrition class throughout the city. This compulsory, "exploratory" course shows students the basics of sound buying and nutrition. It's no longer just making porridge, although the practical aspect of food preparation hasn't been abandoned.

But instead of oatmeal cookies and macaroni students are experimenting with tastier dishes.

Now two girls work on a recipe—"and not quibbly little portions either"—while another two observe and make notes on the cost and taste.

Mrs. P. D. Crofton teaches 25 boys cooking at Mount View secondary school. They experiment with Chinese dishes and the "steak-and-potatoes" varieties of food too.

She says they're almost as good as the girls and "a lot of fun too."

Sewing classes aren't the same. Students study pattern design, they make coats, suits, blouses, and they choose their own patterns.

"We want to let them be individual," explained Miss Johnson.

In an advanced sewing course (they can specialize in senior grades) students study fabrics, how to work with them and how to buy them. They are taught to make a $200 coat for $40. Eventually they design their own clothes.

"Each girl can work at her own pace in all courses, particularly sewing," said Miss Johnson. "If she wants to make three garments while the rest of the class are working on one or two we let her go ahead."

In Textiles 12 they make lampshades.

Teach Homemaking

That's it for the old courses. See how they've changed? But the whole field has expanded.

"We are getting away from the old idea of cooking and sewing only. We want to teach them how to handle money, be homemakers."

Take Management 12. It explores how to build, buy or rent a home. How to purchase furniture, and how to fix it. What to look for when buying clothes.

Home and Industrial Service is another course for senior students "who might want to become executive housekeepers." Fabrics, foods and the equipment needed to run a catering agency or hotel are all studied.

Sophisticated courses like these demand sophisticated audio-visual aids. Victoria schools are gradually acquiring these. If a girl is struggling with a buttonhole in a sewing class, she can watch a film which illustrates how one performs the tricky stitch.

Home economics departments in high schools are building up resource centres too with collections of extra reading material, books, magazines for students to consult.

The change began after the Chant education report in 1965. It's gathering momentum.

What do students think? Miss Johnson said they are responding favorably.

"Interest in home economics seems to be on the rise."

Minister Suggests Trial Marriages

WINNIPEG (CP)—A Unitarian minister thinks there is a need for "socially sanctioned trial marriages" and more-liberal divorce laws.

Rev. Norman V. Naylor of the Unitarian Centre in Winnipeg says "I have come to think this would be preferable to what we now have through the pre-marital counselling I have done."

He said a couple should live together for a year to test their relationship, and birth control would have to be agreed to.

Most mature couples in terms of readiness for marriage, he said, have been those who have lived together for a while before deciding to get married.

Mr. Naylor believes at least 10 hours of pre-marital counselling should be required by law, to make marriage more difficult to get into and to make sure people understand what they are doing.

"I think divorce laws should be eased much more than is the present case," he said.

He also sees a need for divorce counselling.

"Divorce counselling would be dedicated to ascertaining whether or not people really wanted a divorce, and if not, to give them marriage counselling.

"But if so, then divorce counselling would help them to minimize the pain of separation and maximize their ability to embark on a healthier and more fulfilling life than was known by them previously."

The Unitarian minister said couples on the verge of separation or divorce should not feel guilty about the effects on their children.

"Children, however distressed they are at first by the breakup of the home," he said, "are in the end less damaged by divorce than by the continuation of a bad parent relationship.

"I want to emphasize this very strongly because the people who go through these experiences never deserve the social discrimination that is often heaped upon them."

To Thank You...

We, the Sisters of the Love of Jesus, in charge of the Good Shepherd Shelter at Mill Bay, wish to thank all our friends who made our Rummage Sale a success . . . and to inform you that our Family Supply Store is open daily from 10 to 5.

All proceeds go to Animal Welfare Work. The Shelter for lost, stray and abandoned animals, including horses, seemingly the largest in Canada, is supported entirely by donations.

No animal in trouble is refused admission or denied the right to live.

Donations of good salable articles for the store are gratefully accepted—and for the use of the animals—newspapers and old blankets. Should you be cleaning out your freezer we have 150 dogs to feed.

We publish a quarterly magazine "The Shepherd's Crook". . . if your pet dies we have a nice cemetery. We cordially invite you to visit the Shelter, open every day except Sunday.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Women of the World Unite Against the Enemy, FAT

Lowman

Well, what do you know? Some of my pals 'way out there in Pakistan also have skin blemishes and figure defects. These problems are international and bind women together with sympathetic understanding. It is too bad that the governments of the world do not seem to have such a strong bond. They would join together against any enemy.

I have just received a few letters from my readers in Karachi, where the Morning News prints my column. Wouldn't it be fun if all the women of the world could get together? I'll tell you one thing! There would be a lot of conversation about overweight, measurements, complexion and hair styling, fashions, and a wonderful exchange of recipes, as well as talk about nutrition, child care and other serious problems.

LETTER FROM KARACHI

"Dear Madam,

"I read your article entitled "Why Grow Old" regularly and find it helpful to defective figures. I am a girl of 20 and my height is 5 feet and 6 and my weight is 125 pounds.

"Only a month back I weighed 112 pounds which I think was quite satisfactory, but now I am gaining day by day and all of my clothes have become tight, especially at the hipline. My measurements are, 34, 25 and 40 inches. I am very much worried. Please reply to me through my favorite newspaper."

A. You should not lose more than seven pounds, even if you have a small frame. Your problem is, as it is for many women, a question of weight distribution. Your hip measurement is out of line. Exercise is your answer.

EXERCISE FOR HIPS

Lose five to seven pounds and do this exercise regularly. Sit on the floor with your back and legs straight. Keep them this way and keep your heels on the floor and you roll over to the right on your right hip. Catch yourself with your hands. Still keeping your heels on the floor. Continue.

In my question box next Friday, I will answer another letter from a Pakistan reader.

In her new booklet, "Dial-a-Figure," Mrs. Lowman gives personalized help. If you would like a copy, please send $1 and your printed name and address with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

—Mrs. John A. Franklin and Family

With sincere thanks and appreciation to all the many friends who expressed their sympathy at the recent death of my beloved husband David S. Chapman. Also special thanks to Dr. Lucas and the nurses of Royal Jubilee Hospital.
—Anne Chapman

9 IN MEMORIAM

LUMLEY—In loving memory of our mother, Mrs. M. Lumley, taken from us March 21, 1961.
Our lips cannot tell how we miss her,
My heart cannot tell what to say;
God alone knows how we miss her
In a home that is lonesome today.
—Ever remembered by her sons and daughters, grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

McCLURE— In memory of Edwin Hall McClure who passed away March 21st, 1960.
Always remembered.
—Isabelle and Sandra

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

"Well, partner!" growled North, "you just about won first prize for throwing the dummy."

"What do you mean?" replied South. "I know I could have made my contract by stripping my hand, running all my trumps and throwing West in with his last heart to make him lead a diamond up to my ace-queen. But that play would fail if hearts were to divide 3-3 or if West should happen to unguard his king of diamonds. My play was much better. It would work against a 3-3 heart break or if the diamond finesse was on for me."

"Not that at all," said North. "I was referring to your play of the jack of hearts at trick one."

"How was I to know that East held the doubleton queen?" said South.

South's play at trick one was as bad as North thought it was. At slam contract you play as safely as possible to make the slam and disregard overtricks. You take the overtrick only if it comes with no risk.

South did not need to take a heart finesse. He would make his contract any time West held the queen. He should win the first heart with his king. Then, after drawing trumps, he would cash dummy's ace. This time the queen would drop and everything would be fine. But, if the queen did not drop, South could come back to his hand and lead a third heart toward dummy's jack. If West held the queen, this would set up the jack for a discard of the diamond queen.

Suppose East held the queen? If hearts were 3-3, the fourth heart would still set up. If East started with four or five to the queen, there would have been no way to develop three heart tricks but the diamond finesse would still be available to declarer.

Parade To Kickoff Campaign

Victoria will be treated to an early Easter parade Saturday when the B.C. Society for Crippled Children sponsors a 15-mile parade marking the Easter Seal campaign which runs to April 6.

The parade will assemble at Saanich's health and welfare office on Vernon Avenue and move off at 10:15 a.m.

The route will see participants driving along Douglas, Belleville, Fort, Foul Bay, Lansdowne and Shelbourne. At the Shelbourne Shopping Plaza the Victoria Chinatown Drum and Bell Corps will give a 15-minute program.

The parade will then continue along Cedar Hill Cross Road to the corner of Quadra and MacKenzie, along Quadra, Yates and Wharf Street, over the Johnson Street bridge, and along Esquimalt Road to the Canadian Forces Base, Esquimalt, dispersing outside the gym at 12:45 p.m.

Taking part in the parade will be president and officials of local Lions clubs, riding in open decorated cars. Easter Seal buses will also be paraded.

Local singer, Gina Mayes, will also be along in an open car to sing a special song which she has composed in honor of the current campaign.

Condition Poor

An eight-year-old girl is still unconscious and in poor condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital following a car-bicycle accident Thursday evening.

Susan Bergman, of 855 Richmond, suffered head and other undetermined injuries in the accident. She is under intensive care.

Police said Susan's bicycle came out of a sloping driveway at 1598 Rockland and hit a car, westbound on Rockland, driven by Christopher Banks, 2997 Sea View Drive.

The impact threw the girl from her bicycle and her head apparently struck the car's windshield, police said.

HITS POWER POLE

The accident happened at about 5:30 p.m.

A car that struck a power pole on Esquimalt Road several hours later resulted in two persons being sent to hospital.

Driver Danny Simmons, 19, of CFB Esquimalt, is in good condition with superficial injuries, a navy spokesman reported. Passenger Georgina Pointe, 19, of 1078 Esquimalt, is in fair condition with a broken collar bone and a possible broken hip.

Police said the car, eastbound on Esquimalt, apparently went out of control 230 feet east of Bowlsby, mounted the south curb and hit the pole.

Damage to the car was heavy.

S.F. Campus Strike Over

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Black Students Union has called quits on a strike which disrupted the San Francisco State College campus for 4½ months, with frequent violence and 700 arrests.

The end was signalled by two leaders of the walkout — Union Chairman Benny Stewart and Jerry Varnado — in an announcement Thursday at the school cafeteria.

Public Urged To Co-Operate In Drug Battle

RCMP Superintendent H. F. Law called on the public today to join police in battling the increasing drug traffic, mostly marijuana and particularly among young people.

"Many members of the community are concerned about it, they worry about it, but do nothing."

He invited anyone with information on drug use to call 384-0541 and ask for the "drug squad."

The increase in drug offences has led to creation of a team to specialize on such investigations, he said. He declined to say who would head it or how many members it would have.

Vancouver is the only other centre in the province with an RCMP squad specializing in drug cases.

There were three arrests on Vancouver Island relating to marijuana in 1966, Law said. The total last year passed 100 and there have been 30 to date this year.

Formation of the drug squad, which will be based in Victoria, is "nothing special," he added.

"Police work has growth, just like any business."

Both city and Saanich police have worked closely with the RCMP on drug investigation and will continue to do so.

While marijuana is the most popular drug by a good margin, the superintendent said there is no evidence to suggest use of other drugs like LSD or Methderine is on the wane.

It depends very much on what's available and what's in short supply at any given time.

Police believe most of the local marijuana supply comes through the U.S. from Mexico.

"If the public gets behind its police forces we can beat this thing," said the Island RCMP head.

Goodwill Passes $500,000 Mark

For the first time in its 11 years of existence Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped's income passed the half-million dollar mark last year.

George A. Gray, president-treasurer, reported an annual income of $553,787 (a rise of $65,597 over the previous year's figures) at the annual meeting held in the Goodwill Rehabilitation Centre Wednesday.

"The increase," he said, "resulted in us being able to help a record number of Islanders, 314 in all.

"Of these, 237 were provided with employment or training at either the Rehabilitation Centre, the branch workshop in Nanaimo or the Goodwill stores at Victoria, Duncan, Nanaimo and Courtenay."

Gray said a further 77 persons were helped through professional assessment and counselling services, made available through Vancouver Island's government-operated local Regional Rehabilitation Committees.

Robert W. Dudley, manager and director of rehabilitation, listed Goodwill's major developments in the past year as: the opening of the new store at Courtenay, opening of a new kitchen at the Rehabilitation Centre, the centre's participation in community services such as "Meals on Wheels," and the widening of Rotary Club sponsorship to include the Victoria, Duncan, Nanaimo and Courtenay clubs.

MORE IN WAGES

The year's total of wages paid to Goodwill trainees and employees, $384,364, represented an increase of $72,648.

Dudley paid tribute to the citizens whose increasing donations of used clothing and other articles had made this year's advances possible.

Gray was re-elected president-treasurer.

Other officers are: Dr. R. J. Wride, vice-president; Walter White, secretary; L. W. Anderton, Courtenay; J. W. Bayne, L. F. Detwiller, health science centre of UBC; Dr. H. M. Edmison, H. B. Elworthy, R. E. Fawdry, Nanaimo; H. St. G. Gray, Duncan; J. M. Green, M. L. Greene, J. G. Housez, D. E. Johaneson, Dr. Robert Stark and A. E. Walters.

R. W. Phipps and J. D. Patterson were re-elected as honorary director and honorary solicitor respectively.

Girl Gets Four Months For Uttering

A woman who falsified bank records and credited $800 to her account was sentenced in central court Thursday to four months in prison.

Louise Janet Burback, 434 Vincent, pleaded guilty earlier to two counts of uttering. Her lawyer, Sean Howard, has asked for a suspended term.

In passing sentence Magistrate William Ostler referred to the Appeal Court judgment which recently increased from three to six years the sentence given a Penticton woman who stole nearly $500,000 from a bank she worked in.

"I propose no such sentence in this case," he said. "But this woman took advantage of her position of trust."

He said the two cases were "apposite."

Magistrate Ostler noted the higher court judgment referred to insufficient supervision of persons working with money in banks or similar operations. He said he was making no comment on that.

He told Howard that before his representations on behalf of the woman he was considering a six-month term. The woman had been in custody for two weeks awaiting sentence.

Earlier court heard the woman deposited about $800 to her account through her job as a proof operator at the Bank of Montreal, 1225 Douglas. She did this without going through a teller.

Songhees Band Re-Elects Chief

The Songhees Indian council will continue to develop a new subdivision for young people on the Craigflower reserve, John Albany, who was re-elected chief Thursday, said today.

The 53-year-old chief defeated his brother, Dick, by three votes in a contest for chieftain in band elections. He received a total of 18 votes as against 15 cast in favor of his brother.

Councillors elected were Harry Kamai and Robert Sam.

Albany said the voting was light because the majority of band members were seeking or engaged in temporary employment on the mainland and in Washington.

The chief said the band was developing a 22-lot subdivision situated on the west side of the reserve near the Gorge Vale Golf Club.

"Two homes are presently under construction," he said. "We hope to have several more go up before the end of the year."

He said homes will be serviced with water and lighting and all roads blacktopped. A playground would be developed for children.

Wins Big Trip

LAKE COWICHAN — Steve Nahirnick, father of six children and an employee of B.C. Forest Products at Youbou for 17 years, has won this year's Carnival International European trip for two.

The carnival was held in Duncan March 15.

Nahirnick said he though someone was "pulling my leg when they told me I won. I called back to make sure it wasn't a prank."

Ground Plants Save Labor

By HILDA BASTALL

Ground covering plants prove their usefulness as labor savers once they become well established. In their early years they need careful training as do all young things.

Hilda

Among the more commonly used ground covers is Euonymus fortunei variegata (unfortunately listed under several similar names) "Silver Queen." The tiny green and white leaves persisting over winter, turn a dull rose in color. This is useful on sunny slopes and in rocky ground.

To encourage the plants to make a dense covering, prune back the long runners in spring each year until growth is well spread.

For poorer soil where only small pockets and crevices between hot rocks are available, Polyganum vaccinifolium will provide color and interest in summer and fall. Tiny green leaves and inch-high stems of pink flowers in fall are its merits.

The slender stems will root as they run, and this can be encouraged in spring by anchoring runners with small stones into soil depressions among the rocks.

Vinca minor is dwarf periwinkle, a ground cover for shrubs receiving shade during the hottest part of the day in summer.

The vaireity known as Bowles' Variety has lovely blue blossoms from early spring through summer. Runners can be pegged down into moist soil where they will root, extending their range.

An unusual cover for sloping ground, but needing attention each spring is a variegated honeysuckle to form a dropping curtain of gold and pink mixed with green. Its name is Lonicera reticulata aurea. The long ends must be clipped back early each spring for it is the new growths which bear the brightest variegation.

When Cancer Of Breast Comes Back

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

I fear that this column will be a bit technical, but I will do my best here to help those thousands of women who after having had a cancerous breast removed, are now being told 1) that when first operated on the cancer had already scattered; or 2) that a year or two later, when a pain appeared perhaps in the chest, it was due to metastases (scattered colonies of cancer cells).

Alvarez

Years ago, in many such cases nothing could be done; but then Dr. Charles Huggins of the University of Chicago, popularized two types of treatment, both designed to slow the growth of the scattered cancer cells derived from a sexual organ.

In one technique, male hormone was given, but a number of physicians gave this up because it tended often to make a woman very uncomfortable. It might make hair grow on her face, and it often caused much desire for sexual intercourse, but intercourse which was usually unsatisfactory.

Another measure that often helped, if the woman was under 50, and was still menstruating (which showed that she still had functioning ovaries), was either to remove the ovaries surgically or to damage them with X-rays. This helped perhaps one in three of the women.

If the cancer cells went on growing, the surgeon could remove the two very important adrenal glands which lie just above the kidneys. They make cortisone and other powerful hormones. Their removal may give the woman another extension of life. Some women refuse the operation, saying that they are not that anxious to get another several months of life.

Sometimes the surgeon will suggest removing the very important hypophysis — a gland which lies at the base of the brain. Today a number of surgeons say that tthe best way of getting out that gland is through the nose. Again, some woman say it is a big operation, and they prefer not to undergo it.

In a few places, men try to put the hypothysis out of business with the help of powerful radiation.

★ ★ ★

I was just reading a fine article on this still controversial subject in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Experts said that if a woman's cancer is not well quieted by removal of her ovaries, and if it comes back soon after removal of her breast, she has only one chance in six of getting more help from removal of her adrenals.

A while ago I read a paper by an expert who felt that removal of the hypophysis is not likely to give the woman any more help than she can get from removal of her adrenal glands, and sometimes removal of the ovaries will work about as well as will removal of the adrenals.

Doubtless in the next few years, with the gathering of more statistics, the experts will become surer of what is the best operation in a given case. One point that some surgeons make now is that good results from the removal of the ovaries and perhaps adrenals are most likely to be obtained when the breast cancer is of low malignancy — as shown by the fact that it did not come back to bother the woman until two years after the breast was removed.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Early Canadians Got Baby Bonuses

By BOB BOWMAN

A census was taken in Canada in 1666 and on March 21 it was announced that the population was 3,000! They were people from France, and Indians were not included. Progress had been slow since Champlain founded Quebec in 1608, but there had been a great improvement since the first census in 1640 which showed there were only 375 citizens!

Bowman

In the meantime the population in the English colonies to the south had become far greater and was increasing rapidly. This was because the people in the English colonies had come to stay. The French who came to Canada, for the most part, hoped to make some money from the fur trade and return to France.

King Louis XIV and his great Intendant (business manager) in Canada, Jean Talon, realized that drastic steps must be taken if Canada was to have a future. The Carignan-Sailieres Regiment had been sent to Quebec to try to get the Iroquois under control, and officers and men were offered land if they would remain. Many of them did and some cities and towns in Quebec were named after them.

The next problem was to find wives for them so they would settle down and have children. It was then that King Louis and Talon arranged to bring out carefully selected girls from France, mostly from Normandy, and the bachelors were practically forced to marry them. Parents were fined if their sons were not married by the time they were 20, and daughters when they were 16 years old.

The system worked well although the bachelors of Trois Rivieres and Montreal had reason to complain. The "King's Girls" arrived at Quebec and the bachelors there got the first choice. Those who were left were taken on to Trois Rivieres and Montreal.

More than 1,000 babies were baptized one year after the first shipload of King's Girls arrived in Canada and King Louis gave 300 livres a year to parents who produced 10 children, and 400 livres for 12 children. So Canada had "baby bonuses" in 1669.

Other events on March 21:

1629—Champlain was appointed Cardinal Richelieu's representative in Canada.

1663—Louis Robert was appointed to be the first Intendant in Canada but never came.

1864—Political crisis caused government to resign.

1895—Remedial order relating to Manitoba Separate Schools was intended to restore rights to Roman Catholics.

1896—A Commission was appointed to settle the Manitoba Separate Schools question.

1911—Duke of Connaught was made Governor-General of Canada.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Norman Cox, age 12, of Fontana, California, for his question:

Why are there 360 degrees in a circle?

When you ponder the problems of degrees it is wise to anchor your thoughts to one basic fact. The degree is a man-made measuring unit, but it does not have one special length or size assigned to it like the inch or the foot. Every circle, large or small, has exactly 360 degrees, and the size of the degree depends on the size of the circle.

Nature did not plan to divide a circle into 360 equal degrees. These degrees are man-made measuring units invented for the convenience of people who need to cope with sections, or arcs, of the complete circle.

Our neat and simple metric system of figuring is based on tens. But inches and dozens prove that a workable number system can be based on 12. In fact, a number system based on seven, nine or any other number can be worked out. The Magi of ancient Babylon were talented astronomers and mathematicians. And they used a number system based on sixes. Their system was chock full of sixes and related numbers such as three and nine, 12 and 24, 90 and 360.

Early astronomers saw the heavens as an inverted bowl. Circles and segments of circles were needed to map and chart it. A celestial gridwork was invented in Babylon thousands of years ago. And naturally the Magi used their pet number system to partition the circles. They divided the circular circumference line in 360 degrees — which is six times 60. They divided each degree into 60 equal minutes and each minute into 60 seconds.

Complex Problem

The Babylonian 360 degrees are fairly easy figures to handle and stayed in style through thousands of years. One reason for resisting improvement lies in the complex nature of the circle itself. Its circumference units are related to angles and corners of all geometric figures. Draw wheel-spoke lines from the pinpoint centre of a circle to the circumference. Each spoke is a radius, and all the radius lines are equal. Two radii form a pie slice and the pointed corner is an angle. When two radii encompass one degree of the circumference, they form an angle of one degree.

The two radii of a quarter circle form a 90-degree angle. If we change the old 360-degree system, we will have to remodel our entire system of measuring corners and angles. We remodelled the temperature scale, but the old Fahrenheit scale and the newer Centigrade scale still cause confusion. A switch in our angle system would lead to even more confusion.

However, some mathematicians think a more simplified circle measuring system would be worthwhile. Naturally the old system of sixes would be swapped for a system based on the tens of the neat metric system. Maybe the circle would be segmented into 1,000 degrees —ten times ten times ten. The right angle created by the radii of a quarter circle would be 250 degrees. The remodelled system would be neater — but very confusing to people used to the 90-degree right angle which has been in style for at least 4,000 years.

★ ★ ★

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Dave Batic, age 12, of Brownsburg, Indiana, for his question:

What has falling water to do with electricity?

We can do a lot of things without understanding all the whys and wherefores. The why of generating electric current is still somewhat mysterious, but the job of doing it is quite simple. We need a magnet which, naturally, is surrounded by an invisible field of magnetic force. We need a copper coil or disc set to rotate throught the magnetic field, cutting its lines of force again and again. Now we link this gadget to the two ends of a copper wire circuit. As the force field is cut by the copper, in some mysterious way a current of electricity is sent through the wire circuit. We are generating electricity.

Our gadget, of course, has a moving part that requires energy to keep it going. We could turn our little generator with a hand crank. We could harness a bigger generator to a steam engine. But the cheapest way to keep the moving parts of a generator spinning is to find a waterfall. Fix a giant water wheel so that the falling water keeps it turning and hitch its motion to the generator. The waterfall then turns the wheel that turns either a magnet around copper coils or copper coils through the force field of a magnet. In this way, falling water generates electric current.

NIXON TO GET ENVOY'S VIEWS

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon is expected to seek from Ellsworth Bunker in consultations starting this weekend the ambassador's views on how soon South Vietnam may be politically and militarily strong enough to permit the withdrawal of some United States troops.

Nixon already has the views on U.S. troop reduction of his defence secretary, Melvin R. Laird, who made a warzone inspection last week. Laird said that he saw no prospect for early withdrawals.

Administration officials say that no decisions on policy changes are due to come out of these talks. They also picture the process of ending or reducing the war in Vietnam as a long one. Nevertheless, some further development of Nixon's Vietnam policies seems likely soon.

Heavy Damage To U.S. Bases

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese smashed at United States bases with renewed fury today, hitting them with rockets, mortars and infantry assaults that caused serious casualties and losses of aircraft, vehicles and fuel.

In one of the heaviest series of blows since the opening of the spring offensive 27 nights ago, rockets and mortars hit 65 military bases and towns, and infantry assaults ripped into three of the bases.

It was the largest number of attacks since last Friday, when 70 bases and towns were hit.

All of the infantry attacks were on American bases along the northwest approaches to Saigon, between 31 and 51 miles from the capital. Twelve Americans were killed and 47 wounded, while known Viet Cong losses were 38 dead, U.S. spokesmen said.

Meanwhile, no major contact was reported today in the big U.S. counteroffensive, known as Operation Atlas Wedge. Military spokesmen said that the American troops have killed more than 200 Viet Cong since the operation was launched Tuesday. Fewer than half a dozen Americans have been killed and a little more than 40 wounded, they said.

Israeli Jet Bombers Hammer Jordan Again

By United Press International

Jordan reported new attacks by Israeli jet fighter-bombers today and said anti-aircraft fire shot down one plane half a mile east of the Allenby Bridge across the Jordan River, killing the pilot.

It was the fourth time this week Israeli jets have been reported in action against Jordan. There was no immediate Israeli confirmation of today's raid but earlier Israeli attacks were directed against Al Fatah commando bases in Jordan, Israeli military spokesmen reported in Jerusalem.

Jordan said the planes attacked after Israel and Jordan exchanged artillery fire near the bridge.

COAST PARK HAILED BY CONSERVATIONISTS

The government's decision to include the West Coast trail in the national marine park was hailed by conservationists today as a major acquisition for the people of British Columbia. (See story Page 8.)

"It's the first natural marine parkway set aside as a park in the province," said Elton Anderson, 3905 Benson, an official of the B.C. Nature Council. "Such a park is long over-due."

Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan in the legislature Thursday said the west coast national park would not only include Long Beach but the Effingham Islands at the entrance of Barklay Sound and 65-miles of coastline from Port Renfrew to Bamfield.

The coastline park, half a mile in depth, was the route of the old telegraph trail.

Anderson said there were small marine parkways situated along highways, but the west coast fringe was the first large natural coastline park.

"It's a major public acquisition," he said, "but I feel more of Vancouver Island's coastline should be preserved. The northern part of the Island should have a large marine park."

He was also pleased that the government had included the Effingham Islands before they all fall into private hands.

Bruce Scott, 1173 Hewlett Place, who has campaigned for years to preserve the West Coast trail, said it would attract outdoorsmen throughout Canada and the United States.

"That is as long as it is kept in its wilderness state," he said. The beauty of the coast is its wilderness aspects. Keep it that way. If people want to see it, let them walk."

More Services to Come Under Regional Control

New War Plan Ready—U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird pledged today that if the Paris peace talks fail to end the conflict in Vietnam, "we will have an alternative as far as the war is concerned other than the present conduct."

He did not say what that alternative would be.

Laird made that statement after Senator J. W. Fulbright (Dem. Ark.) shifted the course of a United States Senate hearing from the newly-proposed anti-ballistic missile system with a critique of Nixon administration handling of the Vietnam war.

Fulbright said the question of armaments and their control is linked with that of the Southeast Asian conflict.

"Isn't it possible, Mr. Secretary, to realize that we are not now and never have been winning this war?" he asked Laird.

"I would just like to say that this administration is committed to end the war in Vietnam," Laird said.

Then he declared:

"I want you to know that we are hopeful that we will be successful in the Paris peace talks . . . but if we are not successful, and we pray for success, I can assure you that we will have an alternative as far as the war is concerned other than the present conduct of that war."

He said peace efforts are being made privately, as well as formally and publicly.

Laird and Fulbright then disagreed on whether the U.S. effort in Vietnam has escalated under the Nixon administration.

Laird said: "Since this administration took office on Jan. 20 there has been no escalation of the war as far as the United States and South Vietnamese forces are concerned."

Earlier, Laird denied the administration dropped the old Sentinel missile defence project because of public protests, insisting that the change came "because we have a better system."

Laird said discussion of a shift from city defences under the Sentinel system to President Nixon's plan to defend U.S. offensive nuclear bases with anti-ballistic missiles was under way even before public protests against deployment near Boston, Chicago and Seattle.

On Thursday, Laird said the Canadian government had been completely briefed on the original United States decision to start a missile defence system.

But he did not reply to a question from New Hampshire Senator Thomas McIntyre, who asked whether the U.S. has asked Canada's permission to explode missiles over Canadian territory.

A state department official told a reporter the United States has not asked Canada for permission to fire missiles over Canadian territory.

U.S. Needs More Just to Be Equal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union could kill 55 per cent of the U.S. population by hitting American population centres with as few as 200 nuclear-armed missiles, Defence Secretary Melvin R. Laird said today.

He said the Soviet missile stockpile represented a "first strike" force while the U.S. missiles were conceived of as retaliatory power.

In making public a Pentagon appraisal of America's vulnerability to missile attack and its ability to hit back, Laird said it would take 1,200 U.S. missiles of the same power to kill 45 per cent of the Russian population.

Laird read to a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee an assessment he said was given to committees of Congress in classified form in February, 1965, by then defence secretary Robert S. McNamara.

"The studies showed that U.S. population and industry are far more concentrated than are the population and industry of the Soviet Union," Laird said.

"With only 200 delivered one-megaton warheads (equal to 1 million tons of TNT each) the Soviets could destroy a greater percentage of the population of the United States than our country, with 1,200 delivered one-megaton warheads, could destroy of the Soviet population."

NOT PARITY

Laird's point was that the present stituation, in which the United States and Russia have approximately 1,000 land-based intercontinental missiles each, does not represent "parity."

"In terms of retaliatory ICBM capability alone, parity falls in the vicinity of 1,200 deliverable warheads for the United States versus 200 deliverable warheads for the Soviet Union," he said.

Health Now— Planning Next

By JOHN MIKA and JIM HUME

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell has told Greater Victoria municipalities to amalgamate two more regional services.

In a double-barrelled announcement in the legislature Thursday the minister authorized the transfer of the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health to regional jurisdiction and cleared the way for the take-over of the Capital Regional Planning Board.

Mayor Hugh Stephen, chairman of the Regional District this year, welcomed both moves, although neither came as a surprise.

For almost 18 months regional district authorities have been preparing the way for the health services take-over. Thursday's decision by Campbell would indicate that the government has finally accepted the 80-20 cost sharing formula proposed by the municipalites.

The province picks up the 80 per cent tab and the 20 per cent is spread over all members of the Regional District Board.

On the planning move Stephen said "the minister has virtually said 'we are going to give you one more year to get planning into the broader concept.'"

Campbell didn't say he was forcing planning into the regional district organization. But he did state that after March, 1970, provincial funds would be cut off from capital region planners.

'Assume Decision Made on Costs'

"I think we all anticipated this move," Stephen said. "With the new amendments to the act, based virtually on Victoria's suggested changes, the city is no longer reluctant to take in planning.

"My own personal feeling is that (capital region) planning should come under the regional district board. I think the minister has opened the door as wide as he can and I'm very hopeful that Regional District Board members will take another look and not wait until next March to make a decision."

When regional planning was first suggested as a regional district function, Victoria balked at the possibility of being deprived of its own zoning and planning rights.

Amendments were made to retain the city's rights to plan its own development.

In the meantime Saanich has become the chief hold-out with both Mayor Hugh Curtis and regional district director Ald. Leslie Passmore urging a go-slow policy and further study.

Campbell's decision to eliminate $20,000 in provincial grants to the planning board is expected to force a Regional District Board decision before year-end.

Everyone Anticipated Move

Although Campbell made no mention of cost-sharing formula for the health board transfer Stephen said he "assumed that in fact a decision has been made on the 80-20 basis we suggested."

All discussions with the provincial government have been on that basis.

At present time the provincial government picks up most of cost for public health services in Saanich and other rural areas while Esquimalt, Victoria and Oak Bay are forced to meet a much heavier bill for the same service.

Last year the three municipalitis paid $153,000 for public health services. Saanich budgeted $23,000 for its public health services for the same period.

The new formula would see all members of the regional district paying for the same service on an assessment and population basis.

With two new functions under its wing there is little doubt that the regional district will also be faced with an expansion of staff.

At present only two staff members are on full payroll, executive director William Long and one secretary typist.

It is expected that in the near future the district will be forced to hire an accountant and at least one more secretary-typist.

With the addition of Metro Health and planning the Regional District Board now controls regional park development, sewer trunk design and construction, garbage disposal, firecracker sales, and under a slightly different name, hospital development and construction.

Mao Returns Nuclear Warning

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Mao Tse-tung, Chinese Communist party chairman, is quoted as warning Russia that China would retaliate in kind to a Soviet nuclear attack. "If the Russians dare use nuclear missiles, we'll do the same," the Hong Kong Star quotes him as telling an emergency party meeting following the first Sino-Soviet border clash March 2 on the Ussuri River.

Canada Poised to Arrest Norwegian Seal Hunters

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said today Norwegian seal-hunt vessels have been causing "difficulties" off Labrador and an icebreaking protection ship has been sent to arrest any Norwegians inside territorial waters.

Mr. Davis, giving the Commons a review of the seal hunt to date, said there were 14 Norwegian and six Canadian ships off the Labrador Front to take seal pups.

There had been "some difficulty" with the Norwegians and one was definitely seen taking seals inside Canadian territorial waters near the Hamilton Inlet area last Saturday.

The small fisheries protection vessel in the general area had been unable to get to the spot because of heavy ice, but radio messages warned off the Norwegians.

The icebreaker Sir Humphrey Gilbert, with a helicopter aboard, was dispatched to the Hamilton Inlet area from St. John's, Nfld., with orders to arrest the Norwegian vessel if it were found inside territorial waters.

Low visibility and high winds have hampered fisheries protection operations.

Mr. Davis said the earlier hunt in the Gulf of St. Lawrence was called off after 35,000 seal pups were taken instead of the usual annual quota of 50,000 because the seal population is down this year.

Mr. Davis said the adult female population in the gulf was estimated this year at 250,000 instead of the usual 750,000 to 1,000,000.

In addition, ice breakups caused many drownings of pups at birth or shortly afterwards.

Authorities expressed concern about conservation and there were fears any bigger hunt in the gulf would have wiped out an entire year's new population, Mr. Davis said.

James A. McGrath (PC—St. John's East) said the difficulty in reaching the Norwegian vessel indicates the inadequacy of fisheries protection vessels to enforce Canadian jurisdiction. There was obviously a need to increase the number of such vessels.

He said the depleted herds this year are "a real cause for concern." Steps to protect seals in the Gulf of St. Lawrence were not effective unless there was protection for the main herd off the Labrador coast.

Soldiers Snap Anguillan Protesters

ANGUILLA (CP) — Units of a British occupation force moved into the eastern part of tiny Anguilla today where dissident islanders are believed to be concentrated.

At the same time another 140 paratroops took up position on the island after being ferried over from neighboring Antigua by RAF planes Thursday.

Grinning police and soldiers Thursday lined the road in the village called The Valley, taking photographs of a procession of Anguillan demonstrators.

The demonstrators rallied in a nearby park later to hear Ronald Webster, self-styled president deposed by the British, say he called for a referendum to determine the future of the scrub-covered Caribbean isle.

Earlier, Webster told a news conference his three-point referendum — Anguillan independence, association with Britain or association with St. Kitts—was turned down by Tony Lee, newly-installed British commissioner of the island.

Webster, who led Anguilla's breakaway from the British-created island federation of St. Kitts - Nevis - Anguilla, proposed the referendum in a letter he handed to Lee.

The letter was signed "chief executive and president-elect" a title which the commissioner has refused to recognize. The letter followed a cable Webster sent to Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart calling for the withdrawal of British troops.

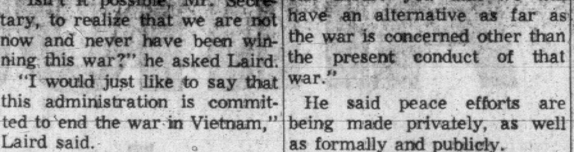
Webster told reporters he wants a cabinet minister to come to the island to gather the views of its 6,000 people.

The British government, which sent paratroops, Royal Marine commandos and police in before dawn Wednesday to restore legal authority, promised the islanders they will not be forced "to return to an administration you do not want."

Lee said he would not rule out the possibility of a referendum sometime in the future but that he planned to appoint an advisory board of Anguillans to govern the island until its status is clarified. He has said earlier the British occupation of Anguilla might last several years.

Meanwhile, the British government resolved to pursue what it calls its "rescue operation" by heaping development and technical help on the rebel islanders.

There are plans to provide power, water, sewers, roads, bridges, schools and hospitals on the impoverished island. The Anguillans say it was the neglect of such services which led them to break away from Britain after more than 300 years of colonization.



Anyway, th' Anguilla occupation solves th' summer vacation problem fer a few hundred troops.

B.C. Wharves

B.C. Wharves Ltd. announced Wednesday it has scrapped its plan to develop a multi-million dollar deep-sea loading terminal at Kitimat.

The Vancouver-based company said it has agreed to sell its 140-acre foreshore property to Eurocan Pulp and Paper Co. Ltd. which is constructing a plant here. Purchase price was not announced.

Seaway-Hector

TORONTO — An agreement for the purchase of $13 million Hector Steel Industries Ltd. by Seaway Multi-Corp. Ltd. has been reached say the presidents of the companies, Samuel Hector of Calgary, and Norton Cooper, of Seaway.

Terms of the agreement call for payment of $3.5 million on closing and up to an additional $6 million of which $4.5 million is related to future earnings.

Hector Steel Industries and its subsidiaries, Hercules Ltd. and Larson and EPP Industries Ltd. control steel and pipe warehousing centres, as well as a materials handling company with facilities located in Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver, Saskatoon and Regina.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Small Gain at Toronto

In light trading the Toronto Stock Exchange posted a small advance today.

The market opened mixed, dipped after two hours but picked up in later dealings.

The New York market closed lower today. Trading was moderate near the close.

AT TORONTO in industrials, Investors Overseas was up 2½ to 121, Carrier Shoe 1½ to 16½ and Great Lakes Paper 1½ to 28. Neon was down 1⅜ to 29½.

Dynasty gained ¾ to 15⅝ and Endako ¾ to 12½. Hollinger was off ¾ to 31¾.

Asamera rose 1½ to 35½ and Great Plains ⅞ to 31. Charter Oil dropped 2 to 10½.

AT NEW YORK prices near the close included: Great Western Financial, off ⅛ at 26½; General American Oil, off ¼ at 64¼; Roan Selection Trust, up 1 at 13; Occidental Petroleum, off 1⅜ at 42⅝; Natomas, up ¼ at 59⅝.

AT MONTREAL prices were mixed during moderately active trading today.

Banks, unable to hold the lead gained Thursday, following an increase in prime lending rates, slipped slightly.

Highlighting gains were Consolidated Textiles, up 1¼ to 15½; MacKinnon, 2 to 16, and Industrial Acceptance ⅞ to 26⅞. Texaco Canada added ¾ to 32; Walker-Gooderham ¾ to 41½; Velcro Industries ¾ to 50¾, and International Pipe Lines ⅜ to 19½.

AT LONDON prices were mostly steady in quiet trading today on the stock exchange although some leading industrials lost the gains they posted earlier in the session.

Becham, Dunlop, Turner and GEC added three pence or more and Thorn recovered from Thursday's fall with the A shares 2 shillings higher. Bowater added three pence and Hawker rose 2 shillings.

Shell was strong in oils with a rise of 1s 4½d.

Canadian banks were strong following Thursday's prime rate increases although initial gains were not fully held. Royal Bank jumped 17 shillings, Bank of Nova Scotia added 9s 6d and Toronto Dominion was 7 shillings. Bank of Montreal and Imperial Commerce also gained a few shillings.

Gulf Oil improved by 3½ points and Trans-Canada Pipe Line recorded a similar gain. Alcan was 2 points up while Canadian Pacific and Canadian Husky eased.

AT VANCOUVER about 1,300,000 shares changed hands by noon.

Consolidated Skeena in the mines led the action on a volume of more than 90,000 shares, losing .23 to $1.20.

Embassy in the oils fell .13 to $1.30 and Royal Canadian Ventures was down .30 to $5.

Whonnock in the industrials lost .75 to $24 and EDP dropped 50 cents to $18.50.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Pit operations slowed in trading today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Trading generally was light through the day and prices of most commodities moved to a higher level.

Flax regained some losses posted in sharp declines Thursday and all futures recorded increases of one to two cents on local and commission house trade.

Rapeseed showed good strength on thin offers and exporter and crusher buying. Oats and barley gained fractionally on moderate domestic shipper buying. Rye was almost inactive.

Lakehead prices for class two, IGA and domestic wheat all were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — A United States government decision to suspend temporarily authorizations for donation of wheat abroad sent grain futures prices generally lower on the Board of Trade today.

Trade was mixed and moved at a fairly good pace. Prices had developed some independent strength through most of the session until the announcement from Washington was made.

A great part of the authorizations involved wheat and soybean oil for needy countries.

Victoria Daily Times

Arthur Mayse

At precisely 1:52 p.m. on the first official day of spring, I was loafing with an eye on the blue sky as seen through this newsroom's venetians when my phone rang. The voice at the other end fairly lilted with happiness.

It belonged to a girl, and this is what she said:

"I've been walking on Fort Street, and it's such a lovely day that I couldn't help smiling all over my face."

This conjured up a pleasant picture, but there had to be an angle.

"Pretty soon," the voice went on, "I realized that other people on the street were looking at me. You know, it dawned on me that they were somehow afraid.

"A few truck drivers smiled back at me, and they weren't dirty old man smiles, either. Just friendly.

"But mostly, people gave me "filthy hippy" looks, as if I'd been smoking pot or something, which I haven't been. But I don't care about that, I'm so happy."

(Yes, I realize that this account sounds squirrely, but I'm telling it just as I noted it while she talked.)

I said to my caller, "Tell me about yourself."

"Nothing much to tell," she replied. "I'm very ordinary-looking, I'm 23, I go to Uvic and I have a place of my own. But I'll tell you another reason why I'm happy. You know the song?

She sang it:

" 'I do not have a mansion, I haven't any land,

" 'Nor any paper dollar to crinkle in my hand,

" 'But I can give you music on a thousand hills

" 'And kiss you, and give you seven daffodils'."

★

By this time, I was wondering what the devil a well-married man was doing in a conversation of this sort.

"I think that's from a record by the Limelighters," she bubbled on, merry as a bird. "You see, my friend and I hadn't been getting along too well, but that's over, and he gave me seven daffodils. I had them in a basket on my walk."

At this point, I made a panicky clutch at the world in which people walking down Fort Street are careful not to smile.

"Would you like to tell me your name?"

But she wouldn't, and left me only with a paper of notes to consider.

The residue of winter in my soul makes me wonder whether some young juggins from our academy of higher learning was putting me on.

But I prefer to believe that the happy-talk call was on the up-and-up. In this I'm swayed by the memory of another spring day—raining like blazes—when I saw another girl came walking along Douglas Street below the Bay.

She was, as you might say, buxom, but she had blue-black Irish hair, she walked in her plastic raincoat with a jaunty little bounce, and she too was smiling all over her face.

In any case, I'd sooner get a call like that than some others I've had in a newsman's years.

Like, for instance, the anonymous whisper in the depths of a Vancouver night that said, 'I'm going to kill my wife.'

And he did.

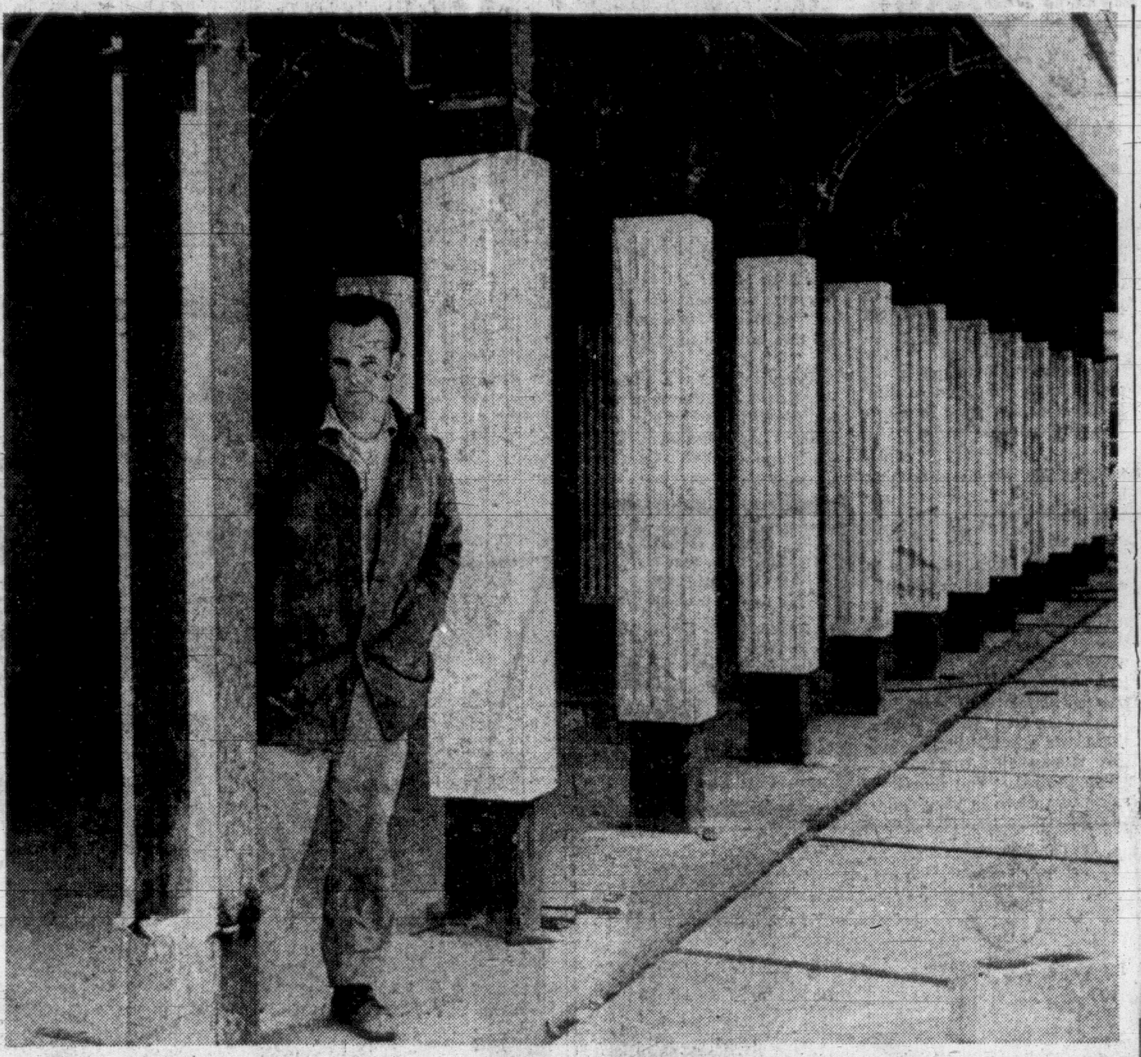
★

But that was in winter, and now we find ourselves arrived, after several false starts, in the true Victoria springtime.

In our own garden, much that we feared lost is putting out leaf, sprout or bud. Also, in spite of their setback, Victoria parks horticulturalist Al Smith predicts that we'll have a good show of flowering-tree bloom for Easter.

Only about 10 per cent of the double pink plum will flower this year in city parks, and that's a pity. But white and light pink varieties are expected to carry about half their usual bloosom load. Also, though the Japanese cherry will bloom sparsely other varieties suffered no bud damage.

A late spring, but all the more welcome for that!



STRIPPED BY THIEVES metal post stands out among row at the Curatorial Building, part of the new government museum and archives on Belleville Street. Standing beside it is Paul Sheppard, foreman for Columbia Marble and Granite Co. of Vancouver. Thieves stole marble sidings from this post and another one (not in picture) some time this week. Seven pieces, measuring six feet by one foot and each weighing 80 pounds were taken from the building now under construction. Total value of the white marble is $500. City police are investigating. Oak Bay to Get $1M Shop Centre

By PAT DUFOUR

Plans for a $1,000,000 shopping centre for Oak Bay were unveiled today by Mayor Fred Hawes.

The complex, to be built on Foul Bay Road between Marrion and Goldsmith, would be developed by Adirondack Properties Ltd. of Vancouver.

Executive director John L. Boultbee said construction would start as soon as possible after final municipal approval.

He forecast it would be completed early in 1970.

THREE READINGS

The zoning bylaw, paving the way for the new development received first, second and third readings at Monday's council meeting.

A public hearing has been called for April 10 with council expected to make the final decision that evening.

Mayor Hawes said: "It is completely in line with our progressive program which is geared to develop the municipality to keep pace with the times and yet retain the attractive, residential atmosphere which attracted our residents here in the first place."

LANDSCAPED

To be called the Heart of Oak Centre, the complex would include a 20,000-square-feet food store, drug store, bank and small shops. The approaches to each would be attractively landscaped and the stores connected with a covered mall.

Plans show that extensive landscaping will give a "green belt" aura to the centre, complemented with strategic placings of trees, shrubs and flower beds.

Mayor Hawes said the developers have worked closely with the municipality.

"The complex has been planned to co-ordinate with our proposed recreation centre which goes to the people for a referendum soon."

TWO-PURPOSE

"It will have parking space for at least 200 cars, and exits and entrances on Foul Bay, Marrion and Bee. The parking area will be available for use of the recreation centre's users during the non-business hours."

The recreation centre, to be located between the new complex and the Oak Bay Junior and Senior Secondary Schools, will contain a branch library, senior citizens' facilities, a swimming pool, ice rink "and possibly a curling rink at some future date."

The date of the referendum will be set after the April 10 hearing.

The hearing also will deal with a zoning bylaw permitting the erection of apartments on municipally-owned land on Cedar Hill Crossroad formerly owned by the Victoria Riding Academy.

If the zoning bylaw passes, money raised from land sales will provide two-thirds of the financing of the proposed recreation centre.

Loan Approved For Improving Colquitz Creek

The provincial government moved Thursday to allow Saanich municipality to borrow up to $1 million to implement efforts to preserve and improve the Colquitz Creek system.

A bill, given first reading in the legislature, would permit the municipality to borrow this money without having to go to a public referendum.

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis welcomed the legislation but cautioned the public not to assume work will start immediately.

The legislation was purely permissive, stating that Saanich may do certain things if it implements the scheme.

"We are by no means complete in our studies," Curtis said, but receiving approval for certain steps is "part of putting it all together." He gave credit for encouragement to Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston and Recreation and Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan.

The Colquitz Creek runs from the south end of Beaver Lake to the east side of Portage Inlet. This is just over six miles and covers a drainage area of 12,500 acres, or nearly three times the size of the city of Victoria.

A Saanich report on this section of the Colquitz, made public in early 1968, put a price tag of $558,000 on purchase of land along the creek to preserve the stream.

Further studies, including Portage Inlet and the Gorge waterway, are being made.

'No Concessions on Sewers'

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark Thursday told the legislature his department will continue insisting on primary treatment for sewage and will refuse to bow to demands from real estate promoters for special concessions.

Loffmark was applauded as he replied to Ernie LeCours (SC—Richmond) who said the minister should insist on secondary treatment for municipal sewage going into rivers or salt water.

LeCours said removal of solids through primary treatment is not enough to prevent the "slimy and stinky" contamination of lower mainland beaches near the Iona treatment plant.

He said a two-mile outfall and secondary treatment to remove bacteria is needed.

"There is no point in secondary treatment in one area when other areas nearby dump sewage raw," said Loffmark.

60 INSTALLED

He said some 60 municipalities have installed primary treatment voluntarily to protect their citizens but many still are dumping raw sewage.

"Our first objective is to bring primary treatment to all areas and the answer is simple—there will be no certificates issued (for subdivisions in developing areas) unless the municipalities provide proper sewage disposal.

"There are a lot of people who think these requirements don't apply to them," said Loffmark.

"There is a steady parade of real estate promoters into my office who think they should be exempted but so far not one has been exempted and I can assure the members that there won't be.

"Many of these real estate developers think they can get their little plan through without sewage treatment so they can sit back and make a nice profit but I can assure you there will be not one allowed."

Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) said the government is dividing its anti-pollution program among departments and officials when it should be a single co-ordinated effort.

He urged legislation to ban sale of any cars in the province which are not equipped with anti-pollution devices on their exhaust pipes.

"There also should be a 'war chest' against pollution," said Gardom.

"Why not sink a portion of the gasoline tax into the anti-pollution program . . . and also pour all the (anti-pollution) fines into the fund."

Tom Berger (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said Loffmark has failed "utterly" to live up to the promises of pollution control he made at the end of the summer.

NEEDS AUTHORITY

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) told the minister the health department should be in charge of over-all pollution control.

"It is time the minister was given some of the power to do some of the things he talked about doing."

Dowding said the minister now cannot carry out or enforce what he knows should be miminum requirements.

Dowding said the public is no longer willing to believe the minister's many press releases.

A LECTURE ON "CHANGING AFRICA", by Dr. Edgar S. Efrat, assistant professor of political science at the University of Victoria, will bring to a close the current series of the University Extension Association of Victoria on Monday evening. The lecture, starting at 8:15, will be delivered in Room 168, Elliott Building, and will be open to the public.

'JEWEL' FACES TESTS

An intensive pollution testing program will be initiated this spring at Shawnigan Lake in order to determine what measures will be needed to protect it, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark told the Legislature Thursday.

"I agree Shawnigan Lake is a real jewel," he said. "And we must preserve these lakes now or bid goodbye to them forever."

Allan Cox (L — Oak Bay) raised the matter of pollution in the lake, saying sewage overflow from septic tanks at cottages along the shore is ruining the vacation spot.

Cox said he feels the health department has adequate power to stop the pollution but is failing to enforce it.

Saying he did not want to be "alarmist," Cox warned that the lake could become like some of the bad lakes in Eastern Canada if control is not exercised.

Loffmark said the testing program also will include several interior lakes.

He said remedial measures must be taken early because once a lake is overwhelmed by pollution it is almost impossible to reclaim.

"There has been a good point made here.

"As the population of this province builds up, the people of this province must be alive to the great threat and we must take great care of these lakes, particularly those close to built-up areas."

"I give the members the assurance that we will test these lakes and will continue testing them."

Mayor Fears Bad Reaction On Hospitals

Mayor J. B. Cumming of North Saanich said today it isn't good business to ask people to approve a $30,000,000 hospital construction program without telling them how the money will be used.

Mayor Hugh Stephen, hospital district chairman, said Wednesday voters would be asked to approve the fall hospital referendum without a detailed plan of the program.

Taxpayers would be asked to trust the regional board to sort things out at a later date, he said.

FEARS FAILURE

Mayor Cumming feared if such a policy is carried through the referendum would fail.

"Do you lend a man $20 without asking him what he wants it for?" he asked.

"The hospital board's intentions are good and can be trusted, but what guarantee is there that its members will be around a year or six months from now," he added.

While he hoped the referendum passes, he said he didn't think ratepayers will approve such a large expenditure withoug first knowing the board's plans.

He also felt that the BCHIS would not approve a referendum without a detailed plan.

Point Roberts Leasing Plan To Be Aired

A 999-year lease of Point Roberts, Wash., to British Columbia might be the best solution for dealing with the tiny point of land cut off by the international border south of Ladner, the MLA for the border riding of Delta said today.

Robert Wenman, the 29-year-old Social Credit backbencher, has invited three Washington state legislators to Victoria on Tuesday to discuss the idea.

In an interview today, Wenman said the best deal in his opinion would be for the state to give Point Roberts to British Columbia.

COMPROMISE

This was unlikely, so a leasing arrangement might be a "reasonable compromise."

The MLA said the land is ideally suited for combined residential and recreational use. With the 999-year lease, the province would re-lease the land to current residents and developers.

Wenman hopes to intorduce the Washington people to Attorney-General Leslie Peterson and other cabinet ministers. In about two weeks the MLA will make a return visit to the Washington assembly at Olympia.

He said the Tuesday meeting will be the first for discussion of the Point's problems since a state senator appealed to Congress for help for the people of Point Roberts.

UNWORKABLE

Wenman ruled out any idea of joint control over the area as being unworkable. The idea of turning the Point into a free port he also ruled out, saying the free port system is only valuable for an industry that can bring in raw materials without duty and ship its manufactured goods free.

He is convinced the area must be residential because of lower-mainland population pressure.

Brick Workers Fail To Reach Settlement

An 11th-hour meeting failed to resolve a dispute between the Laborers' Union and local contractors Thursday, leaving the possibility of a strike anytime in the next three months.

No further meetings are planned at the moment.

The dispute centres around bricklayers' helpers and while neither side has spelled out their differences, they have said retroactive pay is the main issue.

The union's 72-hour strike notice expired at 4 p.m. Thursday, meaning a strike could be called anytime within the next three months. Union officials say that while only bricklayers' helpers are directly involved, their picket lines could shut down a number of projects, including several school additions under way in the district.

Four Victoria bricklaying contractors are involved.

Meanwhile, both the building trades unions and contractors will meet with the Saanich Peninsula school board Monday morning to protest the board's new policy of choosing its own sub-contractors on school projects.

One fear the unions have is that such a policy could lead to selection of non-union sub-contractors, forcing union men to pull off the job.

ATHLETIC PARK . . . APRIL 9 . . . KEEP IT QUIET

By JIM HUME

Whisper it quietly: Royal Athletic Park is opening again in April.

Nobody is quite sure of the date but the first sports event in a year has been booked into the park for April 9.

It's a tentative date and will not be kept unless the grass put down last year has completely recovered from a shaky case of snow-mould.

The trouble-plagued park lost its major grandstand in October, 1964.

It was only the start of a series of misadventures.

City council decided to rebuild the old park from centre field out at a cost of $330,000.

A year later that total had risen to $500,000 and when the park was finally opened in June, 1967, a little more than $1 million tax dollars had been poured into Victoria's own Phoenix.

With bands, speeches, much flag-waving and a soccer game between Victoria O'Keefes and London's Chelsea, the park opening was greeted enthusiastically.

For part of a soccer season and for one full baseball season the greensward and the grandstands enjoyed full use.

But by November city officials were looking gloomily at a dying turf and a $20,000 bill to get things back in shape.

When the spring rains of 1968 came along the park, which had been seeing only limited activity, was closed.

The turf was removed along with topsoil and bad drainage areas. The old topsoil, banked at Topaz Park, was brought back, new drains went in, the sprinkling system was adjusted, and grass seed planted.

The field wasn't the only problem.

An $84,000 night-lighting system wasn't working as it should. In the baseball outfield players couldn't see a pop-fly coming over second base.

In the board room at the back of the baseball diamond grandstand, electric heating wasn't working properly. The bills were high, the rooms uncomfortable.

At the soccer grandstand drains weren't working and a chain-drain from roof to ground was a disaster area on a rainy day.

Add $350 to the bill to fix the heating and $800 to fix the grandstand drain.

But all that is history now, say city officials.

The new grass took a cold weather battering last winter but is recovering slowly. The lights have been adjusted, the heating system changed and the drains are working fine.

And, on April 9, if all goes well, the captain of one of Victoria's senior soccer team leagues will boot a ball across the "gold-plated" turf to mark the start of a new sports era at Royal Athletic.

Says city manager Dennis Young a little ruefully: "I don't think there will be any official opening this time. We'll just wait for the grass to be right and quietly book games into the park."

But whisper it quietly. Royal Athletic has shown a nasty habit of failing to live up to its bright new reputation.

Israelis Distrust Big-4 Pact

By MURREY MARDER

WASHINGTON (WP) — Israeli foreign minister Abba Eban returned to Washington Thursday to record that his nation's new government is as distrustful of a Big Four solution to the Middle East crisis as the former leadership.

Eban met for 35 minutes with secretary of state William P. Rogers and other officials. The Isreali envoy called it "a summary conversation," at his request, before returning to Israel on Sunday.

"I brought the latest impressions of our government," now headed by Premier Golda Meir who presented her cabinet to parliament on Monday, said Eban. "It's in accored with what I said here last week," said Eban. He held a major round of talks at that time with President Nixon, with Rogers and with other policy-makers.

Although no American official would say so aloud, the Nixon adminstration is disappointed with what it regards as the rigidity displayed by Mrs. Meir in her initial statements Monday and Tuesday, informed sources said. At the same time, these sources added, it is recognized here that a new Israeli government needs time to organize its own strategy.

SIX-DAY WAR

Mrs. Meir told parliament on Monday that "we are as resolutley determined as the previous government that there shall never again be a return to the borders and conditions which existed on June 4, 1967," prior to the six-day, Arab-Israeli war which Israel won.

In Jerusalem the next day, Mrs. Meir in a press conference acknowledged that between the United States and Israel, "there are differences in our views and approach . . ." But she said it is "far too early" to reach conclusions on the "extent" of these differences.

The Nixon administration is intensely interested in bargaining out behind the scenes, with the Soviet Union, a formula for a Middle East settlement that can be presented in the name of the big four — the United States, Soviet Union, Britain and France.

Alberta Makes Plans For Joining Medicare

EDMONTON (CP)—Premier Harry Strom announced Thursday that Alberta will enter the federal medical care plan. However, he did not set a date.

The announcement came after the premier returned from talks in Ottawa with Prime Minister Trudeau on several subjects, including medical care.

Mr. Strom told the legislature the federal government has indicated it was not prepared to make any changes in the federal plan.

"As a result, the government of Alberta has decided that the province will enter the federal plan at the earliest possible date."

The Alberta government "was disappointed" the federal government would not accept the Alberta health plan for cost-sharing.

WILL MEET SOON

"We are arranging immediately for meetings with the medical profession, Medical Services Incorporated and Blue Cross to discuss administrative details necessary for the participation of Alberta in the federal plan," Mr. Strom said.

Outside the house, Mr. Strom said the discussions may start next week.

British Columbia and Saskatchewan joined the federal plan when it became effective in July, 1968. Since then, Manitoba, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland have announced their intention to join April 1.

Government officials here have declined comment, but speculation is Alberta will aim at a July 1 date for entry in the federal plan.

Opposition Leader Peter Lougheed said he is disturbed at the government's abrupt change in policy with no full public explanation. The government had indicated in the throne speech last month the province would not participate in the plan this year.

WANT PLAN TESTED

The Conservatives have, since the legislature opened Feb. 13, criticized the government for not joining the federal scheme but have also maintained the constitutionality of the federal plan should be tested in the courts.

In the house, Mr. Lougheed called for a full explanation from Mr. Strom, but the premier replied the legislature will have "ample time later" to discuss the question.

Bill Dickie, the Liberal house leader, said the announcement Thursday indicated a "wise decision" by the government.

Meanwhile, Dr. Robert Woolstoncroft, registrar of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Alberta, said in an interview that while the profession was "naturally sorry" about the government announcement it would "make the best of the matter."

"We're happy that the premier said he will be consulting us," he said.

Health Minister J. Donovan Ross had said earlier in the session there would be a "substantial reduction" in premiums now paid by Albertans compared with those paid for medical care under the provincial plan.

Change in Command For Queen's Own

Lt.-Col. H. C. (Herb) Pitts, commanding officer of the 1st. Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada at Esquimalt, has been appointed senior liaison officer at the United States Army Command and Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

He will assume his new duties early in April.

Formerly of Nelson, Col. Pitts has commanded the battalion since January 1967. He will be succeeded by Major Thorold M. C. Marsaw, London., Ont., who will be promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

An officer of the Queen's Own Rifles since 1952, he is being posted to Esquimalt from headquarters, First British Corps, in Germany.

The official changeover will take place at Work Point Barracks, March 28 at 9:15 a.m.

Col. Pitts, a graduate of Royal Roads and the Royal Military College, served with the 1st and 3rd Battalions of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in Korea.

In 1954 he joined the 1st Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada at Calgary. In 1957 he was appointed a liaison officer with Canada's NATO Brigade in Europe.

In 1962, Col. Pitts joined the 2nd Battalion of the regiment as company commander, and in 1964 was posted to Canada's 4th Brigade in Germany as brigade major.

All Parties Applaud Selective Help Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs on both sides of the Commons welcomed Thursday government plans to concentrate future development aid on areas with a chance of achieving prosperity.

NDP spokesman Edward Broadbent (Oshawa-Whitby) said he is glad the government is moving away from the outmoded approach of helping an area simply because of a high unemployment level.

Liberal Rud Whiting (Halton) said that in the past, millions have been spent on well-meaning but ineffective plans.

In future, he said, projects that show signs of success should be encouraged, while those that do not should be scrapped.

But Conservative John Lundrigan (Gander-Twillingate) urged that the human factor not be overlooked.

The comments came in debate on establishment of the new department of regional economic expansion, to be headed by Rural Development Minister Jean Marchand.

MAY FINISH TODAY

It was the eighth day of debate on the government reorganization bill, setting up several new departments, and had been expected to be the last. But government efforts to complete it were blocked by the opposition. Debate now is expected to be completed today.

Mr. Marchand repeated that first emphasis of the new department will be on industrial development of "growth centres." But rural redevelopment would continue to receive attention.

The most important instrument for industrial expansion would continue to be the Industrial Incentives Act, and major amendments would be made in it after consultation with the provinces.

Mr. Marchand said the task of the new department will be to get to the roots of problems that have produced disparities among Canadian regions.

GAVE FEW DETAILS

Past programs, operating independently and with too little co-ordination, had obviously not worked.

Mr. Marchand gave little indication of how the department will work.

"The first thing we have to do is establish the department before we indicate exactly what we intend to do," he said.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield listed three things that bothered him:

—The "wide discretion" of the minister and government in defining "special areas" that will qualify for aid.

—Similar wide discretion on the type of industry that could be aided and on the form of the aid.

—The "unnecessary degree of centralization" in administration of the program.

MUST PROVIDE SERVICES

Mr. Stanfield said there will be little chance of reducing economic disparity unless the provinces are able to provide an adequate standard of "growth-related" services such as education, transportation and health services.

He cited two instances in which he said Ottawa has ignored provincial problems:

—While Finance Minister Edgar Benson had been boasting about the size of transfer payments to the provinces, New Brunswick had been forced to raise taxes sharply just to make ends meet.

—The government had cancelled the Northumberland Strait crossing between New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island without the slightest effort to explain why it was necessary.

Liberal MPs Rake French Gov't On Policies in Talks at Paris

PARIS (CP) — A meeting between Canadian MPs and a high French government official turned into a verbal slugfest Thursday as the Canadians raked the Gaullist government for its policies toward Quebec and Ottawa.

The assault was led by Gilles Marceau, the Liberal member for Lapointe, who bluntly told Jean-Noel Lipkowski, French secretary of state for foreign affairs, that France is aggravating the problem of Canadian unity.

Lipkowski was reported to have been taken by surprise by the assault on his government, which came as members of the Canadian House of Commons external affairs committee wound up a one-day round of meetings here with prominent Frenchmen.

Some reports said Lipkowski was noticeably displeased.

Only a small portion of the 1¼-hour meeting was occupied with international affairs and defence policy, questions which the committee came to Europe to study. The rest was taken up with France's attitude towards Canada.

Participants in the closed meeting reported that Lipkowski told the MPs the French government regards Canadian unity as an internal Canadian problem, and that if Canada tries, it will find a solution to the problem.

Asked to describe the atmosphere of the meeting, one participant said: "It was not very friendly."

BACKS POSITION

Marcel Prud'homme, the Liberal member for Montreal Saint-Denis, who acted as chairman, endorsed the position taken by the other MPs when he closed off the discussion.

He pointedly told Lipkowski that "there are some patriots in Ottawa" — an apparent reference to French-speaking members of the federal Parliament. Since President de Gaulle's abortive Canadian visit in 1967, Paris has been playing down its relations with Ottawa and building up its relations with Quebec.

Carl Legault, the Liberal member for Nipissing, complained to Lipkowski that France uses its cultural agreements with Canada to serve only Quebec. French-speaking Canadians were "all alone" outside Quebec. Legault said he spoke as a French-speaking Canadian living in Ontario.

To charges that Paris is aggravating the problem of Canadian unity, Lipowski replied that he had met Quebecers who told him just the opposite.

The late premier Daniel Johnson and Quebec Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal had gone to France and said Quebec was happy with the de Gaulle government's policies.

Marceau said they were only two people.

Marceau said the way the French government is using the cultural agreements might give the impression that it favors a separate state in Quebec.

Lipkowski replied that France will not change its position unless Quebec changes its position. France had not asked for the cultural agreement with Quebec.

WELFARE HOTLINE

A new welfare hotline has been established by the Community Action Group with the support of the Council of Churches.

Community advocates will be available at St. John's rectory, Quadra and Mason, Saturday, March 29 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Residents wishing information on welfare services, training or re-training programs, or other social problems are invited to consult the advocates.

Judge Delays Decision On Student

MONTREAL (CP) — The preliminary hearing of Kennedy J. Frederick, first of 87 persons to face charges in the $2,000,000 damage spree at Sir George Williams University last month, ended Thursday.

Frederick, 29, of Grenada, West Indies, was granted $10,000 bail after the prosecution announced it had completed its evidence.

He was unable to raise the bail, however, and was ordered held in custody.

Frederick is charged with conspiracy to commit arson and damage property after a two-week student occupation of the university's computer centre erupted into violence Feb. 11.

Judge Emmett J. McManamy said it would take about two weeks to decide whether to send Frederick to trial.

More than 50 witnesses were heard in the five weeks of almost uninterrupted testimony.

Earlier in the day, two others charged in the destructive rampage and released on bail, pleaded guilty to charges of soliciting names on a petition demanding that Frederick be granted bail.

Philippie Filsailme, 20, a free-lance photographer, and Maurice Barrow, 25, a student, were arrested Wednesday night in a subway station, where such activities are forbidden by a city bylaw.

Filsailme was fined $100 with an option of 30 days in jail. Barrow was fined $75 or 30 days in jail.

No charges were laid against Filsailme for presenting prosecutor Claude-Armand Sheppard with a Haitian voodoo doll after he apologized for his actions.

Newspaper Chain Plans to Offer Shares to Public

NEW YORK (UPI) — Knight Newspapers Inc. says it will offer to sell the public 950,000 shares of common stock in the firm in late April.

The firm said after the offering it would attempt to list the company on the New York Stock Exchange. The Knight family will continue to hold about 59 per cent of the shares.

Underwriters led by Goldman Sachs and Co. will handle the sale on behalf of John S. Knight, editorial chairman, and James L. Knight, board chairman, sons of founder C. L. Knight.

Knight is the nation's fifth largest daily newspaper publisher. It publishes the Miami Herald, Detroit Free Press, Akron Beacon Journal, Charlotte Observer, Charlotte News, Tallahassee Democrat, Macon Telegraph and Macon News and several smaller newspapers in Florida and Georgia.

Wood Products Prices Show Sharp Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Two sets of price guides issued today by Dominion Bureau of Statistics show wood-products prices have risen sharply, leading other manufactures.

A report on industry selling-price indexes for February says the index for seven wood products increased by an average 3.1 per cent from January.

Prices for veneers and plywoods, shingles and lumber advanced by between four and six per cent in the month.

In the general wholesale index, calculated on a different basis, the wood-products group led all others with a 9.3-per-cent increase in the year to February.

B.C. Wharves

B.C. Wharves Ltd. announced Wednesday it has scrapped its plan to develop a multi-million dollar deep-sea loading terminal at Kitimat.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Small Gain at Toronto

In light trading the Toronto Stock Exchange posted a small advance today.

The market opened mixed, dipped after two hours but picked up in later dealings.

The New York market closed lower today. Trading was moderate near the close.

AT TORONTO in industrials, Investors Overseas was up 2½ to 121, Carrier Shoe 1⅛ to 16⅛ and Great Lakes Paper 1½ to 28. Neon was down 1⅜ to 29½.

Dynasty gained ¾ to 15⅝ and Endako ¾ to 12½. Hollinger was off ¾ to 31⅜.

Asamera rose 1½ to 35½ and Great Plains ⅞ to 31. Charter Oil dropped 2 to 10½.

AT NEW YORK prices near the close included: Great Western Financial, off ⅛ at 26½; General American Oil, off ¼ at 64¼; Roan Selection Trust, up 1 at 13; Occidental Petroleum, off 1⅝ at 42⅝; Natomas, up ¼ at 59⅝.

AT MONTREAL prices were mixed during moderately active trading today.

Banks, unable to hold the lead gained Thursday, following an increase in prime lending rates, slipped slightly.

Highlighting gains were Consolidated Textiles, up 1¼ to 15⅛; MacKinnon, 2 to 16, and Industrial Acceptance ⅞ to 26⅞.

Clinic 'Destroyed' by Neglect

By JOHN SLINGER

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark was bombarded for 2½ hours Thursday with demands for revitalization of the provincial forensic clinic in Burnaby for sexual psychopaths.

He shrugged off the arguments of a psychiatrist, lawyer and two social workers among NDP MLAs and explained the government is decentralizing all its mental health services.

"I don't think we can have it both ways," said Loffmark.

"We can't try to develop a community-based mental health program and at the same time develop another centralized provincial institution."

He said the developing regional mental health units should be able to provide forensic services throughout the province.

PAY FOR TREATMENT

Loffmark added that the provincial medicare plan will pay for treatment of disturbed persons by private psychiatrists.

Norman Levi (NDP — Vancouver South) a social worker and representing the same riding as Loffmark, accused the minister of "Giving us the biggest load of poppycock I've heard yet.

"We've had a succession of killings in this province by sex offenders" because there is no treatment centre.

"I warn you Mr. Minister, it could be a year from now but there will be on your head the lives of children because people are walking aroung with seriously disturbed minds."

Tom Berger (NDP — Vancouver-Burrard) said the forensic clinic was started by concerned psychiatrists and then taken over by the government "which now has destroyed it with neglect."

He said the staff positions of director, psychiatrists and psychologists have been vacant for a year without government action, leaving a single social worker and a clerk in the building.

NOWHERE TO GO

Both he and David Barrett (NDP — Coquitlam) said sex offenders are sent to jail by the court because there is nowhere to send them for treatment.

They said the offenders serve their time and are released into the community "sicker than they were before."

Dr. Ray Parkinson (NDP—Vancouver-Burrard) said the government's failure to staff the clinic is an example of its total failure to coming to grips with mental health problems.

Loffmark replied that there could be a sincere division of opinion on the best way to meet the situation.

But he said a fair test of the argument that the Social Credit government was to blame for sex offences was to examine the experiences of other administrations, such as the socialist governments of Britain and Sweden.

"We get a whole series of lurid sex offences over there and I wonder if the members opposite would like to lay the blame for that on the doorstep of the socialist governments over there."

'CRISIS CENTRES'

Levi, saying "it's clear the minister doesn't know what we're talking about," added that a "fantastic" number of disturbed people are coming into agencies in need of help.

He said the numbers of people who phone radio "hot-line" shows is indicative of the number of people who want nothing more than someone to talk to.

He said there is need in the province for "crisis centres," and he suggested even store-front operations would be helpful. These could be staffed with people who could help.

Levi said the majority of people working in the field now realize there are no adequate services available.

He was talking about services for the people who have day to day jobs but have problems.

He was not talking about the criminal, "but the person who has a problem and the only way he can get some kind of attention — and I'm not talking about treatment — is to get arrested. He then turns into a criminal."

LONDON (CP) — Princess Margaret and Jennie Lee, British minister in charge of the arts, are expected to be among first-night dignitaries when Les Grand Ballets Canadiens opens a 10-day stay at the Sadlers' Wells Theatre, May 27.

WHAT'S A 'YANKEE?'

VANCOUVER (UPI) — To avoid any embarrassment for those Canadians visiting the United States this year, the B.C. Automobile Association Thursday issued a statement defining the word "Yankee."

"The word 'Yankee' implies different things to different people," the BCAA explained.

"To foreigners a Yankee is an American. To an American a Yankee is a northerner. To a northerner a Yankee is a New Englander a Yankee is a Vermonter. To a Vermonter a Yankee is a person who eats pie for breakfast.

Newspaper Chain Plans to Offer Shares to Public

NEW YORK (UPI) — Knight Newspapers Inc. says it will offer to sell the public 950,000 shares of common stock in the firm in late April.

The firm said after the offering it would attempt to list the company on the New York Stock Exchange. The Knight family will continue to hold about 59 per cent of the shares.

Underwriters led by Goldman Sachs and Co. will handle the sale on behalf of John S. Knight, editorial chairman, and James L. Knight, board chairman, sons of founder C. L. Knight.

Knight is the nation's fifth largest daily newspaper publisher. It publishes the Miami Herald, Detroit Free Press, Akron Beacon Journal, Charlotte Observer, Charlotte News, Tallahassee Democrat, Macon Telegraph and Macon News and several smaller newspapers in Florida and Georgia.

Wood Products Prices Show Sharp Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Two sets of price guides issued today by Dominion Bureau of Statistics show wood-products prices have risen sharply, leading other manufactures.

A report on industry selling-price indexes for February says the index for seven wood products increased by an average 3.1 per cent from January.

Prices for veneers and plywoods, shingles and lumber advanced by between four and six per cent in the month.

In the general wholesale index, calculated on a different basis, the wood-products group led all others with a 9.3-per-cent increase in the year to February.

B.C. Wharves

B.C. Wharves Ltd. announced Wednesday it has scrapped its plan to develop a multi-million dollar deep-sea loading terminal at Kitimat.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Small Gain at Toronto

In light trading the Toronto Stock Exchange posted a small advance today.

The market opened mixed, dipped after two hours but picked up in later dealings.

The New York market closed lower today. Trading was moderate near the close.

AT TORONTO in industrials, Investors Overseas was up 2½ to 121, Carrier Shoe 1½ to 16½ and Great Lakes Paper 1½ to 28. Neon was down 1⅜ to 29½.

Dynasty gained ¾ to 15⅜ and Endako ¾ to 12½. Hollinger was off ¾ to 31¾.

Asamera rose 1½ to 35½ and Great Plains ⅞ to 31. Charter Oil dropped 2 to 10½.

AT NEW YORK prices near the close included: Great Western Financial, off ⅛ at 26½; General American Oil, off ¼ at 64¼; Roan Selection Trust, up 1 at 13; Occidental Petroleum, off 1⅜ at 42⅝; Natomas, up ¼ at 59⅜.

AT MONTREAL prices were mixed during moderately active trading today.

Banks, unable to hold the lead gained Thursday, following an increase in prime lending rates, slipped slightly.

Highlighting gains were Consolidated Textiles, up 1¼ to 15½; MacKinnon, 2 to 16, and Industrial Acceptance ⅞ to 26⅞.

Texaco Canada added ¾ to 32; Walker-Gooderham ¾ to 41½; Velcro Industries ¾ to 50¾, and International Pipe Lines ⅝ to 19½.

AT LONDON prices were mostly steady in quiet trading today on the stock exchange although some leading industrials lost the gains they posted earlier in the session.

Becham, Dunlop, Turner and GEC added three pence or more and Thorn recovered from Thursday's fall with the A shares 2 shillings higher. Bowater added three pence and Hawker rose 2 shillings.

Shell was strong in oils with a rise of 1s 4½d.

Canadian banks were strong following Thursday's prime rate increases although initial gains were not fully held. Royal Bank jumped 17 shillings, Bank of Nova Scotia added 9s 6d and Toronto Dominion was 7 shillings. Bank of Montreal and Imperial Commerce also gained a few shillings.

Gulf Oil improved by 3½ points and Trans-Canada Pipe Line recorded a similar gain. Alcan was 2 points up while Canadian Pacific and Canadian Husky eased.

AT VANCOUVER about 1,300,000 shares changed hands by noon.

Consolidated Skeena in the mines led the action on a volume of more than 90,000 shares, losing .23 to $1.20.

Embassy in the oils fell .13 to $1.30 and Royal Canadian Ventures was down .30 to $5.

Whonnock in the industrials lost .75 to $24 and EDP dropped 50 cents to $18.50.
